Of Japan Is Now In
The Valley of the Shadow.

SUBJECTS WITH SADDENED HEARTS AWAIT NEWS FROM THE PALACE.

HOPE WITHOUT FOUNDATION IS GIVEN BY PHYSICIANS.

AND THOSE CLOSE TO THE THRONE KNOW THE EM-PORER CANNOT RECOVER.

(By United Press.)
Tokio, July 21.—(Sunday)—The Mikado was still alive this morning but very low. His temperature at 9 a. m. was 103.3; his pulse 108
and his respiration 32.

Tokio, July 20.—Members of the Japanese Imperial family who have been staying in the country during the hot weather began to arrive in Tokio this afternoon and are hurrying straight from the railroad station to the dying Mikado's bedside.
The cabinet members and other high government officials are assembled in the palace. The Mikado according to the doctors' latest announcement is sinking steadily, and warning was given to all to be prepared for news of his death at any time. He is a victim of kidney trouble from which he has suffered a long time.

The streets are crowded with people awaiting reports from his chamber. All are quiet, sad and apparently somewhat over awed.

Prince Katsura, the ex-premier,
who left recently on a tour of Europe, has not been heard from since a telegram was sent to him informing him of the Mikado's condition. It is believed, however, that he will return as speedily as possible to Japan. Most politicians think a cabinet change will follow
the ruler's death and that Katsura will become premier again.

At least one of the doctors remained constantly at his majesty's bedside, and generally all three were within arms reach of him. The best nurses in Tokio, relieved one another at short intervals.

The sufferer's wife was persuaded late at night, however, to leave the sick chamber for a few hours sleep.

In an adjoining room the crown
princesses elected to pass the night.
Until a late hour she was in communication by telephone every few minutes with the Mikado's son and her, the crown prince, himself but just recovering and still confined to his bed from a severe attack of chicken pox.

The members of the cabinet spent the night with their telephones at their bedside, and carriages waiting at their doors, ready to rush them to the palace at the first summons. The Mikado Mutsuhito has never been much more than an idea to his people. To the elect he appears for a few moments twice yearly at a ceremonial garden party, but the masses have not only never seen him, but have never seen his carriage roll past or so much as the streets cleared for its passage.

The crown prince is known about Tokio as a man of flesh and blood, for he has ventured out and shown himself, though always elaborately surrounded by his attendants.

The dying Mikado will be widely proclaimed the man who modernized Japan, who gave it a constitution and made it a first class power. In reality he has had but little to do with shaping its destinies.
For sixty years he has lived the life of a recluse—an almost imaginary figurehead for a government in which an oligarchy of ministers have been and still are, despite the so-called constitution, the real power.

Newark, N. J., July 20.—Twelve-year-old John Steward is in bed
today with a gash in his right leg that required six stitches to close.
While nine-year-old Benny Mason has trouble sitting down. Another of Mason's playmates dared him to cut John's leg off with a pair of shears last night. They held John while Benny got to work.

Policeman Patterson heard the boy crying in time to prevent young Mason from opening an artery and the surgical operation came to a sudden end.

SEN. JOHN D. WORKS

U. S. Sen. John D. Works, deresigning in accordance of the request forwarded by Lieutenant Governor A. I. Wallace, of California, and Meyer Lissner, chairman of the California Republican National Committee. The request for his resignation followed a statement given out by Senator Works in which he criticized the proposed new Progressive party. "I shall not resign," said Senator Works. These people are not even members of the Republican party, they have no right to ask my resignation."

REVOLT

OUT IN LISBON.

BELIEVE CHAMPIONS OF RES-POSED KING MANUEL HAVE STARTED IT.

Paris, July 20.—A revolutionary uprising is reported in Lisbon today. It is conjectured the revolutionists are an anti-government faction of the Republicans instead of Royalists, since Republicanism has been strong in the Portuguese's capital throughout the revolt of Royalists in the north. Details are lacking.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

Madrid, Spain, July 20.—That revolutionary uprisings have broken out in Lisbon and Oporto, was confirmed by a high official of the Spanish government this afternoon.
Oporto is a royalist city and it is thought likely that the champions of either of ex-king Manuel or of the pretender Miguel of Braganza, may have gained complete control. It is questioned, however, whether more than an attempt to upset the republican government can be in progress in Lisbon which has been the republican stronghold ever since Manuel was driven from the throne. Several Royalist conspiracies have been discovered in the capital city recently and nipped in the bud.

VITAL STATISTICS
WORRYING GERMANY

Berlin, July 20.—The report that the population of France has decreased 34,000 in the last year,
had caused German officials to again examine Germany's vital statistics very closely. And Germany is just a bit worried to find that though slowly, but apparently none the less surely, it also is in danger of coming under the head of "race suicide nations."

In 1910 there were 29,523 less children born than in 1901. In 1911 the percentage of births to
every 1,000 population was 36.32,
which by 1910 had decreased to 30.83. Marriages also decreased
from a percentage of 16.3 to 15.7
in 1910 population has been in Saxony where more women are engaged in industrial pursuits than in any part of Germany. The birth rate decreased from 45.5 in 1920 to 29.8 in 1908.

Despite this decrease in the birth
rate, the decreasing death rate
leaves such a surplus population that Professor Julius Wolf declared
Germany will have a population of 80,000,000 within 20 years while
France will never reach 40,000,000.

Clear Deep
Mystery

POLICE AND DISTRICT ATTOR-NEY'S OFFICE WORK AT

BRINGING WOMEN
RIGHT INTO CASE.

OF BIG GRAY CAR NOW KNOWN.

(By United Press.)

New York, July 20.—With the police and district attorney's office
plainly working at cross purposes
and with a number of the prominent figures in the case in receipt
of threatening letters the developments in New York's gambling
scandal were believed tonight to
be bordering on the sensational.
District attorney Whitman was out of town. It was currently reported that he was at a shore resort in consultation with the head of the private detective agency hired by private citizens to aid him. It was reported he was also able to listen
to the story of certain gamblers
who were anxious to put him in possession of the facts in the case
while at the same time keeping their skirts clear of the charge of squealing.

It was admitted, both by the police and the district attorney's office that anyone squealing in the present case was almost certain to meet the fate of Herman Rosenthal,
the gambler murdered last Wednesday morning in front of the Meropole. The very public nature of this crime it is pointed out shows
that they would not stop at nothing
to close the mouth of the men
who told of their crimes.

The district attorney it was known was carefully guarded and
so were certain others connected with the case.

Police commissioner Daugherty went home late this afternoon declaring that he was confident the murder
of Rosenthal and the circumstances
surrounding it would be cleared up
within a very short time.

Deputy commissioner Daugherty
and inspector Hughes, commanding
the detectives bureau, remained on the job.

Daugherty interviewed many visitors late this afternoon. Among them were two women who, it was admitted, were prominent factors
in the investigation, but whose identity was kept secret by the police. One of them was said to be a Mrs. Bernard, the identification
being made by the number of her
automobile. She was accompanied to headquarters by her husband. It was recalled that Mrs. Rosenthal
had alleged that her husband was warned by a friend named Bernard
less than seven hours before he was killed that an attempt was to be made on his life, and that he had better leave town until things
quieted down.

Discussing the situation tonight
Daugherty said: "In the first place
it must not be overlooked that we have in our possession the car used
by the murderers, the chauffeur
who drove that car to and from the Metropole where the murder was committed, and the man who hired
that car. We know the names and
are looking for every one who rode
in that car that night. We believe
that there will be further squeals
much unjust criticism of the department itself. We will arrest
everyone concerned in the Rosenthal crime and every detail and the facts leading up to it will be revealed."

Despite Daugherty's confident assertion it was learned that he and
his associates were badly worried
over the fear that the private detectives engaged in the case would arrest the actual murderers. It was reported that the district attorney
had all of the information that the police had and in addition much
more. This he has given to his private sleuths and forty of them were reported on good authority, tonight
to be working on the case.

Daugherty took issue tonight with
the report from the district attorney's office that Rosenthal was shot
out of the Metropole to be shot
to death.

"CANVASSED HAM"

Clothing Worn By Women Reminds Alienist of Burlesquers.

(By United Press.)
St. Louis, Mo., July 20.—Nathan Swartz probably told the truth when he wrote he had been driven insane by the "beautiful
make-up of women," according to Dr. M. R. Hughes, noted alien-ist, of St. Louis. Dr. Hughes said tonight there was a condition of
mind known as erotomania or
"love mania," the unfortunate
victim being exceedingly sensitive to any display of the human form. He declared that Swartz
was no doubt an erotomaniac and
became mad at the sight of women clad in modern fashions.

"Women are dressing at present
much like the pictures on bill-boards," asserted Dr. Hughes,
"or like the prints we see of Egyptian mummies. The impressionable are no doubt affected by this canvassed-ham clothing. Women should be ashamed to appear in the styles now prevailing and
show more regard for that kind
of men."

PASSION

REFUSES HUSBAND DIVORCE
HE SHOOTS HIS NEWEST AFFINITY.

(By United Press.)

Denver, Colo., July 20.—When a person sees the beautiful passion
of love which was burning so bright
a few weeks ago fade away until
it seems like a block of ice, a fellow will do almost anything. And that is why I shot Georgiana."

This is the statement today by Eugene Talbot Miller, who lured
his sweetheart, Georgiana Lichten-
waller, to a vacant lot, shot her
four times. "I could stand it no longer," he continued. "When she found out that I was married and I was unable to get a divorce, she grew colder each day, and so I shot her. I'm sorry I didn't kill her, as I intended and then commit
suicide, but now that I made a poor
job of it, I'm sorry I shot her at
all."

Miller said he tried to get his wife to consent to a divorce, so he could marry the Lichtenwaller girl
but his wife refused and Miller
added: "I couldn't get a divorce because my wife is a good woman,
the same as Georgiana is a good
woman."

CRUSADE

MAYOR SHANK NOTIFIED WINE

MUST GO.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 20.—Unless
wineroms, disreputable dance
halls and saloons where liquor
laws have been violated are closed
at once, impeachment proceedings
will be instituted against Mayor
Low Shank. This was the notice
served on the executive today by
the church federation of Indianapolis, which is waging a vice crusade
here. The federation recently demanded that immoral resorts be closed and Mayor Shank issued
the order effective Dec. 1.

At a meeting of the federation, a motion was adopted, providing for
a fund of $5,000 to be used in pushing impeachment proceedings
against the mayor. A legal committee composed of Judge Vinson
Carter, Thomas C. Day, V. H. Lock-
wood, Edgar A. Brown and Caleb
S. Denny, former mayor of Indianapolis, was appointed to direct the
action in case it is decided to bring proceedings against Mayor Shank.

DIED IN INDIANAPOLIS

from Indianapolis yesterday, announcing the death in that city of Harry, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Christ, formerly of this to this city for burial, arriving here Monday afternoon at 12:40 o'clock.

The body will be taken direct from the train to Woodlawn cemetery.

TWELVE MEN NAMED TO PUSH

ASSIGNMENTS OF COMMITTEE MADE

BUT THE MAN TO HOLD MONEY
BAG IS YET UNSE-

(By United Press.)

New York, July 20.—Emphasizing his former statements that he intended to make the campaign for the re-election of President Taft a business man's fight, Chas. D. Hil-
les, chairman of the Republican National committee this afternoon
announced the names of the member of the executive committee
which will handle the fight under his direction. Twelve men were named by him and all of them have agreed to devote all of their time
from now until election day to making the fight. The committee as announced by Chairman Hilles,
following a long distance telephone
talk, with President Taft in Washington, was as follows:

J. T. Adams, Dubuque, Ia.; Chas.
F. Brooker, Ansonia, Conn.; Frederick W. Esterbrook, Nashua, N.
H.; Jas. P. Goodrich, Indianapol-
is; Alvah F. Martin, Norfolk, Vir.; T. K. Niedringhaus, St. Louis;
Samuel A. Perkins, Tacoma; Al-
fred T. Rogers, Madison, Wis.;
Newell Saunders, Chattanooga;
Chas. D. Warren, Detroit, Mich.;
Roy E. West, Chicago; Ralph Williams, Dallas, Oregon.

The assignments of the new committee were also announced by Chairman Hilles as follows; New York, headquarters; Brooker, Es-
terbrook, Goodrich, Martin and Saunders, Chicago—Adams, Nied-
ringhaus, Rogers, Warren and West; Pacific Coast, city to be selected; Perkins and Williams.

"We are very well satisfied with the outlook," said Chairman Hil-les tonight. "The members of the executive committee will begin
their work immediately. They will take off my shoulders as much as possible the detailed work of the campaign so that I can devote my attention to the things absolutely require my attention. This committee is made up of men who have
the interests of the Republican party at heart, and they will aid
materially in getting things running properly and keeping them so.
We will run it the same as every
first class business should be run,
and we are confident that he will attain our end, the re-election of President Taft."

The treasurer of the committee
and the advisory committee which is to be appointed will probably be announced next Monday. Surprise
was expressed Wm. Barnes, Jr.,
the New York boss who was so influential in winning the fight at Chicago for President Taft, was not on the executive committee. It
was explained however that Barnes
had expressed an unwillingness to serve. It was understood that he pointed out that it would be absolutely necessary for him to give
all of his time and attention to the campaign in New York state and that he would be in such close
touch that Hilles could reach him
at a moment's notice should it become necessary.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 20.—
With swollen neck and bruises on
the side of her face, indicating that she had been attacked and beaten
and choked to death, an unidentified woman 65 years old was found
early today at the north end of the Fifth street viaduct over the great Northern railroad.

The body had been thrown or
dragged down the embankment
twenty-five feet and was discovered by a lamp tender. He said her jewelry and trinkets were undisturbed, and the police think the murder was for revenge and not robbery.

children born than in 1901. In 1911 the percentage of births to
every 1,000 population was 36.32,
which by 1910 had decreased to 30.83. Marriages also decreased
from a percentage of 16.3 to 15.7
population in 1908 to 15.7 in 1910
The greatest decline has been in Saxony where more women are engaged in industrial pursuits than in any part of Germany. The birth
rate decreased from 45.5 in 1920 to 29.8 in 1908.

Despite this decrease in the birth
rate, the decreasing death rate
Professor Julius Wolf declared
Germany will have a population of 80,000,000 within 20 years while
France will never reach 40,000,000.

POLICE AND DISTRICT ATTOR-NEY'S OFFICE WORK AT

BRINGING WOMEN
RIGHT INTO CASE.

OF BIG GRAY CAR NOW KNOWN.

New York, July 20.—With the
police and district attorney's office
plainly working at cross purposes
and with a number of the prominent figures in the case in receipt
of threatening letters the developments in New York's gambling
scandal were believed tonight to
be bordering on the sensational.
District attorney Whitman was out
of town. It was currently reported
that he was at a shore resort in
private detective agency hired by private citizens to aid him. It was reported he was also able to listen
to the story of certain gamblers
who were anxious to put him in possession of the facts in the case
while at the same time keeping their skirts clear of the charge of squealing.

It was admitted, both by the police and the district attorney's office that anyone squealing in the
present case was almost certain to
meet the fate of Herman Rosenthal,
the gambler murdered last Wednes-
day morning in front of the Mero-
pole. The very public nature of
this crime it is pointed out shows
that they would not stop at nothing
to close the mouth of the men
who told of their crimes.

known was carefully guarded and
so were certain others connected
with the case.

Police commissioner Waldo went home late this afternoon declaring
that he was confident the murder
of Rosenthal and the circumstances
surrounding it would be cleared up
within a very short time.

Deputy commissioner Daugherty
and inspector Hughes, commanding
the detectives bureau, remained on
the job.

Daugherty interviewed many visitors late this afternoon. Among
them were two women who, it was
admitted, were prominent factors
in the investigation, but whose
identity was kept secret by the police. One of them was said to be a Mrs. Bernard, the identification
being made by the number of her
automobile. She was accompanied
to headquarters by her husband. It
was recalled that Mrs. Rosenthal
had alleged that her husband was
warned by a friend named Bernard
less than seven hours before he
was killed that an attempt was to be made on his life, and that he had
better leave town until things
quieted down.

Discussing the situation tonight
Daugherty said: "In the first place
it must not be overlooked that we
have in our possession the car used
by the murderers, the chauffeur
who drove that car to and from the Metropole where the murder was
committed, and the man who hired
that car. We know the names and
are looking for every one who rode
in that car that night. We believe
that there will be further squeals
much unjust criticism of the department itself. We will arrest
everyone concerned in the Rosenthal crime and every detail and the facts leading up to it will be revealed."

Despite Daugherty's confident assertion it was learned that he and
his associates were badly worried
over the fear that the private detectives engaged in the case would
arrest the actual murderers. It was reported that the district attorney
had all of the information that the
police had and in addition much
more. This he has given to his private sleuths and forty of them were
reported on good authority, tonight
to be working on the case.

Daugherty took issue tonight with
the report from the district attorney's office that Rosenthal was shot
out of the Metropole to be shot
to death.

"CANVASSED HAM"

Clothing Worn By Women Re-

(By United Press.)
St. Louis, Mo., July 20.—Nath-
an Swartz probably told the
truth when he wrote he had been
driven insane by the "beautiful
make-up of women," according
to Dr. M. R. Hughes, noted alien-
ist, of St. Louis. Dr. Hughes said
tonight there was a condition of
mind known as erotomania or
"love mania," the unfortunate
victim being exceedingly sensitive to any display of the human
form. He declared that Swartz
was no doubt an erotomaniac and
became mad at the sight of women clad in modern fashions.

"Women are dressing at present
much like the pictures on
bill-boards," asserted Dr. Hughes,
"or like the prints we see of
Egyptian mummies. The impres-
sionable are no doubt affected by
this canvassed-ham clothing. Women should be ashamed to appear
in the styles now prevailing and
show more regard for that kind
of men."

(By United Press.)

Denver, Colo., July 20.—When a
person sees the beautiful passion
of love which was burning so bright
a few weeks ago fade away until
it seems like a block of ice, a fellow will do almost anything. And that is why I shot Georgiana."

Eugene Talbot Miller, who lured
his sweetheart, Georgiana Lichten-
waller, to a vacant lot, shot her
four times. "I could stand it no
longer," he continued. "When she
found out that I was married and I was unable to get a divorce, she
grew colder each day, and so I
shot her. I'm sorry I didn't kill
her, as I intended and then commit
suicide, but now that I made a poor
job of it, I'm sorry I shot her at
all."

Miller said he tried to get his
wife to consent to a divorce, so he
could marry the Lichtenwaller girl
but his wife refused and Miller
added: "I couldn't get a divorce be-
cause my wife is a good woman,
the same as Georgiana is a good
woman."

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 20.—Unless
wineroms, disreputable dance
halls and saloons where liquor
laws have been violated are closed
at once, impeachment proceedings
will be instituted against Mayor
Low Shank. This was the notice
served on the executive today by
the church federation of Indianapolis, which is waging a vice crusade
here. The federation recently demanded that immoral resorts be
closed and Mayor Shank issued
the order effective Dec. 1.

At a meeting of the federation, a
motion was adopted, providing for
a fund of $5,000 to be used in
pushing impeachment proceedings
against the mayor. A legal com-
Carter, Thomas C. Day, V. H. Lock-
wood, Edgar A. Brown and Caleb
S. Denny, former mayor of Indianapolis, was appointed to direct the
action in case it is decided to bring
proceedings against Mayor Shank.

(By United Press.)

New York, July 20.—Emphasizing his former statements that he intended to make the campaign for
the re-election of President Taft a
business man's fight, Chas. D. Hil-
les, chairman of the Republican National committee this afternoon
announced the names of the member of the executive committee
which will handle the fight under
his direction. Twelve men were named by him and all of them have
agreed to devote all of their time
from now until election day to
making the fight. The committee
as announced by Chakman Hilles,
following a long distance telephone
talk, with President Taft in Washington, was as follows:

J. T. Adams, Dubuque, Ia.; Chas.
F. Brooker, Ansonia, Conn.; Fred-
erick W. Esterbrook, Nashua, N.
H.; Jas. P. Goodrich, Indianapol-
is; Alvah F. Martin, Norfolk, Vir.; T. K. Niedringhaus, St. Louis;
Samuel A. Perkins, Tacoma; Al-
fred T. Rogers, Madison, Wis.;
Newell Saunders, Chattanooga;
Chas. D. Warren, Detroit, Mich.;
Roy E. West, Chicago; Ralph Williams, Dallas, Oregon.

The assignments of the new committee were also announced by Chairman Hilles as follows; New York, headquarters; Brooker, Es-
Saunders, Chicago—Adams, Nied-
ringhaus, Rogers, Warren and West; Pacific Coast, city to be selected; Perkins and Williams.

"We are very well satisfied with
the outlook," said Chairman Hil-
les tonight. "The members of the executive committee will begin
their work immediately. They will
take off my shoulders as much as possible the detailed work of the
attention to the things absolutely
require my attention. This committee is made up of men who have
the interests of the Republican
party at heart, and they will aid
materially in getting things running properly and keeping them so.
We will run it the same as every
first class business should be run,
and we are confident that he will
President Taft."

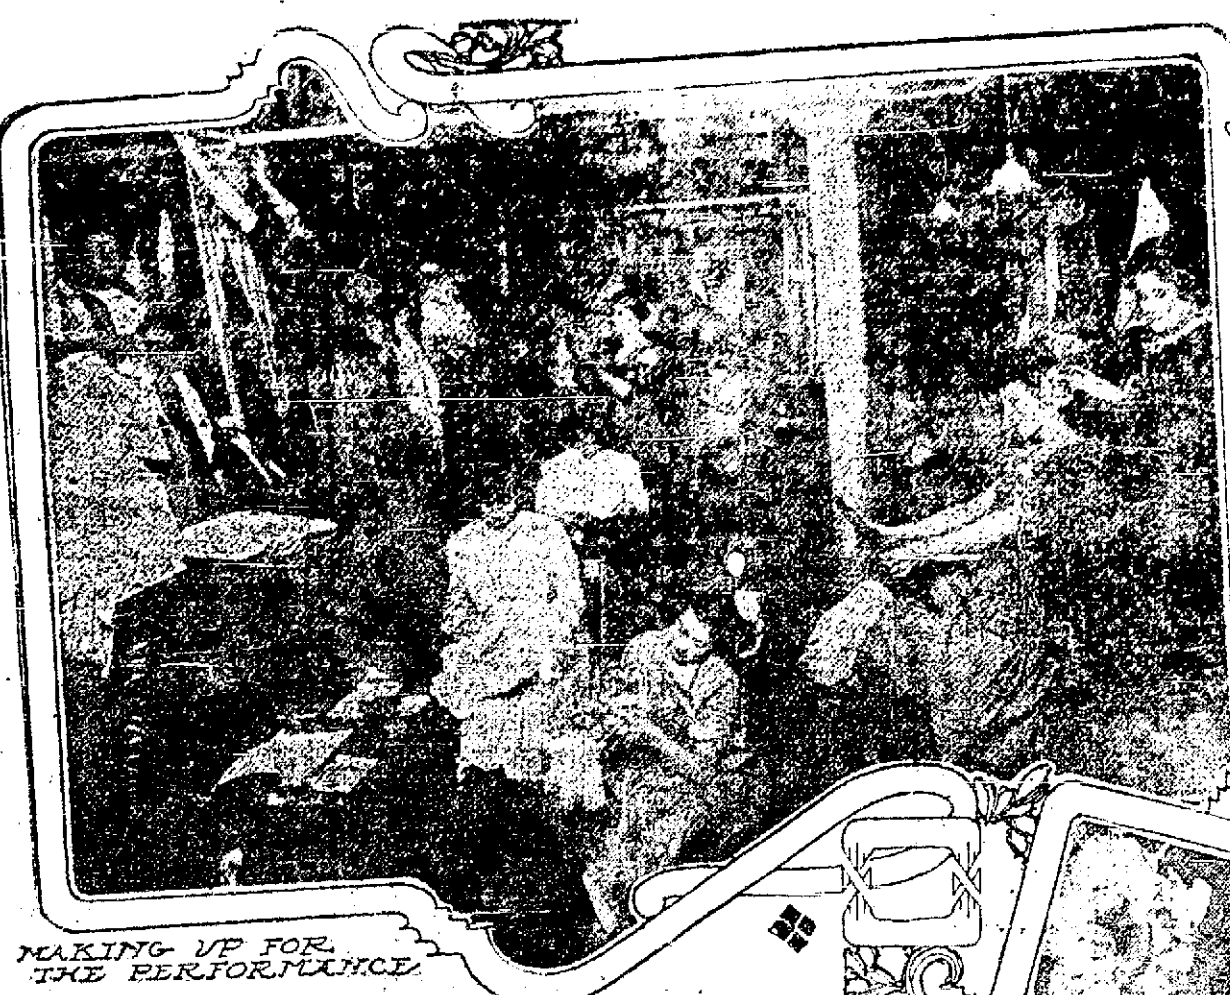

The treasurer of the committee
and the advisory committee which
is to be appointed will probably be
was expressed Wm. Barnes, Jr.,
the New York boss who was so influential in winning the fight at Chicago for President Taft, was
not on the executive committee. It
was explained however that Barnes
had expressed an unwillingness to
pointed out that it would be absolutely necessary for him to give
all of his time and attention to the
campaign in New York state and
that he would be in such close
touch that Hilles could reach him
at a moment's notice should it be-

Minneapolis, Minn., July 20.—
With swollen neck and bruises on
the side of her face, indicating that
she had been attacked and beaten
and choked to death, an unidentified woman 65 years old was found
early today at the north end of the Fifth street viaduct over the great Northern railroad.

The body had been thrown or
dragged down the embankment
twenty-five feet and was discovered by a lamp tender. He said her
jewelry and trinkets were undisturbed, and the police think the
murder was for revenge and not
robbery.

The Home Life of Circus Women

How the Beauties of the Sawdust Ring Live in Their Trunks and Keep Up a Happy Family Life Despite Their Canvas Existence, Vividly Described by Equestrienne.

THE CIRCUS will soon be with us again, the circus that brings us joy and pleasure, and that recalls, more than any other thing the happy days of old when we tied a string to our big toe and went to sleep only to be awakened early the next morning by a yank that brought us to the window to see our little pals in the semi-darkness below.

That lone circus car at the railroad station last week reminded us of those joyful boyhood days when we saw the big show come in, followed the clowns in the street parade and sneaked under the flaps of the tent to see "The greatest aggregation of stars ever."

Thousands of Lynn people will see the Barnum & Bailey show here, will laugh at the comedians, applaud the daring acrobats and view with wonder the marvelous acts that go with a big circus. Few of us, however, will get a chance to see the inside life of the peoples that make the circus what it is.

INSIDE STORY OF LIFE WITH A BIG CIRCUS.

Let us lift the magic veil, therefore, and make the acquaintance of Billy as he is washing off his paint and powder, while his faithful frau (in circus parlance Saretta, the dare-devil equestrienne) sits by placidly darning his socks. And here we can see "Mother" Talbot, keeping a watchful eye on her boys and girls in the sawdust ring.

Then a peep into the heartjoys and heartaches, the family life and everyday cares and doings of the women and children of the "canvas" whose "lines are cast" in wandering up and down the land, in never ending travel and travail, but who maintain a "home life" even under these conditions.

Listen then to the story of May Wirth, the pretty equestrienne with the Barnum & Bailey Circus.

"When a woman can roast a chicken in a chafin dish, serve a square meal upon a dress suit case laid in the middle of her sleeping car berth and keep her temper, I think she can safely be set down as a domestic. Even when she can do a couple of turns every day on the flying trapeze or on a bare-backed horse, make all her circus costumes, darn her husband's socks, and take care of a baby or two, she is entitled to the blue ribbon for housewifeliness, according to my mind."

"Yet the women of the circus claim no credit for doing these things. Domestic life under difficulties is so common among us that we take it for granted."

"Fifty of us girls were exchanging our neat walking suits for pluk (lights and spangles when a visitor entered our canvas dressing room the other day. We hauled out the only spare chair in the enclosure and made room between two trunks. Eugene Silbon, our 'Cleopatra' sat before one of them heading her eyelashes. In front of the other, Ella Bradna was sewing a pink satin slipper, soleless, heelless, soft as a baby's foot. For I must feel the horses back through it, you know," she said.

"Now tell me," I recall this visitor began, "how you manage to be domestic living in a Pullman sleeper and in a tent."

"Cleopatra's" reply told the story of our life under canvas.

Canned Domesticity.

"It's a sort of canned, highly concentrated domesticity. I admit it takes practice to cook over an alcohol lamp with the train running at high speed, and still more to sit tailor fashion round a suit case in a berth that's six by three. But we get used to managing in small spaces."

"Of course the cook tent is well enough, but you sometimes long for a favorite dish, and a good, crisp salad and your own special drip coffee. Um-mmm! But the spaghetti and Creole chicken that the Spanish dancer and her mother sometimes treat us to, taste good! Often we have our feast out in a field or in the woods."

"Domestic! Why there isn't a housewife in Lynn that sews or cooks or embroiders more industriously than we people of the circus."

"And our Pullman berths are dressed up in counterpanes, pillow shams, wall-pockets and window curtains of our own manufacture. Each one is in a different color scheme. Perhaps it is because we have to be domestic under difficulties that we take all the more pride and pleasure in it."

Miss Bradna had finished her slipper and was tying it on with ribbons wrapped around and around the ankle, ready for her ride on the flying white horse.

"Costumes keep us busy," she added, "always they have to be mended or retouched. Tights get soiled from one wearing in the ring and must be dyed every time the year washed. We do all that ourselves. The little slippers are easy to make. See—we all carry a pattern around with us."

Circus Girl's Trunk.

"I suppose a whole book could be written about the circus girl's trunk. It is water-tight and smash-proof. It is divided and subdivided. Everything imaginable and such that is unimaginable, from lip rouge to frying pans, is stowed therein. Each inch of space seems to be conserved and catalogued. Yet every woman in the show finds room to carry a bookfull of photographs of her homefolks, her house out in Oshkosh or Hickman's Corners and her cousin's youngest baby."

"If you want to start a trapeze artist or a slack wire walker, talking, do not ask her questions about

LIVING IN HER TWO BY THREE TRUNK

the circus. Ask her about her sister's twins or her own small son at school in the West or her husband's tendency to wear his socks out 'at the heel, for circus people are the 'homeliest' people in the world. They know little about lobster palaces, but much about open air chicken broils and sewing fests.

"The circus women sew, too, and many do exceedingly pretty fancy work. They don't have to keep their circus clothes in order. The circus 'mother' does that, but they do all the mending of personal garments, and besides keep some sort of pick-up work on hand. There isn't a home of a circus woman that is not furnished with the covers of some sort that she has made during the season. One seldom sees a circus woman in a city after the season is over. She flees from it. She detests the noise and bustle, and almost without exception, the circus women live in little country towns, where they practiced their professional work during the winter, go early to bed, and are in fine physical and mental condition for the spring call to duty."

"Mrs. Emma Talbot is the mother of the Barnum & Bailey circus. Her life is devoted particularly to the welfare of the women performers under the tents. Her official duty is in matron of the women's dressing-rooms. She supervises their wardrobe, mends sudden breaches in the tarlatan and be-spangled skirts and cares for us, her charges, in case of illness or accident. Should an equestrienne fall from her horse, it is Mrs. Talbot who brings the black cup of coffee, which is the only stimulant ever given to the women athletes in such an emergency.

"At night after the performance she presides over the performers' luncheon of sandwiches and tea, which the circus women enjoy in the sleeping car. In short she is a general chaperone, hospital nurse, friend and counsellor in one. Men and women come to her with petty troubles that are bound to occur in the uncertain and strenuous existence they lead. She is cheery sympathetic, or admonitory, as the occasion may require, and no one leaves her presence without being an emergency."

Makes it possible to increase the habit of home owning. The Lima Home and Savings Association solicits more deposits from boys and girls, from the employees of the shops and factories and clerks of Lima and from the farmers of Allen and surrounding counties. This Association is being called upon to make more loans for the purpose of building homes than it has money to supply. Since the American Home is the Safeguard of American Liberty, every possessor of an idle dollar can contribute to a worthy cause by depositing it with an institution that believes in paying a rate of interest that is worth while. These idle dollars when accumulated will be loaned out to those wishing to on their own homes. Our 5 per cent rate of interest, compounded semi-annually, has been paid for many years, and this rate will be continued. Investigate our plan.

is handed to them with a particular kindly injunction to be moderate throughout the winter, and return the next year with as much unspendables consistent. This interest in the welfare has started many a circus man on the road to prosperity and fortune.

"A large part of Mrs. Talbot's duty is the care of the circus wardrobe and during the winter she votes her entire time to it. She is a throng of assistants. She is an expert at cutting a pattern for a costume of the animals as a fable modiste is at cutting the wardrobe of her clientele. She is in short, the worth of circus land. Although nearly 60 years of age, she is as lively as a woman half her age."

"The circus woman is modest and good. No town has any ideal to her, nor any stranger any individuality. It makes no difference whether the show is in New York City or Broken Bow. There is simply a performance to be given, and she is not playing to any one person. There is no 'he' in the audience to take her out after per afterwards. He wouldn't have the chance to speak to her. He wanted to, and if she seems to him an earth-born angel, she never knows it."

"No women could live more protected lives. The performance is over until 11 o'clock and all must be in the cars of the circus train by midnight, when the cars are usually locked for the night. Many of the circus women support families and save every penny, finding incentive and practical aid in the fact that they do not consider the expense of living in the necessary outlay."

ously than we people of the circus."

"And our Pullman berths are dressed up in counterpanes, pillow shams, wall-pockets and window curtains of our own manufacture. Each one is in a different color scheme. Perhaps it is because we have to be domestic under difficulties that we take all the more pride and pleasure in it."

Miss Bradna had finished her slipper and was tying it on with ribbons wrapped around and around the ankle, ready for her ride on the flying white horse.

"Costumes keep us busy," she added, "always they have to be mended or retouched. Tights get soiled from one wearing in the ring and must be dyed every time the year washed. We do all that ourselves. The little slippers are easy to make. See—we all carry a pattern around with us."

Circus Girl's Trunk.

"I suppose a whole book could be written about the circus girl's trunk. It is water-tight and smash-proof. It is divided and subdivided. Everything imaginable and such that is unimaginable, from lip rouge to frying pans, is stowed therein. Each inch of space seems to be conserved and catalogued. Yet every woman in the show finds room to carry a bookfull of photographs of her homefolks, her house out in Oshkosh or Hickman's Corners and her cousin's youngest baby."

"If you want to start a trapeze artist or a slack wire walker, talking, do not ask her questions about the circus. Ask her about her sister's twins or her own small son at school in the West or her husband's tendency to wear his socks out 'at the heel, for circus people are the 'homeliest' people in the world. They know little about lobster palaces, but much about open air chicken broils and sewing fests."

"The circus women sew, too, and many do exceedingly pretty fancy work. They don't have to keep their circus clothes in order. The circus 'mother' does that, but they do all the mending of personal garments, and besides keep some sort of pick-up work on hand. There isn't a home of a circus woman that is not furnished with the covers of some sort that she has made during the season. One seldom sees a circus woman in a city after the season is over. She flees from it. She detests the noise and bustle, and almost without exception, the circus women live in little country towns, where they practiced their professional work during the winter, go early to bed, and are in fine physical and mental condition for the spring call to duty."

"Mrs. Emma Talbot is the mother of the Barnum & Bailey circus. Her life is devoted particularly to the welfare of the women performers under the tents. Her official duty is in matron of the women's dressing-rooms. She supervises their wardrobe, mends sudden breaches in the tarlatan and be-spangled skirts and cares for us, her charges, in case of illness or accident. Should an equestrienne fall from her horse, it is Mrs. Talbot who brings the black cup of coffee, which is the only stimulant ever

"At night after the performance she presides over the performers' luncheon of sandwiches and tea, which the circus women enjoy in the sleeping car. In short she is a general chaperone, hospital nurse, friend and counsellor in one. Men and women come to her with petty troubles that are bound to occur in the uncertain and strenuous existence they lead. She is cheery sympathetic, or admonitory, as the occasion may require, and no one leaves her presence without being

To Increase the Habit of Saving

Makes it possible to increase the habit of home owning. The Lima Home and Savings Association solicits more deposits from boys and girls, from the employees of the shops and factories and clerks of Lima and from the farmers of Allen and surrounding counties. This Association is being called upon to make more loans for the purpose of building homes than it has money to supply. Since the American Home is the Safeguard of American Liberty, every possessor of an idle dollar can contribute to a worthy cause by depositing it with an institution that believes in paying a rate of interest that is worth while. These idle dollars when accumulated will be loaned out to those wishing to on their own homes. Our 5 per cent rate of interest, compounded semi-annually, has been paid for many years, and this rate will be continued. Investigate our plan.

"A large part of Mrs. Talbot's duty is the care of the circus wardrobe and during the winter she votes her entire time to it. She has a throng of assistants. She is an expert at cutting a pattern for a costume of the animals as a fashionable modiste is at cutting the wardrobe of her clientele. She is in short, the 'mother' of the circus. Although nearly 60 years of age, she is as lively as a woman half her age."

"The circus woman is modest and good. No town has any ideal to her, nor any stranger any individuality. It makes no difference whether the show is in New York City or Broken Bow. There is simply a performance to be given, and she is not playing to any one person. There is no 'he' in the audience to take her out after the performance. She wouldn't have the chance to speak to her. He wanted to, and if she seems to him an earth-born creature she never knows it."

Dissension Exists in Democratic Ranks

JIMMIE COX IS EXPECTED TO IRON 'EM ALL OUT

INVESTIGATION OF DUGAN IS RUMORED
MUMBUS GOSSIPS PICK LIMA AS PLACE FOR OPENING CAMPAIGN

By Roger B. Stafford
Lima, July 20.—Although the perplexing wrinkles in the Democracy have been ironed by James M. Cox, of Dayton, nominee for governor, yet a few dissensions are reported from various parts of the state. Politicians here are slightly fearful over the outcome of the election of two central committees in Len county but all seem hopeful that nothing further will arise which may cause a breach in the party there. This, it is expected, will be smoothed out and an amicable agreement reached when both sides have a chance to explain to the secretary of state. Another stumbling block is the question of an endorsement of the 1-cent-tax law in the state platform. An explanation over the question of this is reported to be coming from Congressman J. W. Goeke, of Wapakoneta, with whom the platform was entrusted by Governor Harmon. The Governor

Nature's Creation Wins Battle Against Tuberculosis

Ashley, Ohio.
I feel it my duty to write you at Nature's Creation has done for my daughter Frances. In the last part of last winter she was taken with the grippe, from which she did not entirely recover, and in which she was obliged to take her bed. She was unable to keep food or medicine on her stomach, was losing weight and strength fast, seems she could not survive. Was in this condition, growing weaker all the time. All we were told that she had tuberculosis. Knowing what Nature's Creation had done for some of our town, we decided at once to send for the medicine. The first dose agreed with her stomach, and now, after taking not the three bottles, is in better health than for years. Has a good appetite, and can eat anything and no more trouble with her stomach. Has no more chills, fever, no night sweats, cough most gone, and up early in the morning, practicing her music, and with the work, and in fact, use her own language, feels better than ever in her life, as she says had some liver and stomach trouble, which seems to have left her, too. The picture I am sending with this testimonial was taken a few days ago. You can see how well she is looking, while only three months ago was scarcely able to raise her head off the pillow. She lost 21 pounds and in nine weeks has gained 24 1/2 pounds—2 1/2 pounds heavier than she has ever weighed. I wish we were able to reach any person suffering with this dreadful disease, and tell them that it has done for Frances, and that we are satisfied that it has saved her life. MR. AND MRS. C. H. EARL.
Ashley, Ohio, June 18, 1912.
Miss Aleene Brown, Lima, Ohio.
Your letter just received and I hasten to answer. I am glad to be able to tell you that every word in the above testimonial is true. I saved my life when I was taken up by the doctors. I can refer you to Mrs. R. E. Morgan of Harrod, O., who saw me when I was so low. When I first took Nature's Creation I was so weak I could scarcely take a cup of water across the street. I would advise you if in any medicine to send at once. I will find them a nice company with. Hoping you will take Nature's Creation and receive the good I did from it. I am respectfully yours, Frances Earl, Ashley, O.

Valuable booklet containing full information regarding the use of Nature's Creation in the treatment of tuberculosis and the conditions which lead to it, such as bronchitis, impure blood, run-down system and asthma, will be sent free of all charges. Address, H. H. 134 north Elizabeth street, Lima, Ohio.

nor says the tax endorsement plank was in the document when it left his hands but where it was dropped is a mystery. Mayor J. Newton Baker, of Cleveland is one of the hottest opponents to the Smith law as the Forest City is reported to be $600,000 in debt this year as the result of the limitations imposed on it. The administrations of other large cities also are complaining about it but chiefly only against the clause which limits the amount of the income and not the rate.

It was announced here this week that the Ohio Federation of Labor will boost the new constitution and aid in the publicity work among laboring men. A meeting will be held tomorrow when the various proposals to receive the endorsement of the Federation will be selected. The initiative and referendum will be one of the favored amendments and probably the liquor license. The Socialist members of the Federation are said to be strong for the woman suffrage proposal.

Ralph Miller, of Findlay, was among the list of successful applicants for dentists' certificate at the recent state examination.

"Lima is having the most remarkable growth in her history," said S. R. Armstrong Jr., of Lima who is directing a corps of demonstrators of Nature's Hair Restorer, this week. "A new addition has just been laid out in West Lima and all indications are that when the 1920 census is taken the city will be well up in the ranks of Ohio municipalities."

"The city is growing industrially and this tends only to multiply the population along larger lines. We Limaites are confident that some people from other sections of Ohio will be forced to lift their hats to us in the near future."

Rumor about the capital hath it that J. B. Dugan, inspector of public service commission, is to be investigated at the instance of one Governor Judson Harmon whose presidential chances failed to bloom at the Baltimore convention after he had nursed them for more than two years in the Ohio statehouse conservatory.

Mr. Dugan, it is said, has been unduly active against the said investigator of the rumored investigation, and did not contribute any fertilizing conditions to the thwarted boom.

Friends of Mr. Dugan fear he will suffer the same fate of former Oil Inspector, who was discharged but was chosen manager of Congressman Cox's gubernatorial campaign by progressive Democracy as a fling at the standpat element.

August 2 will probably see both of Ohio gubernatorial candidates in Lima from July 29 to August 3, under the direction of Secretary A. P. Sandles and Judge E. B. Dillon, and James M. Cox, Republican and Democratic candidates, may be in the party.

The tour is in the interest of the Ohio-Columbus centennial to be held there August 25 to September 3. The party will stop in Van Wert August 1 to hear William Jennings Bryan and Governor Thomas R. Marshall, governor of Indiana and Democratic vice presidential candidate, speak. They will attend a banquet in Fort Wayne that evening in honor of Governor and Mrs. Marshall and will visit Lima the next day.

The public service commission has authorized the Central Union (Bell) Telephone Company to sell its Ada exchange to a local company. Contracts for interchangesable service is provided for.

The state tax commission has raised the valuation of the Ohio Electric railway from $1,241,000 to $1,492,000.

Mrs. Edward Jones, of Columbus, while returning home from a visit with her brother at Delphos, Monday morning, was overcome with heat on a Lima Division Ohio Electric car near Springfield. Mrs. Jones who until recently lived at Vanadocia was taken to the city hospital at Springfield but had recovered sufficiently by Wednesday to be returned to her home. Mr. Jones is a retired farmer and civil war veteran.

Her Explanation. Queen Elizabeth was very much provoked when she found that her cousin, Mary queen of Scots, had been put to death. ## CAMPAIGN IS TO BE WAGED BY LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS

WHO HELD A MEETING IN THEIR CANVAS HEADQUARTERS LAST EVENING.

With hot weather and divers attractions depleting their ranks, a score of more members of the Allen County Political Equality Club held a mass meeting in the suffragists' new headquarters in their tented arena on west High street last night at which School Superintendent John Davidson was the chief speaker. Several other addresses were made by those present and enthusiasm ran high.

Mrs. W. E. Crayton, president of the local suffragette organization, declared yesterday that nightly meetings would be conducted at the tent throughout the summer. Miss Margaret Haley, a famous teacher and social and suffrage worker of Chicago, will be here on August 5th or 6th and remain here for several days assisting in the campaign.

While financially embarrassed, the local suffragettes are planning to prosecute a vigorous fight from now until September 3rd and a lively campaign is promised.

BATTLE WAS FOUGHT BEFORE COPS CAME

BUT THREE OF FIVE PARTICIPANTS WERE CAPTURED BY THE OFFICERS.

In a brawl at the rear of the Union block, east side of the square at 11.30 o'clock last night, three men were injured and two others whose identity police could not ascertain, fled at the approach of the officers. The three injured who were arrested registered as C. B. Myers, 21, D. E. Miller, 23 and John Myers, 40, an uncle of the former. All of the men were badly used up. A detail of patrolmen responded to a riot call shortly after 11.30. A fierce fight was being waged in the alley at the rear of the block and in it five men were participating. Beer bottles were the chief weapons of war and blood was spilled freely. John Myers was felled by a blow shortly before the arrival of the patrolmen. Officers found him at the side of the alley, lying on the ground. C. B. Myers, displayed an ugly lip, and a discolored optic, while D. E. Miller was slightly hurt about the face. Miller was released on a cash bond. Both the Myers men were intoxicated and an additional charge of drunkenness was placed against them.

Police were unable to learn the cause of the free-for-all and the trouble will be thrashed out in the mayor's court, Monday.

Mr. Robert Bower, of Ft. Wayne, formerly of Lima, visited friends here yesterday, en route to California.

SPECIAL CAR SERVICE.

McBeth has made arrangements with the Western Ohio railway company to run a special car from Lima to the park and return on Sunday afternoons and Sunday evenings, commencing Sunday, July 21, 1912, and every Sunday until further notice is given.

This additional car with the present service will give hourly service each way between Lima and McBeth park. Cars will leave Lima every hour from 7:34 p. m. until 10:34 p. m. for the park. Leave the park for Lima at 1:05 and hourly until 10:05, the last car leaving the park for Lima at 11:40. There is ample shelter on the grounds in case of rain. Fine picnic grounds; amusements; fishing; boat ing; pool; dancing; music. Buy your tickets at Western Ohio. Lima ticket office, 15c round trip.

Time When She Would Be Boss. At a long row of seaside bathing rooms, an important young man walked up to the door of one of the compartments, and knocking at the same, testily inquired: "When in thunder are you going to get those trousers on?" There was a faint giggle, and a silvery voice replied: "When I get married, I suppose." The young man frowned. He had mistaken the door—Exchange.

SWEETHEART CAUSES ARREST OF FORMER LOVER

ACCORDING TO THE STORY GIVEN AT POLICE STATION BY MAN ARRESTED

Because he refused to associate with her following his marriage, Mrs. Lora Rhoades, a Celina woman, caused the arrest of Carl Hill, 28, an Albert street man, on an assault charge last night, according to Hill's version of the difficulty. An assault charge preferred by Mrs. Rhoades has been pending since Thursday when the woman rushed breathlessly into the police station and informed officers that Hill had knocked her down.

Prior to that time Mrs. Hill had complained to the police that Mrs. Rhoades had threatened her life and that she desired protection. Hill was arrested last night and escorted to the central station. He told Mayor Shook that the difficulty was all spite work on the part of Mrs. Rhoades. He said she was a rejected sweetheart of his and that following his marriage, he snubbed her. Last week, when he refused to accompany her on the streets, she fell to the pavement in a faint. This, he said, accounted for the injuries she exhibited when she filed the complaint.

Hill was released on his own recognizance to appear in mayor's court, Monday morning to settle the difficulty. Mrs. Rhoades is said to be a dressmaker.

Men and Matters

C. E. Stiles made a business trip to Trumbull county last week and reports crops fair, having seen fields of wheat that will average 20 to 25 bushels to the acre.

Mayor Corbin Shook denies the published report that he is soon to become a full-fledged motorist and enter the ranks of the "high-brows" and "aristocrats."

"The report is groundless," declared the mayor last night. "In the first place, I am not in a position, financially, to make such a purchase, and again I haven't the least desire to own one of the 'buzz wagons,'" he continued.

Two accidents occurring on Bellefontaine avenue, late Friday evening, were unattended by serious results, although several people narrowly escaped injury. Returning from the races shortly after 5 o'clock Frank Eaton, insurance agent, drove his machine in front of a west bound car. The machine was struck and hurled forward a short distance colliding with two other rigs in the road. Damage to any of the equipages was only slight.

Near the same spot, Dr. Oliver Steiner, driving his machine east, side-swiped an auto owned by the Rinser brothers of Kalida, and damaged the machine slightly. Occupants of both automobiles were shaken up, but no one was injured. Difficulties were adjusted and the motorists proceeded on their way.

Plans were perfected Saturday afternoon by the committee Messrs. C. C. Cowles, W. H. Howell, and C. W. Preble, for the grand field day meet and family basket picnic to be given at the City park on Thursday afternoon.

"The city is growing industrially and this tends only to multiply the population along larger lines. We Limaites are confident that some people from other sections of Ohio will be forced to lift their hats to us in the near future."

Rumor about the capital hath it that J. B. Dugan, inspector of public service commission, is to be investigated at the instance of one Governor Judson Harmon whose presidential chances failed to bloom at the Baltimore convention after he had nursed them for more than two years in the Ohio statehouse conservatory.

Mr. Dugan, it is said, has been unduly active against the said investigator of the rumored investigation, and did not contribute any fertilizing conditions to the thwarted boom.

Friends of Mr. Dugan fear he will suffer the same fate of former Oil Inspector, who was discharged but was chosen manager of Congressman Cox's gubernatorial campaign by progressive Democracy as a fling at the standpat element.

August 2 will probably see both of Ohio gubernatorial candidates in Lima from July 29 to August 3, under the direction of Secretary A. P. Sandles and Judge E. B. Dillon, and James M. Cox. Republican and Democratic candidates, may be in the party.

The tour is in the interest of the Ohio-Columbus centennial to be held there August 25 to September 3. The party will stop in Van Wert August 1 to hear William Jennings Bryan and Governor Thomas R. Marshall, governor of Indiana and Democratic vice presidential candidate, speak. They will attend a banquet in Fort Wayne that evening in honor of Governor and Mrs. Marshall and will visit Lima the next day.

The public service commission has authorized the Central Union (Bell) Telephone Company to sell its Ada exchange to a local company. Contracts for interchangeable service is provided for.

The state tax commission has raised the valuation of the Ohio Electric railway from $1,241,000 to $1,492,000.

Mrs. Edward Jones, of Columbus, while returning home from a visit with her brother at Delphos, Monday morning, was overcome with heat on a Lima Division Ohio Electric car near Springfield. Mrs. Jones who until recently lived at Vanadocia was taken to the city hospital at Springfield but had recovered sufficiently by Wednesday to be returned to her home. Mr. Jones is a retired farmer and civil war veteran.

Her Explanation. Queen Elizabeth was very much provoked when she found that her cousin, Mary queen of Scots, had been put to death. "I can't help it if people will lose their heads at critical moments," her majesty petulantly exclaimed. "As far as I am concerned, the occurrence was entirely accidental."

CAMPAIGN IS TO BE WAGED BY LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS

WHO HELD A MEETING IN THEIR CANVAS HEADQUARTERS LAST EVENING.

With hot weather and divers attractions depleting their ranks, a score of more members of the Allen County Political Equality Club held a mass meeting in the suffragists' new headquarters in their tented arena on west High street last night at which School Superintendent John Davidson was the chief speaker. Several other addresses were made by those present and enthusiasm ran high.

Mrs. W. E. Crayton, president of the local suffragette organization, declared yesterday that nightly meetings would be conducted at the tent throughout the summer. Miss Margaret Haley, a famous teacher and social and suffrage worker of Chicago, will be here on August 5th or 6th and remain here for several days assisting in the campaign.

While financially embarrassed, the local suffragettes are planning to prosecute a vigorous fight from now until September 3rd and a lively campaign is promised.

BATTLE WAS FOUGHT BEFORE COPS CAME

BUT THREE OF FIVE PARTICIPANTS WERE CAPTURED BY THE OFFICERS.

In a brawl at the rear of the Union block, east side of the square at 11.30 o'clock last night, three men were injured and two others whose identity police could not ascertain, fled at the approach of the officers. The three injured who were arrested registered as C. B. Myers, 21, D. E. Miller, 23 and John Myers, 40, an uncle of the former. All of the men were badly used up.

A detail of patrolmen responded to a riot call shortly after 11.30. A fierce fight was being waged in the alley at the rear of the block and in it five men were participating. Beer bottles were the chief weapons of war and blood was spilled freely. John Myers was felled by a blow shortly before the arrival of the patrolmen. Officers found him at the side of the alley, lying on the ground. C. B. Myers, displayed an ugly lip, and a discolored optic, while D. E. Miller was slightly hurt about the face. Miller was released on a cash bond. Both the Myers men were intoxicated and an additional charge of drunkenness was placed against them.

Police were unable to learn the cause of the free-for-all and the trouble will be thrashed out in the mayor's court, Monday.

Mr. Robert Bower, of Ft. Wayne, formerly of Lima, visited friends here yesterday, en route to California.

SPECIAL CAR SERVICE.

Between Lima and McBeth Lake.

By reason of the extra heavy Sunday passenger traffic on Sunday afternoons and Sunday evenings between Lima and McBeth Park, W. A. McBeth has made arrangements with the Western Ohio railway company to run a special car from Lima to the park and return on Sunday afternoons and Sunday evenings, commencing Sunday, July 21, 1912, and every Sunday until further notice is given.

This additional car with the present service will give hourly service each way between Lima and McBeth park. Cars will leave Lima every hour from 7:34 p. m. until 10:34 p. m. for the park. Leave the park for Lima at 1.05 and hourly until 10.05, the last car leaving the park for Lima at 11.40.

There is ample shelter on the grounds in case of rain. Fine picnic grounds; amusements; fishing; boat ing; pool; dancing; music. Buy your tickets at Western Ohio. Lima ticket office, 15c round trip.

Time When She Would Be Boss.

At a long row of seaside bathing rooms, an important young man walked up to the door of one of the compartments, and knocking at the same, testily inquired: "When in thunder are you going to get those trousers on?" There was a faint giggle, and a silvery voice replied: "When I get married, I suppose." The young man frowned. He had mistaken the door.—Exchange.

SWEETHEART CAUSES ARREST OF FORMER LOVER

ACCORDING TO THE STORY GIVEN AT POLICE STATION BY MAN ARRESTED

Because he refused to associate with her following his marriage, Mrs. Lora Rhoades, a Celina woman, caused the arrest of Carl Hill, 28, an Albert street man, on an assault charge last night, according to Hill's version of the difficulty. An assault charge preferred by Mrs. Rhoades has been pending since Thursday when the woman rushed breathlessly into the police station and informed officers that Hill had knocked her down.

Prior to that time Mrs. Hill had complained to the police that Mrs. Rhoades had threatened her life and that she desired protection. Hill was arrested last night and escorted to the central station. He told Mayor Shook that the difficulty was all spite work on the part of Mrs. Rhoades. He said she was a rejected sweetheart of his and that following his marriage, he snubbed her. Last week, when he refused to accompany her on the streets, she fell to the pavement in a faint. This, he said, accounted for the injuries she exhibited when she filed the complaint.

Hill was released on his own recognizance to appear in mayor's court, Monday morning to settle the difficulty. Mrs. Rhoades is said to be a dressmaker.

Men and Matters

C. E. Stiles made a business trip to Trumbull county last week and reports crops fair, having seen fields of wheat that will average 20 to 25 bushels to the acre.

Mayor Corbin Shook denies the published report that he is soon to become a full-fledged motorist and enter the ranks of the "high-brows" and "aristocrats."

"The report is groundless," declared the mayor last night. "In the first place, I am not in a position, financially, to make such a purchase, and again I haven't the least desire to own one of the 'buzz wagons,'" he continued.

Two accidents occurring on Bellefontaine avenue, late Friday evening, were unattended by serious results, although several people narrowly escaped injury. Returning from the races shortly after 5 o'clock Frank Eaton, insurance agent, drove his machine in front of a west bound car. The machine was struck and hurled forward a short distance colliding with two other rigs in the road. Damage to any of the equipages was only slight.

Near the same spot, Dr. Oliver Steiner, driving his machine east, side-swiped an auto owned by the Rinser brothers of Kalida, and damaged the machine slightly. Occupants of both automobiles were shaken up, but no one was injured. Difficulties were adjusted and the motorists proceeded on their way.

Plans were perfected Saturday afternoon by the committee Messrs. C. C. Cowles, W. H. Howell, and C. W. Preble, for the grand field day meet and family basket picnic to be given at the City park on Thursday afternoon.

BEEN AVAILABLE FOR
AND SAYS HE WILL PROCEED AT ONCE ON IMPROVEMENTS
AT RESERVOIR

Director of Public Service Frank E. Harman, returned last night from Chicago where he has been visiting the furniture markets and on learning of the information that had been published during his absence relative to conditions at the water works storage reservoir, stated to the News that plans were already on file in his office for improvements that are to be made at the big lake and will be started at once.

Mr. Harman stated that the delay in starting the work planned at the reservoir had been delayed because of the unavailability of the funds needed to pay the cost of the construction of the proposed retaining wall which is intended to keep the sewage from the County Infirmary out of the intake channel at the lake. He states that the funds needed only became available a few weeks ago and that the work might have been started before this time had he not been absent from the city.

TWO MEN FOUND
ON RAILROAD TRACK

Lying across the Pennsylvania railroad tracks with his head stretched over a rail, John Thront, 26, a laborer, was found by Patrolman Grant at the Pine street crossing at 1:30 this morning. Thront was drunk and lay in a dangerous position. He was removed to the central station.

Early morning pedestrians discovered a man who registered as Geo. F. Davis, an auto repair man, in a similar position lying across the St. Johns street crossing of the Chicago and Erie railroad. A freight train was approaching and only the timely arrival of police saved the man from an untimely death beneath the wheels of the locomotive. Officer B. G. Miller, of Monroe township, discovered the man and turned him over to Captain Earnst.

Davis was incarcerated on a drunkenness charge.

SHOW MOVIES
IN CHURCHES

(By United Press)

Rome, July 20.—Vatican circles are still somewhat surprised over the recent decision of the Sacred Congregation of Rites to permit the use of moving picture shows in Catholic churches for the purpose of religious instruction. The fact that the same congregation less than a year ago refused to permit a similar use of phonographs was figured as a precedent hard to overcome. The demand for permission to use the moving picture however, was almost world wide. Within the past few hundred years hundreds of Catholic societies have been organized for the express purpose of instruction in the Catholic religion by means of moving pictures. In many of the villages and country districts, especially in Europe, the local church was the only building suitable where the pictures could be displayed.

As a consequence, the Congregation of the Rites finally granted the permission under certain restrictions. These provide that the sacred most always be removed from the church first, that the women and men sit in different parts of the church, that the interior be kept illuminated except when the pictures are actually being shown and that the parish priest always be present. The bishop of the diocese also has the right to refuse permission for the moving pictures when he deems it best.

TRYING TO SAVE
THEIR OWN BACON

Greenville, O., July 20.—That counsel for Senators Isaac E. Huffman, of Oxford, and L. R. Andrews, of Ironton, convicted in the recent legislative bribery cases, is seeking a new assignment of Judges in Columbus to preside at the retrials was admitted here today by Judge Allread, of the Ohio circuit court.

Judge Allread said that the request had not come before the court officially, but that he had heard such a request was being prepared and had so notified Chief Justice L. H. Wren of the Circuit court at Cleveland, by letter. Judge Allread said that the Circuit court would sit at Dayton all of next week, at which time he said such a request would be entertained if made officially.

WAGNER

SEE GREAT SHIPMENT OF
SPRING WHEAT COMING.

LOCALS ARE GUESSING THAT BOTTOM HAS NOW BEEN REACHED.

(By Wagner Wire To The

Lima Daily News.)

Chicago, July 20.—For the first time of this series of the wheat decline newspaper reports suggest that the market rally may be around the bottom for the moment. Further final news from the Northwest is now desirable and the arrival of an export demand is a sign to let up on selling. While corn has made a big condition jump the temperature of the week past was not regarded as too low. On Friday the temperature in many sections failed to cross 66 to 72. There are a number of tempting bull points on the news, but sentiment is a peculiar thing.

Quite a number of the locals are guessing at the close of the week that wheat is about low enough. Winter wheat is about four cents out of line and spring wheat about nine cents. Exports during the week were very small and at the close the best buying came from the shorts. There is no sign of a hot wave over Canada and the Northwest, and this is a sentiment on which many base their speculation that the crop will not sink lower. R. E. Sterling, of the Northwestern Miller tells me Kansas has raised 90,000,000 bushels. There is no outlet for Kansas and Nebraska in Texas or Oklahoma this year and the North will hardly be infatuated with loading up on Southwestern wheat ever known is in sight.

At the present, everything considered, a rally of one cent on any grains be considered liberal. Elevator men say wheat cutting in North Dakota and Southern Minnesota will start the coming week. The war reports from Turkey and the Dardanelles have had their effect but the coming week's market will show that it was destined to be short lived.

Washington, July 20.—General John C. Black, head of the United States Civil Service commission announced today that just as soon as congress provides the funds he will begin an investigation into the charges of pernicious political activity made against seventy employees. The men are all in the South and charges arise largely out of the part they are said to have taken in the Taft-Roosevelt pre-convention scramble for delegator. As soon as the money is available agents will be sent out to make an investigation of the facts.

GREEN BEANS AND TOMATOES

HOLDS FIRM.

Eggs took the expected jump of a cent last night on the local market, going from 22c to 23c retail. Prediction that they will reach the 26c mark by the middle of August now seems good and certain it is that there will be no decline throughout the remainder of the summer. Butter is coming in fairly well and is holding its new price of 23c a pound. No special change is expected within the next few weeks.

Saturday night marketers found tomatoes on the decline, the home-grown variety coming in quite nicely now. They have dropped in a day from 10c to 8c per pound.

Measure Motor Car
Efficiency
BY THIS STANDARD

- (1) Has this car every essential for power, endurance, safety, ease and low up-keep?
- (2) Does it offer a "completeness" that includes every added convenience of proven merit?
- (3) Do present owners regard it highly enough to make a second purchase?

When you make this searching inquiry into the R. C. H. you may dismiss cars of lower and equal price and rest your comparison with cars of higher cost. At the outset the beauty and exquisite grace of the R. C. H. body design has signified the most of refinement and comfort. They have compared most favorably the long stroke engine motor and other high grade features that have been designed and used for your safety and convenience, with similar parts of costlier cars.

They were confronted with the R. C. H. equipment, including:

Non-skid tires—32x3 1/2.

12-inch Bullet electric head lights, double parabolic lens.

6-inch Bullet electric side lights with parabolic lens.

Bosch magneto.
Warner Auto-meter.
Remountable rims.
Extra rim and holders.
Tally-ho horn.
Jiffy curtains—up or down instantaneously.
Top, Top Cover, Windshield.
Rear view mirror.
Tool-kit, Jack, Tire Repair kit, Pump.
And they stood aghast at a price of less than half what they considered sufficient to produce such a standard of efficiency.

The purchase of the R. C. H. by these people who can afford more proves that they can not buy better, and we believe beyond a doubt they have chosen carefully and wisely.

You should call on us for a demonstration of this wonderful car.

ONCE ON IMPROVEMENTS
AT RESERVOIR

Director of Public Service Frank E. Harman, returned last night from Chicago where he has been visiting the furniture markets and on learning of the information that had been published during his absence relative to conditions at the water works storage reservoir, stated to the News that plans were already on file in his office for improvements that are to be made at the big lake and will be started at once.

Mr. Harman stated that the delay in starting the work planned at the reservoir had been delayed because of the unavailability of the funds needed to pay the cost of the construction of the proposed retaining wall which is intended to keep the sewage from the County Infirmary out of the intake channel at the lake. He states that the funds needed only became available a few weeks ago and that the work might have been started before this time had he not been absent from the city.

TWO MEN FOUND

Lying across the Pennsylvania railroad tracks with his head stretched over a rail, John Thront, 26, a laborer, was found by Patrolman Grant at the Pine street crossing at 1:30 this morning. Thront was drunk and lay in a dangerous position. He was removed to the central station.

Early morning pedestrians discovered a man who registered as Geo. F. Davis, an auto repair man, in a similar position lying across the St. Johns street crossing of the Chicago and Erie railroad. A freight train was approaching and only the timely arrival of police saved the man from an untimely death beneath the wheels of the locomotive. Officer B. G. Miller, of Monroe township, discovered the man and turned him over to Captain Earnst.

Davis was incarcerated on a drunkenness charge.

SHOW MOVIES
IN CHURCHES

(By United Press)

Rome, July 20.—Vatican circles are still somewhat surprised over the recent decision of the Sacred Congregation of Rites to permit the use of moving picture shows in Catholic churches for the purpose of religious instruction. The fact that the same congregation less than a year ago refused to permit a similar use of phonographs was figured as a precedent hard to overcome. The demand for permission to use the moving picture however, was almost world wide. Within the past few hundred years hundreds of Catholic societies have been organized for the express purpose of instruction in the Catholic religion by means of moving pictures. In many of the villages and country districts, especially in Europe, the local church was the only building suitable where the pictures could be displayed.

As a consequence, the Congregation of the Rites finally granted the permission under certain restrictions. These provide that the sacred most always be removed from the church first, that the women and men sit in different parts of the church, that the interior be kept illuminated except when the pictures are actually being shown and that the parish priest always be present. The bishop of the diocese also has the right to refuse permission for the moving pictures when he deems it best.

TRYING TO SAVE

Greenville, O., July 20.—That counsel for Senators Isaac E. Huffman, of Oxford, and L. R. Andrews, of Ironton, convicted in the recent legislative bribery cases, is seeking a new assignment of Judges in Columbus to preside at the retrials was admitted here today by Judge Allread, of the Ohio circuit court.

Judge Allread said that the request had not come before the court officially, but that he had heard such a request was being prepared and had so notified Chief Justice L. H. Wren of the Circuit court at Cleveland, by letter. Judge Allread said that the Circuit court would sit at Dayton all of next week, at which time he said such a request would be entertained if made officially.

WAGNER

SEE GREAT SHIPMENT OF

BOTTOM HAS NOW BEEN REACHED.

(By Wagner Wire To The Lima Daily News.)

Chicago, July 20.—For the first time of this series of the wheat decline newspaper reports suggest that the market rally may be around the bottom for the moment. Further final news from the Northwest is now desirable and the arrival of an export demand is a sign to let up on selling. While corn has made a big condition jump the temperature of the week past was not regarded as too low. On Friday the temperature in many sections failed to cross 66 to 72. There are a number of tempting bull points on the news, but sentiment is a peculiar thing. Quite a number of the locals are guessing at the close of the week that wheat is about low enough. Winter wheat is about four cents out of line and spring wheat about nine cents. Exports during the week were very small and at the close the best buying came from the shorts. There is no sign of a hot wave over Canada and the Northwest, and this is a sentiment on which many base their speculation that the crop will not sink lower. R. E. Sterling, of the Northwestern Miller tells me Kansas has raised 90,000,000 bushels. There is no outlet for Kansas and Nebraska in Texas or Oklahoma this year and the North will hardly be infatuated with loading up on Southwestern wheat ever known is in sight.

At the present, everything considered, a rally of one cent on any grains be considered liberal. Elevator men say wheat cutting in North Dakota and Southern Minnesota will start the coming week. The war reports from Turkey and the Dardanelles have had their effect but the coming week's market will show that it was destined to be short lived.

Washington, July 20.—General John C. Black, head of the United States Civil Service commission announced today that just as soon as congress provides the funds he will begin an investigation into the charges of pernicious political activity made against seventy employees. The men are all in the South and charges arise largely out of the part they are said to have taken in the Taft-Roosevelt pre-convention scramble for delegator. As soon as the money is available agents will be sent out to make an investigation of the facts.

EGGS UP

GAIN A CENT DURING WEEK AND ARE YET SCARCE.

HOLDS FIRM.

Eggs took the expected jump of a cent last night on the local market, going from 22c to 23c retail. Prediction that they will reach the 26c mark by the middle of August now seems good and certain it is that there will be no decline throughout the remainder of the summer. Butter is coming in fairly well and is holding its new price of 23c a pound. No special change is expected within the next few weeks.

Saturday night marketers found tomatoes on the decline, the home-grown variety coming in quite nicely now. They have dropped in a day from 10c to 8c per pound.

Measure Motor Car
Efficiency
BY THIS STANDARD

- (1) Has this car every essential for power, endurance, safety, ease and low up-keep?
- (2) Does it offer a "completeness" that includes every added convenience of proven merit?
- (3) Do present owners regard it highly enough to make a second purchase?

When you make this searching inquiry into the R. C. H. you may dismiss cars of lower and equal price and rest your comparison with cars of higher cost. At the outset the beauty and exquisite grace of the R. C. H. body design has signified the most of refinement and comfort. They have compared most favorably the long stroke engine motor and other high grade features that have been designed and used for your safety and convenience, with similar parts of costlier cars.

They were confronted with the R. C. H. equipment, including: Non-skid tires—32x3 1/2. 12-inch Bullet electric head lights, double parabolic lens. 6-inch Bullet electric side lights with parabolic lens.

Bosch magneto. Warner Auto-meter. Remountable rims. Extra rim and holders. Tally-ho horn. Jiffy curtains—up or down instantaneously. Top, Top Cover, Windshield Rear view mirror. Tool-kit, Jack, Tire Repair kit, Pump, Spare tire. And they stood aghast at a price of less than half what they considered sufficient to produce such a standard of efficiency. The purchase of the R. C. H. by these people who can afford more proves that they can not buy better, and we believe beyond a doubt they have chosen carefully and wisely. You should call on us for a demonstration of this wonderful car.

How a man will let a watch run and run till it finally stops? Then he says: "What do you suppose is the matter with that watch? That is the first time it has ever stopped."

GARDENDALE

Are You Awake to the Certainty of Lima's Growth?

The history of every industrial center in the United States proves that once a city passes the 30,000 mark in population, the time necessary to reach 60,000 population is comparatively short. There is not a vacant store or unemployed man in Lima today, few vacant houses. Yet within a year the Lima Locomotive Works will double its capacity, spending $2,600,000 for improvements, employing 4,000 men. The Willys-Gramm Co. will bring unexampled growth to Lima, as the Willys-Overland has to Toledo and Indianapolis and the Willys-Garford to Ellyria. These thousands of well paid workers must have homes. The history of Gardendale will be that of Homewood, E. H. Close's great Toledo sub-division, where nearly a hundred homes are completed or in course of erection, largely as a result of the extension of the great Overland plant.

Natural conditions have endowed Gardendale with every perquisite.

Skillful engineers and landscape gardeners have worked their will--backed by ample capital. Located directly in the path of Lima's greatest growth, where values are swiftly and surely increasing. Improved with wide macadam boulevards, winding walks of cement, several miles of substantial artistic fencing, and ample sewerage facilities, Gardendale is ready for the erection of modern homes.

E. H. CLOSE

is a man, who sees great affairs in a large way. A close student of the growth of modern municipalities, he has applied his knowledge and skill to the development of large tracts of residence property, in America's fastest growing cities. His courage and foresight have made fortunes for himself and those who have shared in his operations. Harvard Terrace--Halstead Heights and Homewood Park, beautiful suburban sections of Toledo--stand as monuments to this man's genius for selecting the most desirable real estate and improving it in a most thorough and substantial way.

Where Gardendale Is

It is probable that every resident of Lima knows the Boyer farm on the beautiful historic Allentown road. The best residences of Lima have been built out to this fertile farm. Within two blocks of the Market street car line, these 180 acres must soon be dotted with handsome homes. The car ride to Gardendale is one of the most beautiful in the Middle West. Come Sunday--our autos will meet every Wayne street car at Jameson avenue, and whirl you through the boulevards of Gardendale.

You Want a Lot In GARDENDALE

You want your share of Lima's prosperity. You know that Lima is the wonder city of the Middle West--that real estate values, within the corporate limits, have increased by hundreds of per cent in a few years. You must realize that Lima is but at the threshold of its development--that real estate values have but begun their onward march. Buy as generous a portion of Lima real estate as your means will permit, and profit by the increase in value. Protect yourself against the rapidly rising rentals, by owning a home of your own in GARDENDALE.

Making Degenerates

IN his penned confession to the murder of an innocent little girl in New York city, Nathan Swartz, a degenerate, declared that the prevailing styles in woman's dress and "the way they fix themselves up" drove him to commit the murder.

Nathan Swartz was a degenerate of the lowest type. At that, could it be that sensuousness in dress was the one thing that turned a weakened brain and made him such? Judge Ben Lindsay of the Denver court declares such a thing possible. Leading society writers and authorities on dress state that it could not occur, but do admit that extremes in the mode of dress of today are dangerous. Certainly no one would want to openly accuse any woman of going to such extremes in style as to place temptation in the path of men not strong enough to resist and men so depraved that but a hint or suggestion is needed to drive them to murder. The modest woman, the good woman, the true-to-herself and her God woman is not guilty of vulgarity in dress. But the woman who is guilty places her sister's safety in jeopardy, just the same.

Self-thinking men are not tempted to crime by neither over-dress nor the caprices of women who go to extremes. Self-thinking men know that while clothes go a long way toward making the man, styles and the manner of carrying them out tell more plainly than words the calibre of a woman and draw a distinct line between a decent woman and one of the kind, unfortunately, that has her being in every city of any size. But it is not the self-thinking man of which women need fear. Their greatest danger will come from members of their own race so void of respect, so utterly brazen in manner that they encourage the overtures of unthinking men, quickly drive them to degeneracy and suffer either themselves or their sisters to the fiends they have helped to create.

The True Vacation

WE see in this world chiefly what we look for. A farmer going along examines the farms, an architect the buildings, a merchant the condition of the markets, a minister the churches.

He who is constantly looking for troubles will find them stretching off into gloomy wilderness. He who is watching for blessings will see them hither and thither extending in harvests of luxuriance.

In this vacation season be sure that you take a vacation from your troubles and worries. Leave them behind as the most useless of all your baggage. Away—away with all forebodings!

Light laden, go forth among nature. Look up toward the sky so brilliantly bright by day, or at night merry with ten thousand stars joining hands of light, with the earth in the ring, going round and round with gleam and dance and song, making old Time itself feel young again.

Go to the woods where the cooled and sifted breeze is scented with nature's fragrance and sweet with nature's songs.

Go to where the streams leap down off the rocks and their crystal heels clatter and glisten over the pure white pebbles.

Hark to the fluting of the winds and the long-meter psalm of the thunder. Hear the stiffl pattering of the fairy-footed rain dancing on the swaying leaves.

Look at the morning striding down the hills, ronting and skulking shadows. See evening drawing aside the curtains from heaven's wall of Jasper, sardonyx and amethyst.

Look on all this, and feel that God's in His place and that there's room in your soul for peace. Toledo News Bee.

When Safety Director Blank refused to confer with the city solicitor before handing out police orders it doesn't mean that he feels he is better qualified in law than the solicitor. Certainly not! It may only mean that the city solicitor is the same one that defeated him for the position.

A Socialist speaker on the square the other evening, said, "The high cost of living is a great question, a serious question, and—" but before he could finish an inquisitive bystander said, "We know darn well it's a serious question, but what's the answer?"

Here's another thing—If a convention won't nominate you, then you go right ahead and nominate a convention.

Don't complain if the sun comes out rather strongly these days. Just kindly remember that the roasting our crop has a little weather of its own kind coming to it.

We are still willing to agree with the young man who graduated last month, that "Beyond the Alps lies Italy," but Kansas is a good deal nearer home and they're rollerier like sin out there for harvest hands.

We have it upon reliable authority that it cost Christopher Columbus just $7,200 to discover America. In these days it costs more than that to get a United States senator across.

While it is, of course, perfectly correct to play the slice of watermelon through the mouth as though it were a mouth organ, care should be exercised to keep the juice out of the ears.

After a recent visit to Lakeview we have come to the conclusion that it may yet become necessary to employ Detective Burns to discover the ham in some of those restaurant sandwiches.

The reports that skirts will be made tighter next fall leads us to believe that they will be made out of elastic.

MISS LIMA: The up-to-date girl is the one who wants to show up to advantage, even in an auto spill.

Happy Thought. The city of Lima has got to have a good municipal administration if it has to get good municipal officials.

POLITICS and POLITICIANS.

(By J. W. Beall.)

The Fight between the Judge, Lindemann-Hughes-Hutchinson-Crites forces and the machine coterie in the democratic party in Allen county remains in statu quo.

As was predicted by the News last Tuesday, following the session of the democratic state central committee at Dayton, assistant secretary of state J. H. Secrest came up from Columbus during the week charged by his chief, secretary of state Charles Graves, with the very important duty of ironing out the ruffles and creases with which the party in this county is hampered in entering upon one of the most important campaigns in local, state and national history. Mr. Secrest was defeated for re-election to the state central committee in the Fourth district caucus at Toledo a few weeks ago because of the part he had taken in forcing machine methods down the throats of progressive, liberty loving, square-deal demanding democratic voters in Allen county. At the meeting of the state central committee in Columbus last Monday he was given a place on the state executive committee without protest being made, because him chief, a candidate on the state ticket asked to have him placed there. The candidates on the state ticket were allowed to select the executive committee; a privilege the candidates are entitled to, they being the men who must pay the freight. In this connection it should be remembered that under the terms of the agreement entered into between the warring factions in this county, the candidates were to be allowed to select one half the members of the county executive committee. This agreement was ratified by the county convention, a body of delegates which represented the party in this county, but that agreement was repudiated by the county central committee at the dictation of the party machine and the candidates for membership on the executive committee were turned down.

According to the views expressed by C. D. Crites in his statement of the case before the state central committee at Dayton, the fight in Allen county is not a contest between two factions but is a contest between the democratic party and the party machine. The machine is in control of the party machinery and will not permit the party to place candidate in the field that might threaten to take the reins from the hands of the machine men. That was the attitude of the machine at the time of the last primary campaign, when the names of forty-two candidates for precinct committee-men and delegates to the county convention were refused places on the primary ballots. In many instances there were more votes cast for the independent party candidates whose names were not on the ticket, than for the machine candidates whose names were printed on the ballots, but many of the independent candidates failed to be certified up as having been elected because of irregularities in the manner in which the names were written on the ballots. The expression of the people was apparent however and the members of the machine cannot but realize that the party does not want them to continue in possession of the party machinery.

The machine men will go before the state committee with the claim that they are entitled to recognition at the hands of the present organization because the legal status of the case is in their favor; that they have a majority of the members on the county committee and that this committee was elected at the party primary. True perhaps; but how did the machine secure the election of this majority of members on the county central committee? Not from the people. The people were against them. Realizing this situation they sought to make peace with the representatives of the anti-machine forces, by offering them equal representation in the party organization. In the interest of harmony, this agreement, suggested by the machine and drafted in the office of B. F. Welty, was accepted by the anti-machine forces, subject to the decision of the county convention. The convention met, and Ben F. Welty, as spokesman for the machine, declared he had agreed to the terms of the peace and harmony program and urged his friends in the convention to vote for it. The convention ratified to agreement and instructed the convention committee and the county central committee to carry out the program as outlined to the convention. The committee on the selection of delegates to the state, senatorial and judicial conventions carried out the provisions of the agreement as far as was in its power. The convention then ratified the program as carried out and left the county central committee to complete the work which was intended to insure party harmony throughout the fall campaign and ultimate victory for the party at the polls. But the machine, fearing that it would not be in position to distribute all of the party patronage which state and national victories would bring to the feet of Allen county democracy, grabbed the reins again after the county convention had adjourned, and, with the assistance, it is claimed, of Mr. Secrest, repudiated the peace contract, repudiated the agreement of its own making, repudiated the county candidates and repudiated the democratic party of Allen county.

Presidential candidate Woodrow Wilson was allowed to select the man of his choice to head a national campaign committee of his own choosing. Congressman James M. Cox, nominee for governor of Ohio, was granted permission to select the chairman of the state executive committee and the other candidates on the state ticket in Ohio were permitted to name the men to form the state executive committee. But in Allen county the party machine, whose power and authority has been perpetuated in spite of the will and wishes of the party, is greater than the party of either state or nation. The candidates on the county ticket selected only one half of the men who were to make up the personnel of the county executive committee but they were turned down by the machine which then proceeded to name other men and members of the machine coterie in repudiation of the peace program and in repudiation of the candidates. All this the machine will attempt to justify before the state central committee on the grounds that the "legal status is in favor of the machine."

What about the moral status? Are not the interests of the party in the county, state and nation of greater importance than the selfish interests of a few bosses who are determined to control the distribution of party patronage?

Mr. Secrest came up from Columbus on Thursday and landed on some of the representatives of the anti-machine forces of the party with a "compromise proposition." He offered to have three anti-machine men placed on the county executive committee and leave the executive committee organization, consisting of Milner C. Crossley, chairman; Walter Bowman, secretary, and C. R. Phillips, clerk—of the board of commissioners, treasurer, stand as it now is. "We have the legal status in our favor," said Mr. Secrest, "and can beat you in a hearing before the state central committee."

Mr. Secrest was informed that the leaders of the anti-machine forces had no authority to deviate from the program which was outlined before the county convention and ratified by that convention. The convention represented the democratic party of the county and the anti-machine men had no more right to repudiate the program it had laid down than had the machine. Mr. Secrest was in favor of granting greater concessions than the one he first offered and went to Delphos with an anti-machine representative to call upon Judge Lindemann. He was again told just what the county convention had ordered; the carrying out of the agreement which had been drafted by the machine in Ben Welty's office and approved by Mr. Welty before the convention. Mr. Secrest returned to Lima to confer with Mr. Welty and there the ropes for harmony and peace again were dashed against a stone wall of opposition. Mr. Welty still insists on the repudiation of the contract which he made with the democratic party, taking him at his word in the convention, approved and ratified.

The Rule or Ruin policy still obtains with Mr. Welty. The state central committee will again be called upon to determine whether Mr. Welty or the democratic party is supreme in the Allen county branch of the great national party of the people.

The anti-Harmon forces which were in absolute control of the meeting of the democratic state central committee which was held in the Phillips house at Dayton last Monday were more generously inclined in the matter of distributing recognition to the opposing faction in the selection of a state executive committee than the machine organization in this county was when it repudiated the agreement which was entered into at the recent county convention. The pro-Harmon men, although so very unpopular in the camp of the original Woodrow Wilsonites, and in spite of the fact that the Harmon supporters entertain bitter hatred for the men who opposed Gov. Harmon's candidacy for the presidential nomination, were given a majority in the membership of the state executive committee.

The members of this committee were selected much after the manner proposed by the anti-machine forces in this county at the time of the county convention; viz: selected by the candidates. Practically all of the nine members of the state committee were named by the candidates on the state ticket and these selections were ratified by the state central committee without a dissenting voice. In this county it was proposed, as stated, that the county central committee should name on half of the members of the county executive committee and the candidates be allowed to select the other seven. What could be fairer? The candidates are the men who, next to the party itself, have everything at stake. If the party loses out at an election it can "come back" but it is not often that the candidate can. Usually, after being defeated, the candidate is a dead one, if the expression may be permitted. Of course there are exceptions. There are the Hon. William J. Bryan and Edwin Blank, both of whom may be classified with the exceptions. They haven't either of them been able to secure election to office, but they never fail to come back, somewhere, somehow. Blank has been defeated on every ticket in the political lists of modern times except the prohibition and he seems to be glooming for that one now. Mr. Bryan sticks to the democratic crowd but hasn't had as great a degree of success as Blank, for the latter at least has a salaried job. Bryan should not be discouraged however, for if Woodrow Wilson is elected president, and he has a better chance than either Taft or Teddy to win that honor, the Nebraska man may be appointed secretary of public safety. Mr. Blank has another job. He is building a new house for mayor Shook.

Returning to the selection of executive committee and the part the candidates should be permitted to play in that game, it should not be forgotten while these machine men are making desperate efforts to retain control of the county organization in order to be in position to distribute patronage, that the poor down-trodden candidates are the lads who are compelled to pay the fiddlers—and also a whole lot of fellows who are not fiddlers. The candidates are required to dig down into their jeans and produce the long green which is used to defray the expenses of the campaign and it is certainly only fair that they be allowed to select the men who are to handle and dispense their hard earned coin.

The socialists of this county are to hold a convention next Friday for the purpose of placing a county ticket in the field for the coming fall election. The convention will be held in response to a call issued by the local executive organization and S. W. Morris, as chairman of the county organization will preside at the opening of the convention. It is understood that mayor Shook will not attend the convention.

Scott Wilkins, the socialist mayor of St. Marys, is the socialist's candidate for member of congress from this district, having been nominated as the opponent of congressman J. H. Goetz, of Auglaize county, democratic nominee for second term, and attorney John Cable, of this city, the republican nominee. Just see what a chance mayor Shook might have had if he had played fair with the socialists.

Dr. D. H. Sullivan, of this city, who came quite close to being the nominee on the democratic state ticket for Lieutenant Governor at the Toledo convention, is now at East Liverpool, O., paying a visit to his brother, Hon. John L. Sullivan, of that city. The latter is the nominee of the republican state convention for secretary of state.

My esteemed friend, Col. A. G. Collins, organizer of subordinate lodges in the Loyal Order of Moose, who makes his headquarters in this city, is an old personal friend of Cole L. Blease, governor of South Carolina, who is just now very much in the limelight in the South and who is said to have "said to the governor of North Carolina," etc. "Cole," as the governor is known throughout his home state, is an unique character, according to Col. Collins, who, while in a reminiscent mood yesterday, discussed the governor's political career. "In the very heat of his campaign for re-election to the office of governor," said Mr. Collins, "his enemies are investigating his doings during the first term and accuse the genial executive with selling pardons, grafting in connection with the defunct state liquor dispensary and a few other crimes. The committee has taken the precaution, however, to hold its meetings across the Savannah river, in Georgia, and in reply to the governor's polite invitation to "come back home" and be shot frankly admit that too close personal relations with "Cole" are more dangerous than with the deadly hook worm and the river rolls on between the antagonists.

and the governor is speaking from the hustings three times daily and talking in a way that the voters of the Palmetto state like and are finding time to deliver a few choice philippics to the marooned committee. Thus the long distance fight goes on with the chances that the idea of August, the primary election that settles the governorship held next month, will witness the passing of the ministerial-commercial newspaper trinity that opposing the re-election of the governor and the latter will continue in the same old way.

Of all the governors the state has had, Blease is the most picturesque.

Born in Newberry county, he received a meagre education in the poor common schools, entered Clemson college, a state institution, would have been graduated, but was accused of plagiarism, admitted the charge, was expelled. His parting shot to the faculty was "you can expel me but I will come back and when I do you all will know it."

He made good his promise and did "come back," as chairman of the legislative committee on college government, and when the committee was done the faculty was to "memory dear." "Coley" liked the game political and content with setting in the legislative halls, in 1900 was a candidate for lieutenant governor. He was defeated but not dismayed and as usual announced "I will come back." In 1910 he entered the lists as a candidate for governor against one of the most popular men of the state with all the clergy, rich mill owners and pre of the state against him. This combination would have taken the fight out of most men but he buttoned his Chesterfield about him and went up and down the state "saying things" that made the planters and work people "go up and take notice." He told them he was for white men's money and white men's schools and that a educated negro was a "sorry negro." He told them that he wanted the old "Johnnies" to have increased pensions for the only ones that did not love them were Yankees and negroes. He told them he would see child labor driven from the great cotton mills of the state and a marriage license law enacted and keep inviolate the prohibiting divorce. South Carolina is the only state where divorces are not granted. The preachers ranted, newspapers sailed him, and mill owners dictated dire things to result in should be elected but, the rav haired attorney rolled up a mass of nearly seven thousand votes at the polls on primary day and was later elected. After being inaugurated, he did the very thing he had promised to do. His administration solidified both his friends for him and his enemies against him and when his candidacy for second term was announced, political opponents immediately proceed to "gin" his political personal cotton. Among those who were engaged to feed the machine which was intended to do the ginning where they hoped to be enabled to operate against Blease without having their machinery purchased by an occasional stray bullet.

"One of the leading attributes of Governor Blease is loyalty. In 1911 he was elected as a representative to the session of the Grand Lodge of Rod Men, held in Cleveland. Subsequently he received an invitation to attend the convention of the governors of the several states in New York. He declined the honor, stating he had given his word that he would attend the Cleveland convention. He did so to Cleveland and when it came to the selection of a place for the holding of the convention of 1912 after many cities had presented their claims, he electrified the convention by presenting with surpassing eloquence the name of Charleston, S. C. It had not previously been thought of, but the conclusion of his speech all other places were in the "ash can" class.

"This is a pen picture of the blighted, debonaire, fighting, brilliant and irrepressible Blease who regards the political stings of his opponents as if they only caused him to not worry about being governor again."

Making Degenerates

IN his penned confession to the murder of an innocent little girl in New York city, Nathan Swartz, a degenerate, declared that the prevailing styles in woman's dress and "the way they fix themselves up" drove him to commit the murder.

Nathan Swartz was a degenerate of the lowest type. At that, could it be that sensuousness in dress was the one thing that turned a weakened brain and made him such? Judge Ben Lindsay of the Denver court declares such a thing possible. Leading society writers and authorities on dress state that it could not occur, but do admit that extremes in the mode of dress of today are dangerous. Certainly no one would want to openly accuse any woman of going to such extremes in style as to place temptation in the path of men not strong enough to resist and men so depraved that but a hint or suggestion is needed to drive them to murder. The modest woman, the good woman, the true-to-herself and her God woman is not guilty of vulgarity in dress. But the woman who is guilty places her sister's safety in jeopardy, just the same.

Self-thinking men are not tempted to crime by neither over-dress nor the caprices of women who go to extremes. Self-thinking men know that while clothes go a long way toward making the man, styles and the manner of carrying them out tell more plainly than words the calibre of a woman and draw a distinct line between a decent woman and one of the kind, unfortunately, that has her being in every city of any size. But it is not the self-thinking man of which women need fear. Their greatest danger will come from members of their own race so void of respect, so utterly brazen in manner that they encourage the overtures of unthinking men, quickly drive them to degeneracy and suffer either themselves or their sisters to the fiends they have helped to create.

The True Vacation

WE see in this world chiefly what we look for. A farmer going along examines the farms, an architect the buildings, a merchant the condition of the markets, a minister the churches.

He who is constantly looking for troubles will find them stretching off into gloomy wilderness. He who is watching for blessings will see them hither and thither extending in harvests of luxuriance.

In this vacation season be sure that you take a vacation from your troubles and worries. Leave them behind as the most useless of all your baggage. Away—away with all forebodings!

Light laden, go forth among nature. Look up toward the sky so brilliantly bright by day, or at night merry with ten thousand stars joining hands of light, with the earth in the ring, going round and round with gleam and dance and song, making old Time itself feel young again.

Go to the woods where the cooled and sifted breeze is scented with nature's fragrance and sweet with nature's songs.

Go to where the streams leap down off the rocks and their crystal heels clatter and glisten over the pure white pebbles.

Hark to the fluting of the winds and the long-meter psalm of the thunder. Hear the stiffl pattering of the fairy-footed rain dancing on the swaying leaves.

Look at the morning striding down the hills, ronting and skulking shadows. See evening drawing aside the curtains from heaven's wall of Jasper, sardonyx and amethyst.

Look on all this, and feel that God's in His place and that there's room in your soul for peace. Toledo News Bee.

When Safety Director Blank refused to confer with the city solicitor before handing out police orders it doesn't mean that he feels he is better qualified in law than the solicitor. Certainly not! It may only mean that the city solicitor is the same one that defeated him for the position.

A Socialist speaker on the square the other evening, said, "The high cost of living is a great question, a serious question, and—" but before he could finish an inquisitive bystander said, "We know darn well it's a serious question, but what's the answer?"

Here's another thing—If a convention won't nominate you, then you go right ahead and nominate a convention.

Don't complain if the sun comes out rather strongly these days. Just kindly remember that the roasting our crop has a little weather of its own kind coming to it.

We are still willing to agree with the young man who graduated last month that "Beyond the Alps lies Italy," but Kansas is a good deal nearer home and they're rollerier like sin out there for harvest hands.

We have it upon reliable authority that it cost Christopher Columbus just $7,200 to discover America. In these days it costs more than that to get a United States senator across.

While it is, of course, perfectly correct to play the slice of watermelon through the mouth as though it were a mouth organ, care should be exercised to keep the juice out of the ears.

After a recent visit to Lakeview we have come to the conclusion that it may yet become necessary to employ Detective Burns to discover the ham in some of those restaurant sandwiches.

The reports that skirts will be made tighter next fall leads us to believe that they will be made out of elastic.

The Fight between the Judge, Lindemann-Hughes-Hutchinson-Crites forces and the machine coterie in the democratic party in Allen county remains in statu quo.

As was predicted by the News last Tuesday, following the session of the democratic state central committee at Dayton, assistant secretary of state J. H. Secrest came up from Columbus during the week charged by his chief, secretary of state Charles Graves, with the very important duty of ironing out the ruffles and creases with which the party in this county is hampered in entering upon one of the most important campaigns in local, state and national history. Mr. Secrest was defeated for re-election to the state central committee in the Fourth district caucus at Toledo a few weeks ago because of the part he had taken in forcing machine methods down the throats of progressive, liberty loving, square-deal demanding democratic voters in Allen county. At the meeting of the state central committee in Columbus last Monday he was given a place on the state executive committee without protest being made, because him chief, a candidate on the state ticket asked to have him placed there. The candidates on the state ticket were allowed to select the executive committee; a privilege the candidates are entitled to, they being the men who must pay the freight. In this connection it should be remembered that under the terms of the agreement entered into between the warring factions in this county, the candidates were to be allowed to select one half the members of the county executive committee. This agreement was ratified by the county convention, a body of delegates which represented the party in this county, but that agreement was repudiated by the county central committee at the dictation of the party machine and the candidates' men for membership on the executive committee were turned down.

According to the views expressed by C. D. Crites in his statement of the case before the state central committee at Dayton, the fight in Allen county is not a contest between two factions but is a contest between the democratic party and the party machine. The machine is in control of the party machinery and will not permit the party to place candidate in the field that might threaten to take the reins from the hands of the machine men. That was the attitude of the machine at the time of the last primary campaign, when the names of forty-two candidates for precinct committee-men and delegates to the county convention were refused places on the primary ballots. In many instances there were more votes cast for the independent party candidates whose names were not on the ticket, than for the machine candidates whose names were printed on the ballots, but many of the independent candidates failed to be certified up as having been elected because of irregularities in the manner in which the names were written on the ballots. The expression of the people was apparent however and the members of the machine cannot but realize that the party does not want them to continue in possession of the party machinery.

The machine men will go before the state committee with the claim that they are entitled to recognition at the hands of the present organization because the legal status of the case is in their favor; that they have a majority of the members on the county committee and that this committee was elected at the party primary. True perhaps; but how did the machine secure the election of this majority of members on the county central committee? Not from the people. The people were against them. Realizing this situation they sought to make peace with the representatives of the anti-machine forces, by offering them equal representation in the party organization. In the interest of harmony, this agreement, suggested by the machine and drafted in the office of B. F. Welty, was accepted by the anti-machine forces, subject to the decision of the county convention. The convention met, and Ben F. Welty, as spokesman for the machine, declared he had agreed to the terms of the peace and harmony program and urged his friends in the convention to vote for it. The convention ratified to agreement and instructed the convention committee and the county central committee to carry out the program as outlined to the convention. The committee on the selection of delegates to the state, senatorial and judicial conventions carried out the provisions of the agreement as far as was in its power. The convention then ratified the program as carried out and left the county central committee to complete the work which was intended to insure party harmony throughout the fall campaign and ultimate victory for the party at the polls. But the machine, fearing that it would not be in position to distribute all of the party patronage which state and national victories would bring to the feet of Allen county democracy, grabbed the reins again after the county convention had adjourned, and, with the assistance, it is claimed, of Mr. Secrest, repudiated the peace contract, repudiated the agreement of its own making, repudiated the county candidates and repudiated the democratic party of Allen county.

Presidential candidate Woodrow Wilson was allowed to select the man of his choice to head a national campaign committee of his own choosing. Congressman James M. Cox, nominee for governor of Ohio, was granted permission to select the chairman of the state executive committee and the other candidates on the state ticket in Ohio were permitted to name the men to form the state executive committee. But in Allen county the party machine, whose power and authority has been perpetuated in spite of the will and wishes of the party, is greater than the party of either state or nation. The candidates on the county ticket selected only one half of the men who were to make up the personnel of the county executive committee but they were turned down by the machine which then proceeded to name other men and members of the machine coterie in repudiation of the peace program and in repudiation of the candidates. All this the machine will attempt to justify before the state central committee on the grounds that the "legal status is in favor of the machine."

What about the moral status? Are not the interests of the party in the county, state and nation of greater importance than the selfish interests of a few bosses who are determined to control the distribution of party patronage?

Mr. Secrest came up from Columbus on Thursday and landed on some of the representatives of the anti-machine forces of the party with a "compromise proposition." He offered to have three anti-machine men placed on the county executive committee and leave the executive committee organization, consisting of Milner C. Crossley, chairman; Walter Bowman, secretary, and C. R. Phillips, clerk—of the board of commissioners, treasurer, stand as it now is. "We have the legal status in our favor," said Mr. Secrest, "and can beat you in a hearing before the state central committee."

Mr. Secrest was informed that the leaders of the anti-machine forces had no authority to deviate from the program which was outlined before the county convention and ratified by that convention. The convention represented the democratic party of the county and the anti-machine men had no more right to repudiate the program it had laid down than had the machine. Mr. Secrest was in favor of granting greater concessions than the one he first offered and went to Delphos with an anti-machine representative to call upon Judge Lindemann. He was again told just what the county convention had ordered; the carrying out of the agreement which had been drafted by the machine in Ben Welty's office and approved by Mr. Welty before the convention. Mr. Secrest returned to Lima to confer with Mr. Welty and there the ropes for harmony and peace again were dashed against a stone wall of opposition. Mr. Welty still insists on the repudiation of the contract which he made with the democratic party, taking him at his word in the convention, approved and ratified.

The Rule or Ruin policy still obtains with Mr. Welty. The state central committee will again be called upon to determine whether Mr. Welty or the democratic party is supreme in the Allen county branch of the great national party of the people.

The anti-Harmon forces which were in absolute control of the meeting of the democratic state central committee which was held in the Phillips house at Dayton last Monday were more generously inclined in the matter of distributing recognition to the opposing faction in the selection of a state executive committee than the machine organization in this county was when it repudiated the agreement which was entered into at the recent county convention. The pro-Harmon men, although so very unpopular in the camp of the original Woodrow Wilsonites, and in spite of the fact that the Harmon supporters entertain bitter hatred for the men who opposed Gov. Harmon's candidacy for the presidential nomination, were given a majority in the membership of the state executive committee.

The members of this committee were selected much after the manner proposed by the anti-machine forces in this county at the time of the county convention; viz: selected by the candidates. Practically all of the nine members of the state committee were named by the candidates on the state ticket and these selections were ratified by the state central committee without a dissenting voice. In this county it was proposed, as stated, that the county central committee should name on half of the members of the county executive committee and the candidates be allowed to select the other seven. What could be fairer? The candidates are the men who, next to the party itself, have everything at stake. If the party loses out at an election it can "come back" but it is not often that the candidate can. Usually, after being defeated, the candidate is a dead one, if the expression may be permitted. Of course there are exceptions. There are the Hon. William J. Bryan and Edwin Blank, both of whom may be classified with the exceptions. They haven't either of them been able to secure election to office, but they never fail to come back, somewhere, somehow. Blank has been defeated on every ticket in the political lists of modern times except the prohibition and he seems to be glooming for that one now. Mr. Bryan sticks to the democratic crowd but hasn't had as great a degree of success as Blank, for the latter at least has a salaried job. Bryan should not be discouraged however, for if Woodrow Wilson is elected president, and he has a better chance than either Taft or Teddy to win that honor, the Nebraska man may be appointed secretary of public safety. Mr. Blank has another job. He is building a new house for mayor Shook.

Returning to the selection of executive committee and the part the candidates should be permitted to play in that game, it should not be forgotten while these machine men are making desperate efforts to retain control of the county organization in order to be in position to distribute patronage, that the poor down-trodden candidates are the lads who are compelled to pay the fiddlers—and also a whole lot of fellows who are not fiddlers. The candidates are required to dig down into their jeans and produce the long green which is used to defray the expenses of the campaign and it is certainly only fair that they be allowed to select the men who are to handle and disburse their hard earned coin.

The socialists of this county are to hold a convention next Friday for the purpose of placing a county ticket in the field for the coming fall election. The convention will be held in response to a call issued by the local executive organization and S. W. Morris, as chairman of the county organization will preside at the opening of the convention. It is understood that mayor Shook will not attend the convention.

Scott Wilkins, the socialist mayor of St. Marys, is the socialist's candidate for member of congress from this district, having been nominated as the opponent of congressman J. H. Goetz, of Auglaize county, democratic nominee for second term, and attorney John Cable, of this city, the republican nominee. Just see what a chance mayor Shook might have had if he had played fair with the socialists.

Dr. D. H. Sullivan, of this city, who came quite close to being the nominee on the democratic state ticket for Lieutenant Governor at the Toledo convention, is now at East Liverpool, O., paying a visit to his brother, Hon. John L. Sullivan, of that city. The latter is the nominee of the republican state convention for secretary of state.

My esteemed friend, Col. A. G. Collins, organizer of subordinate lodges in the Loyal Order of Moose, who makes his headquarters in this city, is an old personal friend of Cole L. Blease, governor of South Carolina, who is just now very much in the limelight in the South and who is said to have "said to the governor of North Carolina," etc. "Cole," as the governor is known throughout his home state, is an unique character, according to Col. Collins, who, while in a reminiscent mood yesterday, discussed the governor's political career. "In the very heat of his campaign for re-election to the office of governor," said Mr. Collins, "his enemies are investigating his doings during the first term and accuse the genial executive with selling pardons, grafting in connection with the defunct state liquor dispensary and a few other crimes. The committee has taken the precaution, however, to hold its meetings across the Savannah river, in Georgia, and in reply to the governor's polite invitation to "come back home" and be shot frankly admit that too close personal relations with "Cole" are more dangerous than with the deadly hook worm and the river rolls on between the antagonists.

and the governor is speaking from the hustings three times daily and talking in a way that the voters of the Palmetto state like and are finding time to deliver a few choice philippics to the marooned committee. Thus the long distance fight goes on with the chances that the idea of August, the primary election that settles the governorship held next month, will witness the passing of the ministerial-commercial newspaper trinity that is opposing the re-election of the governor and the latter will continue in the same old way.

Of all the governors the state has had, Blease is the most picturesque. Born in Newberry county, he received a meagre education in the poor common schools, entered Clemson college, a state institution, would have been graduated, but was accused of plagiarism, admitted the charge, was expelled. His parting shot to the faculty was "you can expel me but I will come back and when I do you all will know it."

He made good his promise and did "come back," as chairman of the legislative committee on college government, and when the committee was done the faculty was to "memory dear." "Coley" liked the game political and content with setting in the legislative halls, in 1900 was a candidate for lieutenant governor. He was defeated but not dismayed and as usual announced "I will come back." In 1910 he entered the lists as a candidate for governor against one of the most popular men of the state with all the clergy, rich mill owners and pre of the state against him. This combination would have taken the fight out of most men but he buttoned his Chesterfield about him and went up and down the state "saying things" that made the planters and work people "go up and take notice." He told them he was for white men's money and white men's schools and that a educated negro was a "sorry negro." He told them that he wanted the old "Johnnies" to have increased pensions for the only ones that did not love them were Yankees and negroes. He told them he would see child labor driven from the great cotton mills of the state and a marriage license law enacted and keep inviolate the prohibiting divorce. South Carolina is the only state where divorces are not granted. The preachers ranted, newspapers sailed him, and mill owners dictated dire things to result in should be elected but, the raved haired attorney rolled up a mass of nearly seven thousand votes at the polls on primary day and was later elected. After being inaugurated, he did the very thing he had promised to do. His administration solidified both his friends for him and his enemies against him and when his candidacy for second term was announced, political opponents immediately proceed to "gin" his political personal cotton. Among those who were engaged to feed the machine which was intended to do the ginning where they hoped to be enabled to operate against Blease without having their machinery purchased by an occasional stray bullet.

"One of the leading attributes of Governor Blease is loyalty. In 1911 he was elected as a representative to the session of the Grand Lodge of Red Men, held in Cleveland. Subsequently he received an invitation to attend the convention of the governors of the several states in New York. He declined the honor, stating he had given his word that he would attend the Cleveland convention. He did so to Cleveland and when it came to the selection of a place for the holding of the convention of 1912 after many cities had presented their claims, he electrified the convention by presenting with surpassing eloquence the name of Charleston, S. C. It had not previously been thought of, but the conclusion of his speech all other places were in the "ash can" class.

"This is a pen picture of the blighted, debonaire, fighting, brilliant and irrepressible Blease who regards the political stings of his opponents as if they only caused him to not worry about being governor again."

By Lloyd N. Prince.

"Just watch our smoke," continued Zeke Wrigley, leader of the Lima hosts this morning in a fanling bee which soon lapsed into an exposition of the relative merits of the various departments of the Stogie array.

"The team that beats my boys will win the pennant," continued Zeke. "We're stronger in every department than during the first half, and I've got a collection of ballbats the peer of any on the circuit. The Stogies will hear watching."

There's a lot of truth in Zeke's optimistic viewpoint. A pitching staff of the calibre of the Smokes ought to take a club through a championship race with an even break in any event. But with a strong, aggressive, offensive and defensive array abutting upon the strength of the hurling corps, the team ought to be good for lots better than an even break.

In the flinging corps can be found the team's primary strength. Guese, Helling, Munk and Schanze are a quartet that, with fair support, should win two-thirds of their games. On the infield, Nesser is more valuable than at the start of last season. Wrigley has just struck his stride and at the present rate will simply spoil the reputation of every spherist on the circuit by his slashing hits. His fielding, always par excellent, has been bettered. Daubert and Long, while weak with the willow, are dangerous in a pinch, and their stellar work afield will more than offset their light bombardment.

Wrigley has three of the most valuable players on the circuit in the outer pastures. Bill West, since joining the club, has gained the reputation of being one of the most dangerous batsmen in the league. He is a waiter from the start and every slabbist must grove them before he will bite. His hitting has been both timely and consistent, while his fielding has been sensational. Jimmy Burke is a cannon cracker on the pillows. Fast, slippery, foxy and ever alert, the little fellow can hold his own with any of them. In right, Tom Plummer has been playing a steady game. He is a careful hitter and can be depended in the crucial moment. Rarely, if ever, that a chance ever escapes Tom.

"Smoky" Hobbs has assumed the role of utility man. He is to the Stogs just what Artie Hoffman was to the great Cub machine for years. Hobbs has played every position on the field this season except to don the wind-pad. An outfielder by choice, he plays a flashy infield game if necessity demands and he can put up a creditable slab exhibition in a pinch. This was attested on the last trip when he pitched two good games.

Clarke, at present, is under suspension. He may join the club in a week or two. Sebach is under a surgeon's care in Columbus. In the fourth of July morning game at Mansfield, he suffered a split hand in the sixth inning. For six innings, he held the Tigers hitless and was going at a terrific clip when injury overtook him.

From a careful perusal of the above resume, an estimate of the team's strength can be gleaned. Cincinnati's slender lead over the climbing Quakers is being gradually reduced until the Don't boys are but four games behind the fast falling Reds. The Phils climbed considerably during the past week when pitted against the Reds and another disastrous series would drop the O'Dayites to the second division. In being ranged against the Jowly Braves toward week-end, Hank O'Day was given an opportunity to strengthen his position slightly, but the brace was but temporarily.

With the real clubs invade Port-town, it is predicted, the crimson-shanked warriors will take a sudden precipitation to the lower depths.

Johnny McGraw's Gothamites are not the heavy favorites that they were ten days ago. Since the Chicago series, the Cubs are being played strongly to beat out the Giants in the pennant chase. It seems almost ridiculous at present. McGraw's Hopetuls are a full eleven games ahead of the Windy Cityans and are playing bang-up ball again. A few days' slump on their western trip coupled with a marked spurt by the Chanceites, shuffled the deck slightly, but the Giants have too good a lead and are too strongly fortified to be overtaken by a team of the Cubs' caliber.

Clarke Griffith's Senators are creeping gradually upon the Boston Speed Boys. With but six games separating the two clubs there is bound to be a stiff battle waged for first place honors. Jimmy Callahan's spurs have dropped to fourth place and stand an excellent chance of sinking even lower. The Athletics have slumped and the race has lapsed into a battle between the Senators and Red Sox.

The American Association is still furnishing a pretty race. Columbus, battling in hostile sections, have increased their lead over the Millers but are in danger of being overtaken almost any time. The Mud Hens are also coming fast and may cause trouble.

Johnny Kling, whose bullheadedness, coupled with his managerial aspirations, lifted him from the Windy City and dropped him in the slough of despair in Beantown where he worried, bleached and faded away is about to discard the spangles and forsake the diamond.

Kling's career has been almost pathetic since he left the champion Cubs. For months he sat in his tent. He rusted from idleness. As a last resort, Chance traded him to Boston as managerial timber. Here was his opportunity, but such a slim chance it was. Gathered about him the world's premier backstop was a pitiful aggregation of faded hopes—remains of what might have been or what were long ago. Curtailment of his authority handicapped him. He fought valiantly for a few weeks. Then despairing colleagues dipped, tumbled and plunged to the bottomless pit of despair.

With proud spirit broken, the old war horse is ready to toss up the sponge. He admits it himself. In an effort to help things along, President Ward last week vested Kling with full power to direct the team. After firing Hub Perdue, a sulking but brilliant hurler, Johnny grabbed off all authority over his players and will not hereafter be interfered with by John Ward of anybody else.

Kling's presence in the Cubist array right now would give the Chance men a direct shot at the pennant. But Kling is far from the Windy City his playing far below the old standard and the aggressive spirit that characterized his premier backstop work with the champion Cubs is broken and crushed.

And all for the price of a managerial job.

And we wonder what has happened to Bat Nelson. A three week's absence is a very unusual occurrence for the Hegewisch citizen, and a search party will quite likely be formed to dislodge the missing Batter.

Restauranteur John Arthur Johnson is unhappy. For days he has enjoyed a liberal patronage in his elegantly furnished Cafe de Champion in the Windy City, but a dusky shadow looms ahead. One dusky shadow has followed Mr. Johnson for several years, but the Chicago citizen has ceased to pale at its apocalyptic appearance. The new all-haute, however, is upon the black camp, with the grim clutches. Its gait is rapid and may overtake the restauranteur ere the idea of September gather about us.

The new shadow comes in the personage of Joe Jeannette. Shades of Jim Jefferies, did you say? Well, reflect a while before you plunge at your conclusion.

Away back in 1906 Mr. Jeannette put Mr. Johnson away nicely. Joe then forgot Johnson. Not long ago however, when Mistah Johnson loomed up like a light house in a fog and reaped the championship belt of Mister Jim Jefferies, then Joseph crew jealous. He, like the indomitable Sam Langford, has been camping on the black hope's trail for weeks, though secretly.

And now, in this year 1912 after licking two white hopes in a single night, at the age of 31, comes Mistah Jeannette and shies his castor into the pugilistic ring, as a foe to the Chicago restauranteur. All of Sam Langford's taunts have been ignored. Will Jeannette's stinging def which rung the pugilistic walkin be treated likewise? We shall see.

Riveted together by stronger financial clamps, revived in interest and re-inforced in strength of teams Rob Read's Ohio State organization which bumped upon a rock at Marion last week and lost a rudder in the withdrawal of the Diggers, sailed out upon the second season of the 1912 seas on Monday afternoon and is once more steaming ahead with cylinders wide open.

The loss of the Diggers, the acquisition of the Ironton Nailers, the switch in schedule and finally the division of the season into two halves came as a decided surprise to Ohio State fandom, but every change made by the magnates in the meet at Columbus last week is sanctioned.

Ironton, young in the professional game, but bubbling over with enthusiasm and optimism for the success of the game in that city, replaced Marion, a literal fiasco as a baseball city and the change worked to advantage. Dead timber has been plucked away and the league is once more in thriving growth. Teams start the second season more evenly matched than during the first half, when the Portsmouth Cobs finished first only two hundred points ahead of the tail-enders the Chillicothe Babes. The Ironton and Marion players have been combined, giving the Nailers one of the strongest clubs on the circuit. Portsmouth is fully as aggressive as during their dazzling finish, while Mansfield, Lima and Newark are all calibre for the up-there class. Chillicothe, under the new management of Jess Tannehill, ex-big league star, will prove a strong contender. With this situation resulting, the sextet of candidates are certain to furnish a more spirited race than in the maiden season.

The opening week of the new season witnessed the sale of two of the league's star slabbists. "Cy" Marshall, of Portsmouth, the league's premier hurler, went to the Philadelphia Nationals for $3,000, the largest sum ever surrendered for an Ohio State league graduate. Pitcher Ben Higley, of the Mansfield club, was disposed of to the Columbus club of the American Association for the sum of $1,500, and joins the Senators at once. Secretary Bobby Quinn picked a jewel.

in "Lefty" Cooper, the Marion recruit, last season, and has had his eye upon the Ohio State league held over since.

Marshall is the most finished product the league has ever turned out. He was dug up two years ago by the Lancaster Club at Salineville, Ohio. President Gableman, of the Portsmouth club, watched his work and secured him at the opening of the present season, upon the withdrawal of the Lanks from the organization. Marshall is twenty-one, young, husky, ambitious and aggressive. He should stick.

Already two players have ascended to fast company. Johnny Daley, Mansfield shortstopper, went to the St. Louis Browns, while Benton Beebe, Chillicothe flinger, was purchased by the Lincoln team, of the Western league. Sleuths are "puss-footing" in the league's territory and may land a few phenoms. Another change in the management was made by the Chillicothe directors since the opening of final season. Jess Tannehill, former star south-paw, has replaced Chief McCall and will guide the fortunes of the club for the remainder of the season. He is boss, Mr. for the Babes, this year.

With everything again in shape, the Ohio State league is fair to finish another successful season.

Clarke, at present, is under suspension. He may join the club in a week or two. Sebach is under a surgeon's care in Columbus. In the fourth of July morning game at Mansfield, he suffered a split hand in the sixth inning. For six innings, he held the Tigers hitless and was going at a terrific clip when injury overtook him.

From a careful perusal of the above resume, an estimate of the team's strength can be gleaned. Cincinnati's slender lead over the climbing Quakers is being gradually reduced until the Don't boys are but four games behind the fast falling Reds. The Phils climbed considerably during the past week when pitted against the Reds and another disastrous series would drop the O'Dayites to the second division. In being ranged against the Jowly Braves toward week-end, Hank O'Day was given an opportunity to strengthen his position slightly, but the brace was but temporarily.

With the real clubs invade Port-town, it is predicted, the crimson-shanked warriors will take a sudden precipitation to the lower depths.

Johnny McGraw's Gothamites are not the heavy favorites that they were ten days ago. Since the Chicago series, the Cubs are being played strongly to beat out the Giants in the pennant chase. It seems almost ridiculous at present. McGraw's Hopetuls are a full eleven games ahead of the Windy Cityans and are playing bang-up ball again. A few days' slump on their western trip coupled with a marked spurt by the Chanceites, shuffled the deck slightly, but the Giants have too good a lead and are too strongly fortified to be overtaken by a team of the Cubs' caliber.

Clarke Griffith's Senators are creeping gradually upon the Boston Speed Boys. With but six games separating the two clubs there is bound to be a stiff battle waged for first place honors. Jimmy Callahan's spurs have dropped to fourth place and stand an excellent chance of sinking even lower. The Athletics have slumped and the race has lapsed into a battle between the Senators and Red Sox.

The American Association is still furnishing a pretty race. Columbus, battling in hostile sections, have increased their lead over the Millers but are in danger of being overtaken almost any time. The Mud Hens are also coming fast and may cause trouble.

Johnny Kling, whose bullheadedness, coupled with his managerial aspirations, lifted him from the Windy City and dropped him in the slough of despair in Beantown where he worried, bleached and faded away is about to discard the spangles and forsake the diamond.

Kling's career has been almost pathetic since he left the champion Cubs. For months he sat in his tent. He rusted from idleness. As a last resort, Chance traded him to Boston as managerial timber. Here was his opportunity, but such a slim chance it was. Gathered about him the world's premier backstop was a pitiful aggregation of faded hopes—remains of what might have been or what were long ago. Curtailment of his authority handicapped him. He fought valiantly for a few weeks. Then despairing colleagues dipped, tumbled and plunged to the bottomless pit of despair.

With proud spirit broken, the old war horse is ready to toss up the sponge. He admits it himself. In an effort to help things along, President Ward last week vested Kling with full power to direct the team. After firing Hub Perdue, a sulking but brilliant hurler, Johnny grabbed off all authority over his players and will not hereafter be interfered with by John Ward of anybody else.

Kling's presence in the Cubist array right now would give the Chance men a direct shot at the pennant. But Kling is far from the Windy City his playing far below the old standard and the aggressive spirit that characterized his premier backstop work with the champion Cubs is broken and crushed.

And all for the price of a managerial job.

And we wonder what has happened to Bat Nelson. A three week's absence is a very unusual occurrence for the Hegewisch citizen, and a search party will quite likely be formed to dislodge the missing batter.

Restauranteur John Arthur Johnson is unhappy. For days he has enjoyed a liberal patronage in his elegantly furnished Cafe de Champion in the Windy City, but a dusky shadow looms ahead. One dusky shadow has followed Mr. Johnson for several years, but the Chicago citizen has ceased to pale at its apocalyptic appearance. The new all-haute, however, is upon the black camp, with the grim clutches. Its gait is rapid and may overtake the restauranteur ere the idea of September gather about us.

The new shadow comes in the personage of Joe Jeannette. Shades of Jim Jefferies, did you say? Well, reflect a while before you plunge at your conclusion.

Away back in 1906 Mr. Jeannette put Mr. Johnson away nicely. Joe then forgot Johnson. Not long ago however, when Mistah Johnson loomed up like a light house in a fog and reaped the championship belt of Mister Jim Jefferies, then Joseph crew jealous. He, like the indomitable Sam Langford, has been camping on the black hope's trail for weeks, though secretly.

And now, in this year 1912 after licking two white hopes in a single night, at the age of 31, comes Mistah Jeannette and shies his castor into the pugilistic ring, as a foe to the Chicago restauranteur. All of Sam Langford's taunts have been ignored. Will Jeannette's stinging def which rung the pugilistic walkin be treated likewise? We shall see.

Riveted together by stronger financial clamps, revived in interest and re-inforced in strength of teams Rob Read's Ohio State organization which bumped upon a rock at Marion last week and lost a rudder in the withdrawal of the Diggers, sailed out upon the second season of the 1912 seas on Monday afternoon and is once more steaming ahead with cylinders wide open.

switch in schedule and finally the division of the season into two halves came as a decided surprise to Ohio State fandom, but every change made by the magnates in the meet at Columbus last week is sanctioned.

Ironton, young in the professional game, but bubbling over with enthusiasm and optimism for the success of the game in that city, replaced Marion, a literal fiasco as a baseball city and the change worked to advantage. Dead timber has been plucked away and the league is once more in thriving growth. Teams start the second season more evenly matched than during the first half, when the Portsmouth Cobs finished first only two hundred points ahead of the tail-enders the Chillicothe Babes. The Ironton and Marion players have been combined, giving the Nailers one of the strongest clubs on the circuit. Portsmouth is fully as aggressive as during their dazzling finish, while Mansfield, Lima and Newark are all calibre for the up-there class. Chillicothe, under the new management of Jess Tannehill, ex-big league star, will prove a strong contender. With this situation resulting, the sextet of candidates are certain to furnish a more spirited race than in the maiden season.

The opening week of the new season witnessed the sale of two of the league's star slabbists. "Cy" Marshall, of Portsmouth, the league's premier hurler, went to the Philadelphia Nationals for $3,000, the largest sum ever surrendered for an Ohio State league graduate. Pitcher Ben Higley, of the Mansfield club, was disposed of to the Columbus club of the American Association for the sum of $1,500, and joins the Senators at once. Secretary Bobby Quinn picked a jewel.

in "Lefty" Cooper, the Marion recruit, last season, and has had his eye upon the Ohio State league held over since.

Marshall is the most finished product the league has ever turned out. He was dug up two years ago by the Lancaster Club at Salineville, Ohio. President Gableman, of the Portsmouth club, watched his work and secured him at the opening of the present season, upon the withdrawal of the Lanks from the organization. Marshall is twenty-one, young, husky, ambitious and aggressive. He should stick.

Already two players have ascended to fast company. Johnny Daley, Mansfield shortstopper, went to the St. Louis Browns, while Benton Beebe, Chillicothe flinger, was purchased by the Lincoln team, of the Western league. Sleuths are "puss-footing" in the league's territory and may land a few phenoms.

Another change in the management was made by the Chillicothe directors since the opening of final season. Jess Tannehill, former star south-paw, has replaced Chief McCall and will guide the team of the club for the remainder of the season. He is boss, the for the Babes, this year.

With everything again in shape, the Ohio State league is fair to finish another successful season.

Studebaker

So Simple Anyone Can Operate It

No need of a mechanic to take care of a Studebaker "20." No need of a chauffeur. You or your wife can run it as easily as an expert. Operation is so simple that there is practically nothing to learn. Construction so perfect that there is nothing to get out of order.

The Studebaker "20" is built to meet the needs of the refined American family for a high quality, light running car at a moderate price. It is built for the most exacting every day service and will perform it. It is built to avoid mechanical difficulties on your longest journeys, and to keep repairs and upkeep cost within a moderate income.

We know the quality of our cars and what they will do under all conditions of service, because every car part is manufactured under our own roof from material that has been analysed and rigidly tested in our own laboratories.

Nothing is left to chance or the fortunes of the road. We are sure of what we guarantee to you.

For quality, serviceability and good appearance, the Studebaker "20" is equal to any car made, irrespective of price and is built at a cost that anyone can afford.

For over 60 years the Studebaker name has been standard for quality and that reputation any Studebaker car will always uphold.

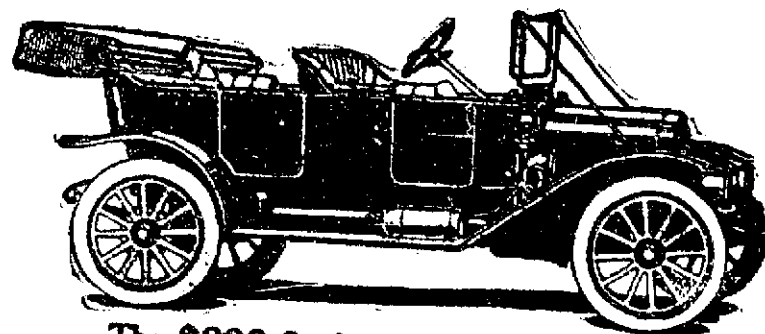

The Studebaker car represents an ideal. Behind it are mechanical equipment unequalled anywhere, a corps of the most skilled engineers, and 10,000 skilled mechanics, trained to Studebaker ideals and standards.

75,000 enthusiastic owners will answer for the more-than-satisfaction of Studebaker cars.

The time of the year is just right for the enjoyment of motoring to its fullest extent, and the car that will give you this enjoyment at the lowest price and lowest upkeep cost is the Studebaker "20." Let us demonstrate its qualities.

Jake Stahl's "Speed Boys" Sensations of American League

By W. J. MacBeth
New York, July 20.—Among the many sensations commanding special attention in this young season of remarkable surprises might be mentioned the Boston Red Sox. In fact, it would not be amiss to shout and rave about the Speed Boys and their "born manager" Jake Stahl.

For whether he deserves it or not, J. Garland Stahl is today about the biggest man in the worship of Hub fandom since Jimmy Collins of 1903 and 1904. Jake has made good; that's all that Boston or any other city demands. Stahl has made good where more experienced managers failed. That in itself is recommendation enough.

Maybe Jake was lucky. There are instances on record, you know, where clubs have made reputations for managers. Hughie Jennings stumbled into big league fame in 1907. When he took charge of the Tigers that great machine had already been moulded. Hugh simply had to keep it in harmonious working order to land three consecutive pennants. Frank Seelie mobilized the wonderful Cub machine from which Frank Chance reaped the golden shekels and fame. Yet no one instructs that either Jennings or Chance is not a good manager. What these men would ever have amounted to had they been forced to build up a tall ender, however, is problematic.

Stahl's club is just as it was when Jake took hold of it with the exception of Jake. There is no denying the fact that this big fellow has proved a wonderful asset to the Speed Boys. Neither Jimmy Callahan nor Mike Donlin has anything on the "born manager" as a "come back." Jake hasn't set the league as a hitter, but he sure has peppered up the whole works and got every possible ounce of energy out of the array.

All of which is most remarkable in the light of existing conditions. It is quite true that the Red Sox form one of the fastest collections in the major leagues. But it is also true that Stahl, as manager has to maintain harmony not only in the ranks but in the bosoms of the stock holders as well. Never was man in more trying position than Jake. He is one of the minority stock holders. The club president is Jimmy McAleer, an autocratic sort of fellow when his interests are at stake. McAleer was one of the most dismal managerial failures imaginable with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Nationals but you couldn't convince him of the fact. Naturally he believes he was the abused child of circumstance. The fact that McAleer is content to sit back quietly as an American league magnate is certainly a tribute to the diplomacy of Stahl.

In Jake, Boston has found a long missing factor to establish harmony between club and erratic management. John I. Taylor, who during the last eight years has given away a world's championship aggregation still owns fifty per cent of the stock. He always has been and always will be a great menace so long as he maintains such a heavy interest. Outside interference with Stahl—either on the part of Taylor or McAleer—is the greatest danger which the new manager may expect to confront.

Boston has not cinched the pennant by any means. Stahl's Red Sox may enjoy a fine enough lead for this time but the great fight is before them. It looks very much as if we will see one of those hair-raising drives to the very wire with a blanket finish by the first division clubs.

The world's champion Athletics are far too good a club to be counted out till their last chance has fled. Connie Mack is no simpleton. He has been jockeying a great deal with young pitchers lately. His old staff has not been just right any time this year it would seem. But it may be depended on henceforth—Bender, Coombs, Plank and Morgan are likely to finish with such a burst as to leave nothing but the wake of devastation—if it comes to a pure question of pitching, Mack never has started his sprint until mid-July or August. And the wise ones believe he is feeling out his strength with a view to a dual to the death with the Red Sox, when the proper moment arrives.

The real fight will doubtless be between the Red Sox and Athletics. The Giants will have no picnic in the world's series, no matter which one of these wins. The Red Sox, unless playing above their speed, have just about as nifty an array as the world's champions. Boston's outfield trio is by far the classiest in the two major leagues. Stahl's pitching staff is superior to the flingers of Mack if Connie's veteran tossers have deteriorated a particle. Carrigan is as good a catcher as either Lapp or Thomas. Mack has the better infield, though that of Stahl is above the ordinary. This superiority of his infield gives Mack the shade on the team power outside the pitching.

Boston's pitching staff is as promising as anything in fast company. Pittsburgh has another such one. The Red Sox hurlers are all young fellows with the best of their success before them. Possibly right now the Athletics veterans are superior in such great crises as a tough drive or a world's series simply because of their vast experience. But that is very doubtful. In a world's series this fall the Red Sox tossing talent would look indeed as formidable as most any body could fancy. Imagine Joe Wood, Hall, O'Brien, Redient and Collins working in turn. Those first four mentioned are as classy as any right handers in captivity.

Stahl was at least lucky in coming to Boston just at a time when a real pitching staff has been secured for the first time since the days of C. Young and Bill Dineen. Poor pitching has handicapped the Speed Boys for several years. And if Jake can keep on edge his fine array of tossing talent he may yet justify his sobriquet, "born manager" dubbed by a humorous scribe back in 1904 when Jake took Washington out the front of the race and kept there several weeks in the spring. Jake threw up the management when the Senators hit the chute and tobogganed to the very bottom. Those few months were the extent of his managerial experience. I view of which his wonderful success in Boston after a year's layoff from the diamond, is all the more commendable.

The Two Main Reasons

Jake Stahl, manager of the Red Sox, and idol of the Boston fans and Tris P. Speaker, who has contributed the heaviest of the heavy hitting that has made the Red Sox the best bet for the American League pennant. Stahl who appears in the smaller picture is heralded as the greatest of all come-back managers, while Speaker has led the American League in batting during the greater part of the season.

The Difference of Opinion Is the Life of Sport

By W. W. Naughton
San Francisco, July 20.—It is very evident that sporting critics unlike doctors, do not hold consultations in reference to the "cases" that come under their observation. If they did, no doubt there would be more unanimity of opinion in respects to the merits of contestants and competitors of various characters.

That sporting writers should view boxing matches and other events from different standpoints, is as it should be. A wise head once said "its difference of opinion that makes horse races," and what is true of the sport of the turf, is true of everything else in the sporting line. Without difference of opinion there would be no occasion to arrange tests of skill speed or endurance. There would be a total lack of interest in everything relating to competition. There would be no "sporting situation," in fact.

There is one thing however, that a sports critic should beware of, and that is insisting his view of a contest is the only possible and correct one. He should qualify whatever opinions he writes with the remark "this may not be the right analysis, but it's the way it looked to me." For no matter what respect his opinion commands, he can only exercise individual judgment.

It is doubtful if there ever was a brace of pugilistic happenings that caused more difference of opinion among the workmen of the press than the two world's championships on the Fourth of July. Those who held that Jack Johnson had showed no decline in fighting ability were fairly well paired with the critics who noted—or thought they noted—a vast difference in the Johnson of Reno and the Johnson of Las Vegas.

The writer takes his stand with those who believe that Johnson tires more readily and is a less formidable puncher than he used to be. I have seen Johnson in every contest of note he has figured in in this country since he fought at Los Angeles, nearly eleven years ago, and am therefore in fairly good position to judge of his present fighting prowess.

Incidentally, Johnson is one of the hardest men in the fighting world to get a line on. He is such a consummate ring general and everything he does within the ropes is done so artistically, it is anything but easy to tell when he is in trouble.

In the affair with Flynn he held on and stalled around with a grin on his face and with no particular appearance of being flurried, but he was an exceedingly tired champion of the world just the same. If he had been the Johnson of other fights instead of looking so hungry-eyed at Roterer Smith when Flynn began butting, he would have broken his hold and punched Flynn clear across the ropes.

The different views held in regard to the Johnson-Flynn match were not a circumstance, however, to the confusions of opinions that existed at the Wolgast-Rivers ring-side. It used to be said that a man interested in boxing did not have to attend a fight to gain an idea of what happened—that he could read all the accounts of the affair and strike an average. Anyone who could follow this course in the Los Angeles mill would have to be possessed of highly analytical mentality.

Whether Wolgast struck his opponent foul or fair, whether Rivers downed Wolgast with a chin crack or a smash in the pit, whether Wolgast fell athwart Rivers' knee, and whether Rivers was short counted, are points that will be argued for many a day to come.

Some of the opinions held are so positive in fact, that they would not surprise the writer to hear of some capacious critic taking issue with the moving pictures on the score that they did not give a fatal portrayal of the closing scenes of the lightweight championship.

It all means good business for the shadowgraphs of both mills probably, for where there are points in dispute the average sport likes to take in the picture and judge for himself.

One of the interested spectators at the Rivers-Wolgast contest was Willie Ritchie, the San Francisco lad who gave Wolgast such a hard time of it in a four round bout in this city a couple of months ago. Ritchie thinks that if there is a return match between Wolgast and Rivers, the champion will win out to a certainty. He says that Rivers' punches did not hurt Wolgast, whereas, every blow he landed made the Mexican wince.

"At that I do not think Ad showed either the speed or the punching power he displayed when he fought me," said Ritchie. "I will move heaven and earth to secure a bout for the championship with Wolgast, and if there is any hitch in the arrangements with Rivers, I think I will stand a good chance to get a match. I am very earnest about this, and to show my sincerity, am willing to bet my little accumulations on the result. I have not much—a few thousand dollars—but the instant Wolgast evinces a willingness to sign I will be prepared to wager all I possess on the outcome. The only stipulation I make is that the money be placed at the odds which prevail when the date of the fight is close at hand. I think this is only fair."

There are any number who consider Ritchie if anything a more formidable opponent than Rivers for Wolgast. It is even hinted that the champion is of the same way of thinking, and has said, "Get Rivers for me. Ritchie can wait."

If the Rivers-Wolgast bout goes through it is likely that Ritchie will be signed by one of the coast promoters for a match with Knockout Brown of New York or some other likely lightweight the idea being to have a challenger for the winner in the Wolgast-Rivers affair.

TRUTH.
"None of use," we are told, "likes his own qualities when he sees them reflected in others." Probably many respectable people will take it for a paradox in all good faith. For we all know that we live by choice with people who are like ourselves. We seek and ensue those of similar tastes, similar virtues and similar vices. And with people of different framework we are uncomfortable. Your good bourgeois gets on badly with people who are unconventional. Your Bohemian rages furiously when constrained to the society of the ordinary.

For whether he deserves it or not, J. Garland Stahl is today about the biggest man in the worship of Hub fandom since Jimmy Collins of 1903 and 1904. Jake has made good; that's all that Boston or any other city demands. Stahl has made good where more experienced managers failed. That in itself is recommendation enough.

Maybe Jake was lucky. There are instances on record, you know, where clubs have made reputations for managers. Hughie Jennings stumbled into big league fame in 1907. When he took charge of the Tigers that great machine had already been moulded. Hugh simply had to keep it in harmonious working order to land three consecutive pennants. Frank Seelie mobilized the wonderful Cub machine

from which Frank Chance reaped the golden shekels and fame. Yet no one instructs that either Jennings or Chance is not a good manager. What these men would ever have amounted to had they been forced to build up a tall ender, however, is problematic.

Stahl's club is just as it was when Jake took hold of it with the exception of Jake. There is no denying the fact that this big fellow has proved a wonderful asset to the Speed Boys. Neither Jimmy Callahan nor Mike Donlin has anything on the "born manager" as a "come back." Jake hasn't set the league as a hitter, but he sure has peppered up the whole works and got every possible ounce of energy out of the array.

All of which is most remarkable in the light of existing conditions. It is quite true that the Red Sox form one of the fastest collections in the major leagues. But it is also true that Stahl, as manager has to maintain harmony not only in the ranks but in the bosoms of the stock holders as well. Never was man in more trying position than Jake. He is one of the minority stock holders. The club president is Jimmy McAleer, an autocratic sort of fellow when his interests are at stake. McAleer was one of the most dismal managerial failures imaginable with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Nationals but you couldn't convince him of the fact. Naturally he believes he was the abused child of circumstance. The fact that McAleer is content to sit back quietly as an American league magnate is certainly a tribute to the diplomacy of Stahl.

In Jake, Boston has found a long missing factor to establish harmony between club and erratic management. John I. Taylor, who during the last eight years has given away a world's championship aggregation still owns fifty per cent of the stock. He always has been and always will be a great menace so long as he maintains such a heavy interest. Outside interference with Stahl—either on the part of Taylor or McAleer—is the greatest danger which the new manager may expect to confront.

Boston has not cinched the pennant by any means. Stahl's Red Sox may enjoy a fine enough lead for this time but the great fight is before them. It looks very much as if we will see one of those hair-raising drives to the very wire with a blanket finish by the first division clubs.

The world's champion Athletics are far too good a club to be counted out till their last chance has fled. Connie Mack is no simpleton. He has been jockeying a great deal with young pitchers lately. His old staff has not been just right any time this year it would seem. But it may be depended on henceforth—Bender, Coombs, Plank and Morgan are likely to finish with such a burst as to leave nothing but the wake of devastation—if it comes to a pure question of pitching, Mack never has started his sprint until mid-July or August. And the wise ones believe he is feeling out his strength with a view to a dual to the death with the Red Sox, when the proper moment arrives.

The real fight will doubtless be between the Red Sox and Athletics. The Giants will have no picnic in the world's series, no matter which one of these wins. The Red Sox, unless playing above their speed, have just about as nifty an array as the world's champions. Boston's outfield trio is by far the classiest in the two major leagues. Stahl's pitching staff is superior to the flingers of Mack if Connie's veteran tossers have deteriorated a particle. Carrigan is as good a catcher as either Lapp or Thomas. Mack has the better infield, though that of Stahl is above the ordinary. This superiority of his infield gives Mack the shade on the team power outside the pitching.

Boston's pitching staff is as promising as anything in fast company. Pittsburgh has another such one. The Red Sox hurlers are all young fellows with the best of their success before them. Possibly right now the Athletic veterans are superior in such great crises as a tough drive or a world's series simply because of their vast experience. But that is very doubtful. In a world's series this fall the Red Sox tossing talent would look indeed as formidable as most any body could fancy. Imagine Joe Wood, Hall, O'Brien, Redient and Collins working in turn. Those first four mentioned are as classy as any right handers in captivity.

Stahl was at least lucky in coming to Boston just at a time when a real pitching staff has been secured for the first time since the days of C. Young and Bill Dineen. Poor pitching has handicapped the Speed Boys for several years. And if Jake can keep on edge his fine array of tossing talent he may yet justify his sobriquet, "born manager" dubbed by a humorous scribe back in 1907 when Jake took Washington out the front of the race and kept there several weeks in the spring. Jake threw up the management when the Senators hit the chute and tobaggone to the very bottom. Those few months were the extent of his managerial experience. I view of which his wonderful success in Boston after a year's layoff from the diamond, is all the more commendable.

The Two Main Reasons

Jake Stahl, manager of the Red Sox, and idol of the Boston fans and Tris P. Speaker, who has contributed the heaviest of the heavy hitting that has made the Red Sox the best bet for the American League pennant. Stahl who appears in the smaller picture is heralded as the greatest of all come-back managers, while Speaker has led the American League in batting during the greater part of the season.

The Difference of Opinion Is the Life of Sport

By W. W. Naughton
San Francisco, July 20.—It is very evident that sporting critics unlike doctors, do not hold consultations in reference to the "cases" that come under their observation. If they did, no doubt there would be more unanimity of opinion in respects to the merits of contestants and competitors of various characters.

That sporting writers should view boxing matches and other events from different standpoints, is as it should be. A wise head once said "its difference of opinion that makes horse races," and what is true of the sport of the turf, is true of everything else in the sporting line. Without difference of opinion there would be no occasion to arrange tests of skill speed or endurance. There would be a total lack of interest in everything relating to competition. There would be no "sporting situation," in fact.

There is one thing however, that a sports critic should beware of, and that is insisting his view of a contest is the only possible and correct one. He should qualify whatever opinions he writes with the remark "this may not be the right analysis, but it's the way it looked to me." For no matter what respect his opinion commands, he can only exercise individual judgment.

It is doubtful if there ever was a brace of pugilistic happenings that caused more difference of opinion among the workmen of the press than the two world's championships on the Fourth of July. Those who

held that Jack Johnson had showed no decline in fighting ability were fairly well paired with the critics who noted—or thought they noted—a vast difference in the Johnson of Reno and the Johnson of Las Vegas.

The writer takes his stand with those who believe that Johnson tires more readily and is a less formidable puncher than he used to be. I have seen Johnson in every contest of note he has figured in in this country since he fought at Los Angeles, nearly eleven years ago, and am therefore in fairly good position to judge of his present fighting prowess.

Incidentally, Johnson is one of the hardest men in the fighting world to get a line on. He is such a consummate ring general and everything he does within the ropes is done so artistically, it is anything but easy to tell when he is in trouble.

In the affair with Flynn he held on and stalled around with a grin on his face and with no particular appearance of being flurried, but he was an exceedingly tired champion of the world just the same. If he had been the Johnson of other fights

instead of looking so hungry-eyed at Roterer Smith when Flynn began butting, he would have broken his hold and punched Flynn clear across the ropes.

The different views held in regard to the Johnson-Flynn match were not a circumstance, however, to the confusions of opinions that existed at the Wolgast-Rivers ring-side. It used to be said that a man interested in boxing did not have to attend a fight to gain an idea of what happened—that he could read all the accounts of the affair and strike an average. Anyone who could follow this course in the Los Angeles mill would have to be possessed of highly analytical mentality.

Whether Wolgast struck his opponent foul or fair, whether Rivers downed Wolgast with a chin crack or a smash in the pit, whether Wolgast fell athwart Rivers' knee, and whether Rivers was short counted, are points that will be argued for many a day to come.

Some of the opinions held are so positive in fact, that they would not surprise the writer to hear of some capacious critic taking issue with the moving pictures on the

score that they did not give a fatal portrayal of the closing scenes of the lightweight championship.

It all means good business for the shadowgraphs of both mills probably, for where there are points in dispute the average sport likes to take in the picture and judge for himself.

One of the interested spectators at the Rivers-Wolgast contest was Willie Ritchie, the San Francisco lad who gave Wolgast such a hard time of it in a four round bout in this city a couple of months ago. Ritchie thinks that if there is a return match between Wolgast and Rivers, the champion will win out to a certainty. He says that Rivers' punches did not hurt Wolgast, whereas, every blow he landed made the Mexican wince.

"At that I do not think Ad showed either the speed or the punching power he displayed when he fought me," said Ritchie. "I will move heaven and earth to secure a bout for the championship with Wolgast, and if there is any hitch in the arrangements with Rivers, I think I will stand a good chance to get a match. I am very earnest about this, and to show my sincerity, am willing to bet my little accumulations on the result. I have not much—a few thousand dollars—but the instant Wolgast evinces a willingness to sign I will be prepared to wager all I possess on the outcome. The only stipulation I make is that the money be placed at the odds which prevail when the date of the fight is close at hand. I think this is only fair."

There are any number who consider Ritchie if anything a more formidable opponent than Rivers for Wolgast. It is even hinted that the champion is of the same way of thinking, and has said, "Get Rivers for me. Ritchie can wait."

If the Rivers-Wolgast bout goes through it is likely that Ritchie will be signed by one of the coast promoters for a match with Knockout Brown of New York or some other likely lightweight the idea being have a challenger for the winner in the Wolgast-Rivers affair.

FIND INTEREST IN DETROIT'S FINE NEW ELECTRIC SIGN.
STUDEBAKER AUTO PLANT
MADE VISIBLE FOR MILES ABOUT CITY.

The army of tourists who annually visit Detroit find an additional feature of interest along the river front this year in what is said to be the largest electric sign in existence and the largest ever erected outside New York. The sign decorates Plant 3 of the Studebaker Corporation's system. This plant is located on the river bank at the corner of Clark and W. Jefferson avenues, and is admirably situated for such a display. "Studebaker Automobiles Studebaker" is the lettering, blazing forth in 340 feet of length and with its capitals ten feet high.

The sign is plainly legible from more than a mile and a half, and can be plainly seen from Belle Isle and Fort Wayne, at opposite extremes of the river. Just 2,374 five-watt, eleven and a half volt Mazda lamps are used for illumination. Light is furnished by a 230 volt current, stepped to eleven and a half volts through thirteen low voltage, 1000 watt transformers, each of which takes care of three letters of the sign.

The sign was built under the direction of E. H. Wilsner, chief electrician of the Studebaker Corporation.

The Camden N. J. Fire Department boasts a flying squadron that is willing to take on all-comers in a speed and efficiency test. The department has just brought three Studebaker roadsters of the "Speedster Twenty" type, has had them equipped with chemical apparatus and goes to blazes at a mile-a-minute speed rate whenever traffic conditions permit.

NEW ADDITION TO THE PAIGE COMPANY

It is announced in Detroit that the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has just closed a deal whereby they have acquired and will take over one of the United States Motor Company's plants located on Leib and Larned streets. This large factory will be devoted entirely to the manufacture of Paige Motors, the Motor Department thereby being separated from the main plant at Baker and Twenty-second streets, and leaving all the space in these buildings for other departments. The new motor plant is being equipped with the finest automatic machinery of the very latest design and will have a capacity of seventy-five motors per day.

This last addition to the already large factories of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company has caused considerable comment in the "Auto City," for it is the second time that this company has increased its factory capacity this season. In March the demand for their product was so heavy that it was decided to double the factory capacity and for this purpose an entire factory located on the property adjoining the original Paige plant was acquired. The unprecedented increase in their business, however, was such that within a very short time it was again necessary to have more floor space. The success of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company and their rapid strides they have made is a matter of great pride to Detroit.

The Week in Society

By Henrietta L. Keyes.

The sultry days of July and August herald the vacation time of the year, when every man, woman and child longs for complete rest and change. Prominent social leaders, and workers are likewise enjoying this time of quietness and rest, and very few events of interest or importance have occurred in social circles this closing week in July. Many of those popular in Society are spending vacations at the mountains, lakes, or summer resorts, and will probably not return to resume their round of pleasurable social events until the autumn season reopens.

One very prettily appointed five o'clock tea given by Mrs. Oscar N. Young in honor of her guest, Miss Margaret Sheridan, of Piqua, was an event of Monday.

Thursday, Ladies' Day at Shawnee Country Club, was one of the gaiety and pleasure for a large number of the lady members of the club. The weather was ideal, the golf match intensely interesting, and the midday luncheon one of the most splendid prepared by Miss Hutchinson and her attendants.

Thursday, also witnessed the marriage of two young people prominent among the younger clientele of Society, when Miss Lucile Albrecht and Mr. Robert Horn were wedded at Trinity parsonage. The young bride has been complimented by many pretty social affairs since the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Horn last spring.

The young people have also enjoyed several pleasant dancing parties, the one at MacBeth's Park occurring, Wednesday evening, which was followed, Thursday evening by the lawn party and dance given by Miss Frances Wright at her west Market street home.

The military euche party, which was to have been an event of Friday, at the Country Club was postponed because of the many outside attractions offered in the city this past week, and especially on that day, and the numerous engagements that participants had to fill.

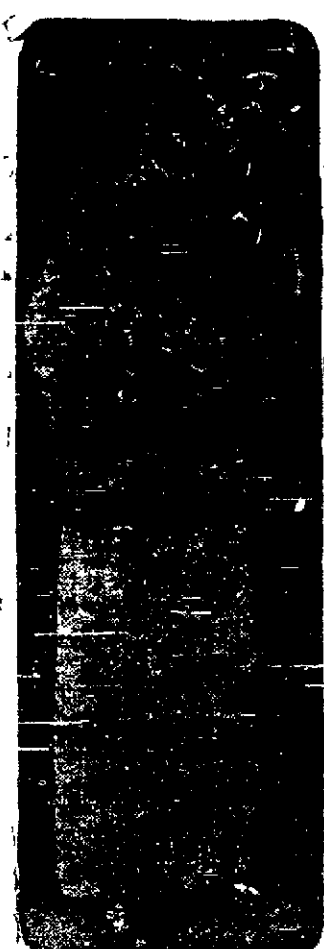

Dance Society is now looking eagerly forward to the golden autumn time and the bright galaxy of beautiful events that will follow with renewed enthusiasm after the season of holiday and rest.

Thursday, Ladies' Day at Shawnee Country Club, witnessed the concluding match play for the trophy cup at the golf links. The players were Mrs. R. W. Thrift and Mrs. J. C. Llaneman, and the match was viewed with enthusiastic interest by other golf lovers. Mrs. Thrift won over her opponent, two up, and is therefore the winner of the trophy cup. The cup, first offered by Mr. J. C. Llaneman as a consolation prize for the loser, being won by Mrs. Llaneman, will now be offered as a trophy to be played for by the runners up in the first match game of golf played at the Country Club a few weeks ago. The ladies who will participate in this contest number the six winners over their opponents in the first game and include: Mrs. E. M. Gooding, Mrs. Earl Swan, Miss Minerva Blum, Mrs. Harry Moulton, Mrs. Dwight Bayly, and Mrs. C. F. Lufkin. These matches will be played off before next Thursday, and all prizes will be awarded the following Saturday. Much interest and enthusiasm centers about these final plays.

Sixty-six ladies enjoyed a very delicious luncheon at the club Thursday and many remained during the afternoon indulging in the various pleasures that the attractive Country Club affords.

The sacred marriage vows uniting two young lives were once more spoken and accepted, when at nine o'clock, Thursday morning, Miss Lucile Albrecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Albrecht became the bride of Mr. Robert Horn, son of Mrs. D. F. Horn, of 507 west Market street. Rev. M. B. Fuller, of Trinity M. E. church, performing the holy ceremony. The young couple were unattended, and the plighting of vows was witnessed by only the immediate families. The marriage occurred at the parsonage of the officiating clergyman. The young bride looked charming in a handsome suit of mustard brown and wore a large white panama hat with black trimmings.

Immediately after the ceremony, the newly married pair, departed for a northern trip along the lakes, traveling as far as Columbus Grove on a local traction car, at which place they boarded a train and continued their journey. The wedding came as a surprise to the large circle of friends of both young people, the marriage being a secret until the bride and groom were far on their honeymoon journey. The announcement of the young couple was announced early in the spring. After a ten days trip on the lakes, they will return to this city and will be at home to their friends at their attractive home on west North street after September first.

The bride is a charming young lady widely known and highly esteemed by a legion of friends. She received her education in the local schools, and was a graduate from the city high school in the class of 1907.

The groom is a prosperous young business man, having recently established the new candy shop on west Market. He, too, was educated in the schools of the city, finishing his education at the Cuver Military academy in Indiana.

The large circle of friends extend best wishes and congratulations to the happy couple.

A charming lawn party and dance in honor of Miss Ella Schaeuwer, of Sharon, Pa., was given by Miss Frances Wright, at her home on west Market street, Thursday evening. A color scheme of vivid red was used in decoration of the large parlor where a splendid program of dances was enjoyed by the young people. Intermissions were spent on the beautiful lawn, and at the close of the evening's pleasures, a dainty luncheon was served.

The young people participating in the festivities were: the Misses Grace Spellaey, Eileen Mooney, of Canton, Mary Stolzenbach, Lenore Boone, Esther Wemmer, Elizabeth Brice, Marie Nagle, Marjorie Borves, Selma Weikelbaum, Dorothea Richards, Miss Ella Schaeuwer, the honor guest and Miss Frances Wright, the hostess; and Harry Horner, Joe Davison, Mac Thompson, Donald Mehafter, Austin O'Connor, Walter Groff, of Philadelphia, Paul Ireland, Harold Seymour, Matthias Richards, Norbert Kaufman, Emmett Curtin, Clarence Crites, John Carnos, Benjamin Motter, Ralph La Porte, of Chicago, Glenn Fuller, Edward Stolzenbach and Warren Parmenter.

The Independent Twelve had a royal good time and vote Mrs. Augusta Reynolds of north Main street, a model hostess. The regular meeting of the club was held with Mrs. Reynolds Thursday afternoon, July 18th. At roll call Mrs. Pence, Mrs. Mary Sells and Mrs. Golda Sells were absent, each one being out of the city. The club entertained as visitors, Mrs. George Reeder, of Canton, Pa. Mrs. S. A. Robb, of Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Pearson, of this city. Under the Good of the Club, Mrs. Dennis read a fine paper which caused much merriment. She also read a selection entitled "The Quinceyville Rag" which was greatly enjoyed by all present. Next came Mrs. Minnie Saltz with a reading called "When News are Scarce." Mrs. Reynolds added her might to the fun by reading "Rules of a Ho-ness the hostess put us to work giving us a contest entitled the "Pussy Puzzle." Only those familiar with cats had any chance on this and therefore Mrs. Saltz and Mrs. Stickle were the lucky ones. In a contest entitled "The Musicians Catechism," Mrs. Dennis won first prize and Margaret Gordon was coisoleed. The hostess served a delicious luncheon.

Mrs. Geo. Overholtz, of west Wayne street, on Thursday afternoon, opened her home to the members of the Kyria Club. All members were present with the exception of Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Keller. The Club held its regular business meeting, after which the afternoon was spent in social chat, while Mrs. Rodney Lynch presided at the piano. The hostess had also planned a clever contest. Mrs. Wolf being winner of a beautiful hand embroidered handkerchief. Miss Ethel Edwards of St. Mary's winning the guests prize, a beautiful corsage bouquet of sweet peas. The hostess assisted by her sister, served a delicious three course luncheon.

Plans were made at this meeting for the annual picnic which will be held on next Thursday at the City Park. The guests of the Club were Mrs. Chas. Edwards and daughter, Ethel, of St. Mary's, and Mrs. Rodney Lynch.

A dainty five o'clock tea, of pink and blue appointments, in compliment to Miss Margaret Sheridan, of Piqua, O., was celebrated at the charming home of Mrs. Oscar N. Young, at 523 west Elm street, Monday evening.

In the pretty and inviting dining room, all decorations for the occasion were effected in pale pink and delicate blue. Small tables charmingly arranged were adorned by huge baskets filled with pink sweet peas, tied with enormous bows of pale pink and blue maline, while lighted pink tapers lent an added charm to the pretty scene. A neat little card marked each guest's place, and pink and blue nut baskets were found at each cover.

A delectable menu was beautifully served in four courses, by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Laudick. The list of delicacies included: Fruit Cocktail in Muskmelon Cups, Veal Loaf, Creamed Potatoes, Hot Tea Biscuits, Waldorf Salad in Orange Baskets, Ice Cream, Cake (pink icing).

After partaking of the dainties, the guests repaired to the living room and spent a pleasant social hour before departing. Huge bunches of crimson roses were used in decoration in this room.

The guests who participated in Mrs. Young's hospitality were, Miss Margaret Sheridan, of Piqua, O., Miss Foreste Ireland, Miss Nora Sprague, Miss Alice Wright, Miss Marguerite Zender, Miss Margaret Sealts, Miss Imogene Shook, Miss Lillian Deisel, Miss Dorothy Downing, Miss Mildred Kline, of Parkersburg, W. Va., Miss Ruth Thompson, Miss Pauline Hoover, Miss Marie Opp, Miss Ada Schermerhorn and Miss Anna Peate.

The members of the Colloquium Club were very pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Henry English at her home on south Main street, Thursday afternoon. Fancy work and social intercourse made the time pass happily. At four o'clock the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Irene English, served a dainty two-course luncheon.

Guests of the club for the afternoon were: Mrs. E. C. Powell, Mrs. George Dyer, Mrs. Bell, and Mrs. John Shertzer, of Dewey, Okla.

The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Frank Fochler, of west High street, as hostess.

Startlingly white, with the brilliance of diamonds and the mellow luster of pearls, are some of the windows of the great jeweler's shops wherein are displayed the two favorite stones of the present season.

The fashion for choosing diamonds and necklaces set entirely with diamonds is very noticeable at present, and if a contrasting gem is required, it is the pearl that is usually taken. An exception to this rule noticed the other day was a diadem of diamonds with a background of sapphires. The sapphires were cut in such a way that they looked like shadows, forming a dark design that served to throw into blazing relief the diamonds that formed the principal portion of the ornament.

Size is a great attraction in many of the new ornaments. The pearl and diamond discs worn are simply enormous, and the new diamond pendant is a gigantic affair and of a very curious shape. It recalls the strange Assyrian designs and the primitive Russian patterns seen in ancient sculpture and old needle-

Many old Russian designs are being introduced at this season, and their magnificence is at once apparent. Nothing is more attractive to the eye than the Russian diadem, the new pendant is just as imposing. Old Roumanian and Spanish jewelry is being worn. Quite a cult of treasures is noticeable, and not only for the gem-set pendants, necklaces, and brooches from those countries, but for the silver buttons worn by the peasants of Scandinavia.

Miss Grace Moore, of west High street, was charming hostess to the members of the N. B. O. O. club at her home, Saturday afternoon. The meeting took the form of a porch-party, where the guests assembled beneath a bower of graceful festoons, all in lavender and white, the colors of the club. At roll call, each member responded by reciting a humorous story, and much merriment followed each girl's recital. A clever contest improvised by the hostess afforded interesting entertainment for some time, at the close of which the winner was awarded a dainty prize in the form of a beautiful embroidery apron. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in embroidery and gaily chatting, and as a conclusion to the merriment, a delicious luncheon was served on the porch. The splendid menu consisted of:

|------------------------------|-------------|
| Potato Chips.                | Olives.     |
| Bread and Butter Sandwiches. | Chocolate.  |
| Tutti Frutti.                | Egg Kisses. |
| Macaroons.                   | Mints.      |

Miss Clara Graham charmingly entertained a number of her friends at a dinner party given in the private dining room of the Elks' Home on Thursday evening, in honor of her cousin, Miss Graham of Barnesville, O.

Decorations for the pretty affair were effected in a bright red, nut baskets, candles, and place-cards all corresponding in color. Red ribbons were gracefully fastened in central adornment of the table. A course, was partaken of by the delectable dinner served in several guests, who included Miss Graham, of Barnesville, Miss Eileen Mooney, of St. Mary's, Miss Grace Spellaey, and Miss Clara Graham, the hostess.

Mr. Don Dudley Potter, formerly of Logansport, Ind., and Miss Lucile Bogardus, of Lima, were quietly married at Windsor, Canada, on last Thursday, July the eleventh. The bridegroom is a member of the firm F. W. Potter & Co., of Elwood, Ind., and the bride is an attractive young lady and an excellent musician of this city. The young couple with the consent of their parents went to Canada for the romance of the trip, and also to spend their honeymoon. While away Mr. and Mrs. Potter spent several days in Detroit and Toledo visiting friends and after numerous excursions on Lake Erie, have returned to make their home in Lima at the present.

Eastern papers contain accounts of an elaborate wedding celebrated when Miss Florence Hooker, daughter of Supreme Court Justice Hooker, of Fredonia, N. Y., and Mr. Edwin Moon formerly of this city, were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. Dewitt C. Moon, general manager of the Lake Shore railroad. The son also held a responsible position on the same road while residing here, and was quite prominent in local social circles.

Very pretty lace blouses with waist belts of colored silk and basques front and back but cut away on the hips, are being worn a good deal. They are particularly becoming to slim people, and one was seen last week which looked very well with a trim black moire skirt. It was in rich Irish lace, with cuffs of black moire and a folded waist belt of the same. The basque behind was about a foot long, in front it was a little longer.

A donation of five hundred dollars for the new gymnasium of the Business Women's Club, made by Mrs. Helen Brice, in memory of her sister Miss Kate Brice, who died in France several months ago, has greatly encouraged the enthusiastic workers of the club in their efforts and plans for the new addition to the club house on west Market street, which it is hoped, may be built this autumn.

The military euche which was to have been given by Shawnee Country Club, Friday afternoon, was postponed until later, many of the ladies having other engagements. In its stead, a bridge was given for those who wished to participate, and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the club rooms. Though not an elaborate or brilliant affair, the bridge was charmingly appointed and proved a source of genuine interest and delight to all who took part in the games. At the close of the series of rubbers played, four prizes were awarded to the following highest score holders: Mrs. Madge Mitchell Barnes, Mrs. Will Mehaffey, Mrs. King, recently from Philadelphia, and Mrs. Oliver Streiner. Dainty refreshments were served as a conclusion to the afternoon's pleasures.

Tuesday afternoon, little Miss Cynthia Suydam was pleasantly surprised by a number of her friends, who gathered at her home to help her celebrate her tenth birthday.

The surprise was complete. The afternoon was spent in instrumental and vocal music and games, after which the guests were invited to the dining room, where they were served with ice cream, cake, fruit and lemonade.

They then departed wishing Miss Cynthia many happy returns of the day.

Those present were: Vivian Graham, Hazel Boogher, Sarah Bowsher, Lila McClintock, Hazel Miller, Inza Graham, Alice Boogher, Inez McClintock, Leona Harshman, Goldie Thompson, Hazel Dotson, Viola Bowsher, Mabel Mowery, Flossie Mowery, Cecil Bowsher, Eldora Oen, Jessie Bowsher, Marcella Bowsher, Cynthia Suydam, Marguerite Suydam, Earl Zerkel, Leroy Zerkel, Paul Miller and Ray Suydam.

A group of young people enjoyed a charming dancing party at the MacBeth Park pavilion Wednesday evening. The decorations for the occasion were pretty and effective, being carried out in a color scheme of green and yellow. The grand march was led by Harry Horner, who has recently returned from a theatrical school, and Miss Frances Wright. An excellent program followed this opening feature of the evening. During an intermission, a dainty luncheon of sandwiches, punch, olives, pickles, ice-cream, and cake, was served.

One-hundred young people tripped the toe fantastic to the strains of the enchanting music.

Out-of-town guests present for the delightful affair were Miss Hazel Wright of Cridersville, Fred Neff of Hume, and Miss Hortense Spellacy, of Bluffton.

A number of boys and girls enjoyed a delightful hay-ride, and pleasant evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Stenyer who reside about three miles from the city, Thursday evening. The merry party left the public square at half after seven o'clock. On arrival at the home of their host and hostess they were delightfully entertained, games, music and various socialities forming pleasant diversion. A dainty luncheon was also enjoyed before the return trip home.

The Young Ladies' Aid society of Market Street Presbyterian church, held their regular fortnightly meeting at the home of Mrs. B. A. Long, at 507 west North street, Wednesday afternoon. Sixteen members of the organization were present, and a pleasant session of sewing and chatting followed their arrival. Many dainty bits of needle work, which will be placed on sale at the annual autumn bazaar, nearing completion during the afternoon. At the close of the work hour, the hostess served dainty refreshments of sherbet and cakes.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the High Street U. B. church met Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joan Sawmiller, 1209 west Market street. About forty members were present. After a short program ice cream and cake were served as refreshments, and a social time was enjoyed by all. The society has been having a contest called the "Reds and Blues" which ended last evening, the Reds winning.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Holstein and little son, Sylvan, and Mrs. Lenore Wiesenthal returned Wednesday, from a ten day's automobile trip through Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. They traveled about twelve hundred miles, stopping enroute at Bloomington, Ill., Lafayette, Ind., Indianapolis, Muncie, Hamilton, and Dayton.

Mr. Martin Murphy, of east Findlay street, and Miss Blanche Wells, of Sandusky, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Thursday afternoon. The young couple left the same evening for a honeymoon trip in the East, after which they will return to make their home in this city. Mr. Murphy is employed as a brakeman on the C. & D. railroad.

Miss Cecile Stewart, of east High street was the charming hostess to the P. A. club girls on Thursday evening. A pleasant social time was enjoyed after which refreshments were served. The members present were: The Misses Frances Bresler, Grace Hey, Ruth Kelly, Helen Long, Bonnie Speas, Helen Doseker, Helen Miller and the hostess. The Misses Eva Oakes and Helen New Comb were guests of the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Bruzelius, of this city who are making an extended automobile tour of eastern states New England and portions of Canada, spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McDermott, of Park avenue, Woonsocket, R. I., according to an item in the Woonsocket, R. I. Call.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Spyker, of Greenlawn Avenue, entertained 20 friends, on Sunday, Miss Blanche Weist, of Battle Creek, Mich., being the honor guest. Miss Weist left for her home Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Spyker who went as far as Mandale, Ohio, where they will be the guests of the latter's great-grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Dorman.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold special called meeting, Tuesday afternoon, in order to perfect plans and arrangements for the entertainment of delegates who will attend the state convention, which will be held at Trinity M. E. church in October.

Mrs. J. T. Wolford, of north Collett street, who recently returned from a delightful visit in southern Ohio and Kentucky, has as her house guest, Mrs. McClintock, and sons, Robert and Earl, of Columbus.

Mrs. Leon Lowenstein and Mrs. Alex Frankel, entertained a number of Lima friends at an afternoon soiree party at their cottage, "Lakeland" at Russell's Point, Tuesday. The list of guests included Mrs. Henry Deisel, Sr., Mrs. Henry Wemmer, Mrs. John Galvin and Mrs. Al Patterson.

Mrs. Charles W. Stone and son, Charles Jr., and Miss Margaret Purcell, sister of Mrs. Stone, left Saturday for a short visit at Fremont, from which place Miss Purcell will proceed to Cleveland, later returning to her home in New York City.

Marriage rites uniting Miss Anna Weller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Weller, of north Elizabeth

Startlingly white, with the brilliance of diamonds and the mellow luster of pearls, are some of the windows of the great jeweler's shops wherein are displayed the two favorite stones of the present season.

The fashion for choosing diamonds and necklaces set entirely with diamonds is very noticeable at present, and if a contrasting gem is required, it is the pearl that is usually taken. An exception to this rule noticed the other day was a diadem of diamonds with a background of sapphires. The sapphires were cut in such a way that they looked like shadows, forming a dark design that served to throw into blazing relief the diamonds that formed the principal portion of the ornament.

Size is a great attraction in many of the new ornaments. The pearl and diamond discs worn are simply enormous, and the new diamond pendant is a gigantic affair and of a very curious shape. It recalls the strange Assyrian designs and the primitive Russian patterns seen in ancient sculpture and old needle-

work and makes a magnificent display, with its long fringes slung upon a platinum chain punctured with diamonds at intervals.

Many old Russian designs are being introduced at this season, and their magnificence is at once apparent. Nothing is more attractive to the eye than the Russian diadem, the new pendant is just as imposing. Old Roumanian and Spanish jewelry is being worn. Quite a cult of treasures is noticeable, and not only for the gem-set pendants, necklaces, and brooches from those countries, but for the silver buttons worn by the peasants of Scandinavia.

Miss Grace Moore, of west High street, was charming hostess to the members of the N. B. O. O. club at her home, Saturday afternoon. The meeting took the form of a porch-party, where the guests assembled beneath a bower of graceful festoons, all in lavender and white, the colors of the club. At roll call, each member responded by reciting a humorous story, and much merriment followed each girl's recital. A clever contest improvised by the hostess afforded interesting entertainment for some time, at the close of which the winner was awarded a dainty prize in the form of a beautiful embroidery apron. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in embroidery and gaily chatting, and as a conclusion to the merriment, a delicious luncheon was served on the porch. The splendid menu consisted of:

Potato Chips, Olives, Bread and Butter Sandwiches, Tutti Frutti, Chocolate, Macaroons, Egg Kisses, Mints.

Miss Clara Graham charmingly entertained a number of her friends at a dinner party given in the private dining room of the Elks' Home on Thursday evening, in honor of her cousin, Miss Graham of Barnesville, O.

Decorations for the pretty affair were effected in a bright red, nut baskets, candles, and place-cards all corresponding in color. Red ribbons were gracefully fastened in central adornment of the table. A course, was partaken of by the delectable dinner served in several guests, who included Miss Graham, of Barnesville, Miss Eileen Mooney, of St. Marys, Miss Grace Spellaey, and Miss Clara Graham, the hostess.

Mr. Don Dudley Potter, formerly of Logansport, Ind., and Miss Lucille Bogardus, of Lima, were quietly married at Windsor, Canada, on last Thursday, July the eleventh. The bridegroom is a member of the firm F. W. Potter & Co., of Elwood, Ind., and the bride is an attractive young lady and an excellent musician of this city. The young couple with the consent of their parents went to Canada for the romance of the trip, and also to spend their honeymoon. While away Mr. and Mrs. Potter spent several days in Detroit and Toledo visiting friends and after numerous excursions on Lake Erie, have returned to make their home in Lima at the present.

Eastern papers contain accounts of an elaborate wedding celebrated when Miss Florence Hooker, daughter of Supreme Court Justice Hooker, of Fredonia, N. Y., and Mr. Edwin Moon formerly of this city, were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. Dewitt C. Moon, general manager of the Lake Shore railroad. The son also held a responsible position on the same road while residing here, and was quite prominent in local social circles.

Very pretty lace blouses with waist belts of colored silk and basques front and back but cut away on the hips, are being worn a good deal. They are particularly becoming to slim people, and one was seen last week which looked very well with a trim black moire skirt. It was in rich Irish lace, with cuffs of black moire and a folded waist belt of the same. The basque behind was about a foot long, in front it was a little longer.

A donation of five hundred dollars for the new gymnasium of the Business Women's Club, made by Mrs. Helen Brice, in memory of her sister Miss Kate Brice, who died in France several months ago, has greatly encouraged the enthusiastic workers of the club in their efforts and plans for the new addition to the club house on west Market street, which it is hoped, may be built this autumn.

The military euche which was to have been given by Shawnee Country Club, Friday afternoon, was postponed until later, many of the ladies having other engagements. In its stead, a bridge was given for those who wished to participate, and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the club rooms. Though not an elaborate or brilliant affair, the bridge was charmingly appointed and proved a source of genuine interest and delight to all who took part in the games. At the close of the series of rubbers played, four prizes were awarded to the following highest score holders: Mrs. Madge Mitchell Barnes, Mrs. Will Mehaffey, Mrs. King, recently from Philadelphia, and Mrs. Oliver Stelner. Dainty refreshments were served as a conclusion to the afternoon's pleasures.

Tuesday afternoon, little Miss Cynthia Suydam was pleasantly surprised by a number of her friends, who gathered at her home to help her celebrate her tenth birthday.

The surprise was complete. The afternoon was spent in instrumental and vocal music and games, after which the guests were invited to the dining room, where they were served with ice cream, cake, fruit and lemonade.

They then departed wishing Miss Cynthia many happy returns of the day.

Those present were: Vivian Graham, Hazel Boogher, Sarah Bowsher, Lila McClintock, Hazel Miller, Inza Graham, Alice Boogher, Inez McClintock, Leona Harshman, Goldie Thompson, Hazel Dotson, Viola Bowsher, Mabel Mowery, Flossie Mowery, Cecil Bowsher, Eldora Oen, Jessie Bowsher, Marcella Bowsher, Cynthia Suydam, Marguerite Suydam, Earl Zerkel, Leroy Zerkel, Paul Miller and Ray Suydam.

A group of young people enjoyed a charming dancing party at the MacBeth Park pavilion Wednesday evening. The decorations for the occasion were pretty and effective, being carried out in a color scheme of green and yellow. The grand march was led by Harry Horner, who has recently returned from a theatrical school, and Miss Frances Wright. An excellent program followed this opening feature of the evening. During an intermission, a dainty luncheon of sandwiches, punch, olives, pickles, ice-cream, and cake, was served.

One-hundred young people tripped the toe fantastic to the strains of the enchanting music.

Out-of-town guests present for the delightful affair were Miss Hazel Wright of Cridersville, Fred Neff of Hume, and Miss Hortense Spellacy, of Bluffton.

A number of boys and girls enjoyed a delightful hay-ride, and pleasant evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Stenyer who reside about three miles from the city, Thursday evening. The merry party left the public square at half after seven o'clock. On arrival at the home of their host and hostess they were delightfully entertained, games, music and various socialities forming pleasant diversion. A dainty luncheon was also enjoyed before the return trip home.

The Young Ladies' Aid society of Market Street Presbyterian church, held their regular fortnightly meeting at the home of Mrs. B. A. Long, at 507 west North street, Wednesday afternoon. Sixteen members of the organization were present, and a pleasant session of sewing and chatting followed their arrival. Many dainty bits of needle work, which will be placed on sale at the annual autumn bazaar, nearing completion during the afternoon. At the close of the work hour, the hostess served dainty refreshments of sherbet and cakes.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the High Street U. B. church met Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joan Sawmiller, 1209 west Market street. About forty members were present. After a short program ice cream and cake were served as refreshments, and a social time was enjoyed by all. The society has been having a contest called the "Reds and Blues" which ended last evening, the Reds winning.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Holstein and little son, Sylvan, and Mrs. Lenore Wiesenthal returned Wednesday, from a ten day's automobile trip through Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. They traveled about twelve hundred miles, stopping enroute at Bloomington, Ill., Lafayette, Ind., Indianapolis, Muncie, Hamilton, and Dayton.

Mr. Martin Murphy, of east Findlay street, and Miss Blanche Wells, of Sandusky, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Thursday afternoon. The young couple left the same evening for a honeymoon trip in the East, after which they will return to make their home in this city. Mr. Murphy is employed as a brakeman on the C. & D. railroad.

Miss Cecile Stewart, of east High street was the charming hostess to the P. A. club girls on Thursday evening. A pleasant social time was enjoyed after which refreshments were served. The members present were: The Misses Frances Bresler, Grace Hey, Ruth Kelly, Helen Leck, Bonnie Speas, Helen Doseker, Helen Miller and the hostess. The Misses Eva Oakes and Helen New Comb were guests of the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Bruzelius, of this city who are making an extended automobile tour of eastern states New England and portions of Canada, spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McDermott, of Park avenue, Woonsocket, R. I., according to an item in the Woonsocket, R. I. Call.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Spyker, of Greenlawn Avenue, entertained 20 friends, on Sunday, Miss Blanche Weist, of Battle Creek, Mich., being the honor guest. Miss Weist left for her home Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Spyker who went as far as Mandale, Ohio, where they will be the guests of the latter's grand-mother, Mrs. Sarah Dorman.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold special called meeting, Tuesday afternoon, in order to perfect plans and arrangements for the entertainment of delegates who will attend the state convention, which will be held at Trinity M. E. church in October.

Mrs. J. T. Wolford, of north Collett street, who recently returned from a delightful visit in southern Ohio and Kentucky, has as her house guest, Mrs. McClintock, and sons, Robert and Earl, of Columbus.

Mrs. Leon Lowenstein and Mrs. Alex Frankel, entertained a number of Lima friends at an afternoon soiree party at their cottage, "Lakeland" at Russell's Point, Tuesday. The list of guests included Mrs. Henry Deisel, Sr., Mrs. Henry Wemmer, Mrs. John Galvin and Mrs. Al Patterson.

Mrs. Charles W. Stone and son, Charles Jr., and Miss Margaret Purcell, sister of Mrs. Stone, left Saturday for a short visit at Fremont, from which place Miss Purcell will proceed to Cleveland, later returning to her home in New York City.

The Wedding Anniversary

"John, do you know what day this is?"
"Yes, July 21st, and our wedding anniversary. did you think I had forgotten?"
"No, you are always thoughtful, and liberal in your plans for me and the children except—"
"Except what?"
"It is that one except that I want to talk to you about this evening"—
"We have been married just seventeen years. All that time you have worked hard, and denied yourself everything but necessities, that the rest of us might be provided for, and except—"
"For heaven's sake, tell me what the except is."
"Except—that you have never made any provision for us to have a permanent home."
"The only reason why I have never secured a permanent home, is because I have never had the money to invest in a home of our own."
"But we have always had a comfortable residence, and you have paid the rent."
"Yes, but all that is gone."
"GONE—that is the very thing I have been thinking about since last Thursday."
"Since last Thursday?"
"Yes—last Thursday, while I was house cleaning, I came across a bundle of rent receipts. Just to satisfy my curiosity, I added them up, and found that during these seventeen years, you have earned and paid to the landlord MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND AND DOLLARS—and it is ALL GONE. Don't you see, John, that in all that time we could have owned a home of our own."
"No, I wouldn't buy a home on the installment plan, because by the time it is paid for, we will have paid almost as much interest as principal; I won't let anybody get that much interest out of me."
"Supposing what you say is true, you have paid the landlord MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS in seventeen years, and all that you can show for it, is a complete file of rent receipts. Supposing we had been paying on a home, and had paid one-half of the amount in interest, we would at least have an equity of FIFTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS in this house. And besides, this property has increased in value at least ONE-THIRD since we have lived here, and will continue to increase in value in the future."
"I had never thought about it that way before. But I have never seen a house that suited me perfectly. I would want to decide on the plan."
"Very well then, suppose we buy a lot, and build a house."
"I am perfectly willing—and by the way, I saw some lots advertised the other day in the paper for from $250 to $350 and on easy terms; I think we are able to buy one of those cheap lots."
"That is exactly what we cannot afford to do. I was talking to Mrs. Experience yesterday, (you know they bought a lot cheap) she said that they were told to buy where lots are cheap, but that when they tried to borrow some money to build—the Building Associations were "loaned up to the limit," although our mutual friend, Mrs. Wise's husband had no trouble to secure money to supplement what he had saved."
"Where did Mr. Experience buy a lot?"
"I don't know exactly, but in some out of the way addition."
"Didn't Experience know better than that?"

"He didn't know then, but he knows NOW. They told him that there was a sewer, and that there "will be water"—he found that there was a sewer (?) but it would not have carried the sewerage from a canary bird's cage. The water did come—sooner than it was expected—and it is there yet, about six inches deep. They are like us—they have a receipt. What we must do, is to buy a lot where there is a scientific and adequate system of sewers, water and gas, and where the location is such that we can confidently expect the property to increase in value rapidly."

"Lots like you describe cost anywhere from $500 to $1,000."

"Yes, but they are WORTH IT, and those are the lots that will be worth twice that amount in a few years. Don't you think your family is good enough to live in the best locality in the city? And, John—Don't you see that good business men never buy those cheap lots? You know that Mr. Successful has made money by investing his money—only a little at first, but the property he bought has grown into money. You have not had much experience in investing money, John, but it seems very plain to me that the place to buy, is where successful men have bought—NOT WHERE SUCKERS BIT, LAST YEAR."

"What you say sounds well. Through these seventeen years you have been a good faithful wife. I am sorry that we didn't start sooner. Where do you think we had better look for a lot?"

"I have already looked, and besides looking, I have asked for advice. Then I investigated. The best lots for sale in the city (at reasonable prices) are in the new addition—"West Lakewood." It lies along Woodlawn avenue—from Lakewood to West Elm street. All of the improvements are complete, the location is ideal. Nearly all the lots have been bought by intelligent people; one beautiful house has already been built. The prices are as low as is consistent with the location, and improvements; and the terms are made to suit anybody who really wants to secure a building site. I have also found that it is very easy to borrow the money to build in this addition."

"I have heard that West Lakewood is the most highly improved addition ever sold in Lima, but I have never seen it."

"Well, I want you to see it."

"All right. Saturday afternoon, we will take the West Market street car, and walk from the end of the line to West Lakewood."

"Well, John, if that is all the walk you are going to take, only a minute is necessary. The West Market street cars run to within ONE BLOCK of the property. But we need not even walk that distance. Just let me know what hour you can go, and I will telephone 2430 (either phone). The promoters of West Lakewood will send an automobile for us. Then you can ask all the questions you want. They court investigation. I want you to ask POINTEDLY about the size of the sewers, water and gas mains, and I want you to ascertain beyond a doubt that all the improvements are paid for, because you know if they are not paid for when the property is sold—the buyer is compelled by assessment to pay afterward. These are the important points to be considered."

"Mary, you talk like a wise woman. I am going to take your advice. Telephone the company—is their name in the telephone book?"

"Yes—I know all about that."

The Wedding Anniversary

"John, do you know what day this is?"
"Yes, July 21st, and our wedding anniversary. did you think I had forgotten?"
"No, you are always thoughtful, and liberal in your plans for me and the children except—"
"Except what?"
"It is that one except that I want to talk to you about this evening"—
"We have been married just seventeen years. All that time you have worked hard, and denied yourself everything but necessities, that the rest of us might be provided for, and except—"
"For heaven's sake, tell me what the except is."
"The only reason why I have never secured a permanent home, is because I have never had the money to invest in a home of our own."
"But we have always had a comfortable residence, and you have paid the rent."
"Yes, but all that is gone."
"GONE—that is the very thing I have been thinking about since last Thursday."
"Since last Thursday?"
"Yes—last Thursday, while I was house cleaning, I came across a bundle of rent receipts. Just to satisfy my curiosity, I added them up, and found that during these seventeen years, you have earned and paid to the landlord MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS—and it is ALL GONE. Don't you see, John, that in all that time we could have owned a home of our own."
"No, I wouldn't buy a home on the installment plan, because by the time it is paid for, we will have paid almost as much interest as principal; I won't let anybody get that much interest out of me."
"Supposing what you say is true, you have paid the landlord MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS in seventeen years, and all that you can show for it, is a complete file of rent receipts. Supposing we had been paying on a home, and had paid one-half of the amount in interest, we would at least have an equity of FIFTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS in this house. And besides, this property has increased in value at least ONE-THIRD since we have lived here, and will continue to increase in value in the future."
"I had never thought about it that way before. But I have never seen a house that suited me perfectly. I would want to decide on the plan."
"Very well then, suppose we buy a lot, and build a house."
"I am perfectly willing—and by the way, I saw some lots advertised the other day in the paper for from $250 to $350 and on easy terms; I think we are able to buy one of those cheap lots."
"That is exactly what we cannot afford to do. I was talking to Mrs. Experience yesterday, (you know they bought a lot cheap) she said that they were told to buy where lots are cheap, but that when they tried to borrow some money to build—the Building Associations were "loaned up to the limit," although our mutual friend, Mrs. Wise's husband had no trouble to secure money to supplement what he had saved."
"Where did Mr. Experience buy a lot?"
"I don't know exactly, but in some out of the way addition."
"Didn't Experience know better than that?"

"He didn't know then, but he knows NOW. They told him that there was a sewer, and that there "will be water"—he found that there was a sewer (?) but it would not have carried the sewerage from a canary bird's cage. The water did come—sooner than it was expected—and it is there yet, about six inches deep. They are like us—they have a receipt. What we must do, is to buy a lot where there is a scientific and adequate system of sewers, water and gas, and where the location is such that we can confidently expect the property to increase in value rapidly."

"Lots like you describe cost anywhere from $500 to $1,000."
"Yes, but they are WORTH IT, and those are the lots that will be worth twice that amount in a few years. Don't you think your family is good enough to live in the best locality in the city? And, John—Don't you see that good business men never buy those cheap lots? You know that Mr. Successful has made money by investing his money—only a little at first, but the property he bought has grown into money. You have not had much experience in investing money, John, but it seems very plain to me that the place to buy, is where successful men have bought—NOT WHERE SUCKERS BIT, LAST YEAR."

"What you say sounds well. Through these seventeen years you have been a good faithful wife. I am sorry that we didn't start sooner. Where do you think we had better look for a lot?"

"I have already looked, and besides looking, I have asked for advice. Then I investigated. The best lots for sale in the city (at reasonable prices) are in the new addition—"West Lakewood." It lies along Woodlawn avenue—from Lakewood to West Elm street. All of the improvements are complete, the location is ideal. Nearly all the lots have been bought by intelligent people; one beautiful house has already been built. The prices are as low as is consistent with the location, and improvements; and the terms are made to suit anybody who really wants to secure a building site. I have also found that it is very easy to borrow the money to build in this addition."

"I have heard that West Lakewood is the most highly improved addition ever sold in Lima, but I have never seen it."

"Well, I want you to see it."

"All right. Saturday afternoon, we will take the West Market street car, and walk from the end of the line to West Lakewood."

"Well, John, if that is all the walk you are going to take, only a minute is necessary. The West Market street cars run to within ONE BLOCK of the property. But we need not even walk that distance. Just let me know what hour you can go, and I will telephone 2430 (either phone). The promoters of West Lakewood will send an automobile for us. Then you can ask all the questions you want. They court investigation. I want you to ask POINTEDLY about the size of the sewers, water and gas mains, and I want you to ascertain beyond a doubt that all the improvements are paid for, because you know if they are not paid for when the property is sold—the buyer is compelled by assessment to pay afterward. These are the important points to be considered."

"Mary, you talk like a wise woman. I am going to take your advice. Telephone the company—is their name in the telephone book?"

"Yes—I know all about that."

"Lucile" Coat and Skirt Showing the New "Drooping" Figure.

Lightful season arrives. The long plain lines of the afternoon gown shown in the photograph will appeal to all tall, slender women. This gown of plain natter blue charmeuse is almost seamless. It is made, of course, of the widest charmeuse. The only seams are under each sleeve and down each side. The sleeves cut in with the body are very long and narrow. Freedom of action and the necessary fullness at the bust line are given by three little crosswise plaits.

There is a slight draped effect at the front of the waistline given by two shallow folds just at the beltline. The rest of the robe falls in graceful folds to the floor. The skirt is very long in front and has a graceful clinging train. The only decoration in the whole gown consists of narrow bands of dull rose satin arranged in Greek border. With this gown is worn a large natter blue straw hat trimmed with white wings. The chiffon scarf is of dull rose chiffon.

In the sketches I am sending, you will notice the sunburst cloak, which has been said to be a triumph of simplicity and draping. More interesting perhaps is the coat and skirt shown in another sketch, which fashionable women are going to cultivate.

I am sending, too, a sketch of gown I created for Miss Gertie Millar in "Gypsy Love" which shows the effectiveness of a black costume when relieved by a glimmer of gold, flashes of scarlet and touches of purple and blue.

And then, not by any means least in interest among the season's creations are the new "Mermade" modes. If I may be permitted to thus christen the latest bathing dresses, which are really so attractive that they will give one a new interest in the daily dip, and more than make up for all the preliminary and subsequent trouble it involves. Though, to be sure, the necessary undressing and redressing are both silks very much simplified nowadays, thanks to the fact that underwear is reduced to a minimum, and that the all-in-one dress, with its array of stud-fasteners in place of refractory buttons and loops, or the even more elusive hook and eye, is practically the universal wear of women of all ages.

And, do you know, there is extraordinarily little difference between the day dress you will discard and the suit you will don for the sea, and whose fabric will almost certainly be the taffetas silk, which has been simply supreme all through the season, and is now bringing its brief but glorious reign to a by no means unworthy end by thus fashioning the smartest bathing dresses. For you may take it from me that the fever of favor for this particular fabric has burnt itself out by now, and that within the next two or three months we shall have transferred our allegiance from taffetas to bengalines and Ottomans, heavy soft crepes and the always exquisite charmeuse. Yes, taffetas has almost had its day, but in these, its last hours, you are going to love it almost as well as when it first made its appearance and its instantaneous success, and it will probably be associated with some of your greatest successes, if, for example, you elect to have a silken bathing dress whose tunic is all of demure black, save for just a central and bordering piping of cerise silk between narrow bandings

First Glimpses at the New Modes for Early Fall

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

of black braid and for some tiny, closely clustered buttons, which repeat and emphasize this same vivid coloring. The tunic is deeply curved in front and at the back, and sits up almost to the waist at either side, where bandings of braid hold it together sufficiently to preserve the slender outline of the figure, but not so closely as to hide the piquant presence and contrast of knickers of cerise silk. For this is the novelty note of the season's bathing dresses—the wearing of very brightly colored knickers, either cerise, emerald green, sapphire blue or royal purple, with a black tunic, the swathed turban head-dress always repeating and emphasizing the chosen and contrasting color, while very often, too, high satin boots and silk stockings to match will be added to a toilet which will certainly, therefore, be sufficiently eye-arresting to satisfy the woman who wants to attract attention. Oh! and you must not forget either to have a waterproof satin bag, which will give a final touch of color, while I would suggest, too, that you should provide for a very desirable variation of effect in your toilet by further investing in a cap of reversible satin, outwardly black, but just showing a flash of the inner color in the bow loops at one side, and then in a pair of black stockings and satin boots.

Another and somewhat less startling idea is to wear rather full "trousers" of black and white spotted foulard beneath a tunic of black taffetas, finished off with a deep sailor collar and loosely knotted scarf of the soft spotted silk, the correct accompaniments for this distinctly attractive toilet being black footwear and a square handkerchief of the foulard, which is laid over and permanently attached to an inner and closely fitting cap of rubber which protect the hair and leaves the outer silk free for draping and decorative purposes. The other most favored form of headwear is a Dutch cap, which is generally made in plaid silk, and always provided with a capacious bag of waterproof silk to match, the care which is taken to have all the accessories of even these somewhat informal toilets in complete accord being a very satisfactory sign of feminine realization of the importance of the little details in any successful scheme of dress.

My Secrets of Beauty // By Mme. Lina Cavalieri The Greatest Living Beauty //

No. 184---ARE YOU RUN DOWN?

MME. CAVALIERI tells to-day how the woman who is "run down" may regenerate herself. It isn't a question of too little exercise, she declares, but rather a matter of too much. Rest, sleep and plenty of fresh air are among the remedies she suggests, in an article full of valuable advice.

By Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

YOU are "all run down," you say? Have you ever considered what that old-fashioned phrase means? Then you have not watched any one tire from running, his muscles limp, his head bent, his features drawn, his eyes dull from exhaustion. When you are "all run down" you are in exactly the condition of that spent runner. What does the runner do? Rest. What should you do? Rest. Well meaning persons seeing your dull eyes and noting your listless manner may advise exercise, but that is because they mistake lag for sluggishness. If you are growing fat and heavy and inert from inactivity, assuredly you need exercise, but being "all run down" is quite a different state. In the first case your vitality is clogged and impeded. In this the vitality is nearly gone. The reservoir of your strength is almost empty. It is a matter of the greatest concern to you to, as soon as possible, refill it. First rest. "Catch up" with sleep. Or, as I have heard busy persons who hoarded the precious gold of health say, "sleep ahead." Take more than the actual rest required to meet the demands upon your strength at this time, in anticipation of the demands of the future. It is a marvel what an upbuilder is the simple device of going to bed an hour or two hours earlier than usual. Try it. Give it the thorough trial of continuing it for at least two weeks or more. The enfolding, threadbare mantle of the years will seem to fall away from you. Your eyes will be brighter, your complexion clear and more pink, your step lighter and your spirits higher. In brief you will be younger.

Never mind if you cannot sleep at first. Be persistent and woo the "sweet restorer." Do not believe that the late hour habit of years cannot be broken. It can. I know, for I have broken it.

Take a midday rest. The best method is to retire to a dark room, loosen your stays, lie flat upon your back, without a pillow. But if this is not feasible, at least recline in one of the long chairs used on the deck of a steamer, or sit with your limbs outstretched on a level with the seat of your chair. Go where you can get the cleanest, freshest air, and breathe deeply of it. If you are in a city go to the roof,

Mme. Lina Cavalieri

Draw the Towel Across the Shoulders So Briskly That the Skin Tingles.

At the same time eat nourishing food. Depend more upon careful chewing of the food than upon large quantities of it. Eat meat once a day and eat vegetables rich in iron, for they are makers of good blood. Eat asparagus and beet, cabbage and spinach and tomatoes and little bread, and that only of the coarse grained kind. Cleanse your lungs many times a day by inhaling deeply, holding the air in the lungs for as long a time as was spent in the inhaling, then sweep the lungs clean by expelling the air with long, deep breath.

When the rest and nourishing food and deep breathing are doing their work of rebuilding and you feel strong once more, exercise may be resumed. The easiest and most natural of these is stretching. Rise on tiptoes and stretch. Raising the arms above the head with finger tips extended, stretch, stretch, stretch. At the same time yawn if you can, for this frees the body of the poisons that are weighing down the lungs and vitiating the blood.

At this period of rebuilding the "run down" system, slow walking will be of benefit. Don't let any one tempt you to over-strenuous effort. Saunter. Refuse to hurry.

Have you a friction band? If not buy one. It will be money well expended. Or make one for yourself from a rough new towel. Fold the towel so that it will be four times its original thickness. Sew the folds firmly together on both sides and at the ends, and to the ends attach strong stitched bands. Grasping these bands firmly, draw the towel across the shoulders so briskly that the skin tingles and reddens. In the same way draw it across the back, the hips, the back of the legs, the stomach. But most important of all is it to vigorously rub the spine. To do this draw one end of the friction band over the shoulder and draw the band briskly up and down the back.

A glass of milk into which an egg has been beaten is a good beginning for the day, and a glass of hot milk on retiring a good way to complete it. Ten or more glassfuls of water drunk during the day will aid the rebuilding by washing away the poisons that have done the down-pulling.

Do your rebuilding as much as possible in the out-of-doors. If fresh air did not perform countless services for you it would steady your tired nerves by banishing worry. We never worry while drawing in great quantities of pure air.

Pat's Puzzler. "They call it an electric light," Pat condescended to his companion, "but it do beat me how they make the hairpins burn in that little bottle."

A Profitable Dish. After dinner at the cafe Bobby noticed with bulging eyes the heaping pile of change which the waiter brought back to his father. "Oh, papa!" he exclaimed. "Oh, papa! I'd like a plate of that too!"

Twenty Years After. "Why, John, what do you mean by burning our old love-letters?" "I have been reading them, by dear. After I die someone who wishes to contest my will might get hold of them and use them to prove I was insane!"

And In All the World-- No Place Like Home

BY A GROWN-UP CHILD.

EDITOR'S NOTE—A great deal has been said in the newspapers this week about the opening today of Gardendale, a new residence subdivision on the Allentown road, west of town. Other new residence properties in the same general section, have been brought prominently to notice by the report of a prospective extension of car service to that locality. Lima, it is pointed out, is hardly able to house her present population, and an estimated increase of 10,000 souls is to come at once, due to the expanding of industrial activities in the city. Homes will have to be built for these says E. H. Close, of Toledo, a realty expert who is backing his opinion by heavy investments here.

Home-building is, today, the big topic in Lima. "Own your own home," the old slogan, is ringing.

"What is the magic in that cry?" we asked a Lima man of more or less philosophical turn of mind. "What is there to a home, other than a shelter for the body, that makes men and women willing to toil and suffer and even to die? Can you make clear to readers of The News the inner meaning of this oldest and least-discussed subject in the world?"

"I don't know. But I can try, if you like," he replied.

We "liked," and here is what our friend wrote.

"I will build me a home," the Rich Man cried, and the more it costs, the better it is.

And roused him up in his strength and pride;

His workmen built him a palace fair,

A glittering pile that pierced the air

Far into the heights. No littlest thing

Was overlooked that might comfort bring.

An army of servants unceasingly wrought

The ease that they knew their master sought

And yet—and yet, the Rich Man cried;

"I haven't a home." And he turned aside

To wrestle alone with his loneliness.

Since riches had no power to bless

"I will build me a home," the Poor Man cried,

And a woman stooped as she stood by his side

And helped him to gather up stick and stone

Together they bowed their humble cot

And laughing children played about

While Love put Poverty's train to rout

"And oh, and oh," the Poor Man cried,

"My home I have here, and my heaven beside."

And he cared not a whit for the world's success

Since Love and Love's Labor alone can bless.

You are only a great big child, my friend, you who glance at this sentence and wonder if it will be worth your while to read further.

You prove the contention by the mere fact that here you are, Sunday, pausing in the midst of a busy life, drowsing through a newspaper in search of—

What?

Why, something to amuse you, of course. Something to take the place of the fairy tales of your earlier childhood. Something to make you laugh, or bring a tear to your eye, or possibly to inspire you with that momentary delicious thrill the old "ghost story" used to send quivering up your back and into your hair.

Admit, then, that you ARE still a child and come on and let's go home, together.

The old home! Do you recall that, from the earliest you can remember, you did not so much live in it as you were a part of it?

You rose in the morning, and from that moment till you kissed your mother goodnight and went to sleep you did not give home a thought.

You had home no more in your mind than you had the thought that you possessed a hand or a head. You used them alike, unthinkingly.

Then you "grew up." The home ties irked. You wanted to get away, to be independent. And finally, you did leave the old folks and fairly ran forth to "make your own place in the world." Then you found out that you were still a child,—and always would be one, thank God. But it was hard, at first, wasn't it?

You went into that new town "Money," you said "is the main thing. I must have it to live and the more I get of it, the more these stranger people will think of me." And maybe you wrote home "Dear Folks: Of course, I miss you more than I can say, and this isn't home. But I tell you, it does make me feel good to think I can come to a place where nobody knows me and nobody cares whether I starve or freeze, and then make those very people provide me a good living simply because they need my services."

That was before you had been away from home long enough to see things in their true light. Independence is a fine thing, almost a divine thing, but yours was mostly conceit at first. Independence doesn't run pure till it begins to burn. You pay for it in heart aches.

HERE'S PROMOTER OF GARDENDALE

MR. E. H. CLOSE

This is E. H. Close the Toledo man who is staking $100,000 real money on Lima's growth. He has invested that amount in local real estate. He declares that the city already is overcrowded and that new homes must go up at once. This condition has become acute, he says, owing to the fact that Lima industries, new and old, have developed to the extent that several hundred workmen, with their families, must be brought in and made a part of the city's population, practically at once.

Mr. Close has platted Gardendale a new subdivision on the old Allentown road, just west of the city. It will be opened for inspection Sunday. Automobiles will meet Wayne street cars, at the Jameson avenue end all day Sunday, and carry prospective buyers on trips of inspection through the new subdivision.

But it is too late. You can never have it back again. Poor child! Just like you learned the great untruth that Santa Claus is some one else, so you have taught yourself that home is merely brick, or wood, or stone, and you cannot go back to that beautiful place that was a part of your soul.

You go back home—and you are a guest. You can never be more. You pretend to tyrannize over mother just to feel naughty and maybe drag back the past. But mother knows the pretense. She smiles and tries to pretend, herself to help along your feeble efforts. And all you can do then is to kiss her, half solemnly, and fight off a wild desire to put your head in her lap and cry.

No, boys and girls the old home went out of the door with you when you sallied so bravely forth. It left you at the parting of the wave. And you can never, never find it again.

Let's play something else. What shall it be?

"Build a home of your own," whispers the heart. Or was it mine? God guide us in the task, for we undertake it with a longing that could not brook failure. This much we know, Love must be the master builder under whom we work. For the rest—well, it matters not. Where Love is, no failure can be.

It's an old problem this making of a home to take the place of what we flung away. Mother faced it and Father—Why, they solved it as our memories of that dear old home bear witness.

They, too, left the "old home" to chase Will-o'-wisp. Independence! They, too, learned the emptiness of self-seeking. And so they built a home, bruising their hands and hearts too, in the process sacrificing, toiling, hoping, praying. We can feel, now how their longing for the old home was tugging at their inner selves as they worked.

And the home was built. Can't you sense their disappointment when they found it nothing more than stick and stone and mortar? All Mother's magic tenderness and Father's sturdy calm could not endow it. They could never again have for themselves what they had given up in selfishness.

Pretty soon you came, and I came, and the rest of us. Noisy, troublesome children we were, and heedless and cruel. But this was OUR home, our very world and we romped and shouted and laughed and cried and fought and "made up" in it. So Mother smiled and Father tossed us high and they both found contentment again. They had wrought for others as others had wrought for them. They had their place in a "home" as blessed as the home they deserted.

And that is the very essence of it all is it not? We find solace and joy in repaying what was paid us. An eye for an eye, says the old Mosaic law. A home for a home, comes Love's commanding whisper. And between the two lies all the progress of humanity.

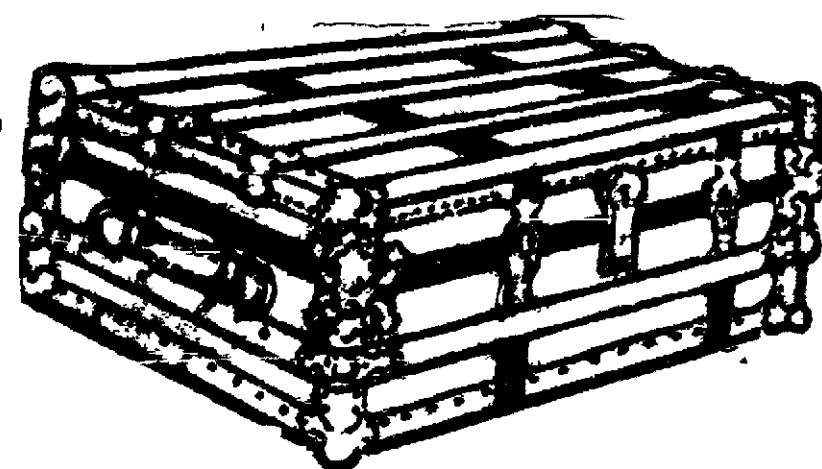

Build you a home, children. Play there devotedly. It is your foretaste of that other heaven of which you dream.

Love of home is the very soul of

BY A GROWN-UP CHILD.

EDITOR'S NOTE—A great deal has been said in the newspapers this week about the opening today of Gardendale, a new residence subdivision on the Allentown road, west of town. Other new residence properties in the same general section, have been brought prominently to notice by the report of a prospective extension of car service to that locality. Lima, it is pointed out, is hardly able to house her present population, and an estimated increase of 10,000 souls is to come at once, due to the expanding of industrial activities in the city. Homes will have to be built for these says E. H. Close, of Toledo, a realty expert who is backing his opinion by heavy investments here.

Home-building is, today, the big topic in Lima. "Own your own home," the old slogan, is ringing.

"What is the magic in that cry?" we asked a Lima man of more or less philosophical turn of mind. "What is there to a home, other than a shelter for the body, that makes men and women willing to toil and suffer and even to die? Can you make clear to readers of The News the inner meaning of this oldest and least-discussed subject in the world?"

"I don't know. But I can try, if you like," he replied.

We "liked," and here is what our friend wrote.

"I will build me a home," the Rich Man cried, and the more it costs, the better it is.

And roused him up in his strength and pride;

His workmen built him a palace fair,

A glittering pile that pierced the air

Far into the heights. No littlest thing

Was overlooked that might comfort bring.

An army of servants unceasingly wrought

The ease that they knew their master sought

And yet—and yet, the Rich Man cried;

"I haven't a home." And he turned aside

To wrestle alone with his loneliness.

Since riches had no power to bless

"I will build me a home," the Poor Man cried,

And a woman stooped as she stood by his side

And helped him to gather up stick and stone

And labored with him till the work was done.

Together they bowed their humble cot

With roses they coaxed from an untamed spot.

And laughing children played about

While Love put Poverty's train to rout

"And oh, and oh," the Poor Man cried,

"My home I have here, and my heaven beside."

And he cared not a whit for the world's success

Since Love and Love's Labor alone can bless.

STOCKS AND GRAIN

WEEK A HARD ONE UPON ALL CEREALS

WHEAT, OATS AND CORN SPEND SIX DAYS OF RAPID CHANGE.

Chicago, July 20.--War talk between Italy and Turkey and the reported closing of the Dardanelles had a good deal to do with the wheat sales at the close of the week. Certainly closing the Dardanelles would be a sad blow to the world's food supply, and it began to manifest itself in the market as early as Thursday. The condition grew bearish at once and it is expected that any further stem in the war situation would more than likely offset the bear's work.

Saturday morning Sept. wheat opened down 5-8 and December started away with a half-a-cent loss over the closing figures of Friday. Both the Sept. and Dec. crops started off a quarter down. Neither wheat nor corn made any special gains during the morning selling. Oats opened unchanged from Friday's figures and provisions held steady.

The close shows:--Wheat, Cash, July 97; Sept. 93 1-4; Dec. 95 1-2. Corn, Cash, July 63 5-8; Dec. 56 3-8; Dec. 56. Oats, July 42 1-2; Sept. 33 1-8; Dec. 34 1-2. July 47; 17.45. Sept. pk. 17.75. Oct. pk. 17.85.

IMPORTANT ISSUES

LOSE AT CLOSING

EVEN GOVERNMENT BONDS SHOW DECLINE--GOOD PROSPECTS REASON

New York, July 20.--The stock market opened steady. Nearly all the important issues showed losses ranging around half. Government bonds, United States fours declined 1-4. Railroad bonds steady. The market closed steady.

Whenever stocks have been strong this month it has been on speculative buying, chiefly short covering. The fact of splendid crop and business prospects in the Northwest has brought relatively little investment buying into the market of the shares that will be most benefited by this prosperity.

It is easy to believe from the way stocks act that there would have been some large declines in particular stocks had the crop outlook been only an average one this year. So far the market value of this outlook has been to postpone liquidation. Its whole effect has been negative rather than positive.

OIL MARKET.

The prices paid for oil of various grades by the purchasing agents are: Pennsylvania $1.60, Mercer black $1.13, New Castle $1.13, Corning $1.13, Cabell $1.20, North Lima $1.02, South Lima 97c, Indiana 97c, Princeton 85c, Somerset 91c, Ragland 53c, Illinois above 50 above 85c, Illinois below 29 79c, Kansas and Oklahoma 6c Corsicana light 65c Oklahoma heavy 55c Electric 70c Henrietta 70c, Caddo, 40 and above 77c, Caddo under 40, 40c, Canada $1.42.

STOCKS AND GRAIN

WEEK A HARD ONE UPON ALL CEREALS

WHEAT, OATS AND CORN SPEND SIX DAYS OF RAPID CHANGE.

Chicago, July 20.--War talk between Italy and Turkey and the reported closing of the Dardanelles had a good deal to do with the wheat sales at the close of the week. Certainly closing the Dardanelles would be a sad blow to the world's food supply, and it began to manifest itself in the market as early as Thursday. The condition grew bearish at once and it is expected that any further stem in the war situation would more than likely offset the bear's work.

Saturday morning Sept. wheat opened down 5-8 and December started away with a half-a-cent loss over the closing figures of Friday. Both the Sept. and Dec. crops started off a quarter down. Neither wheat nor corn made any special gains during the morning selling. Oats opened unchanged from Friday's figures and provisions held steady.

The close shows:--Wheat, Cash, July 97; Sept. 93 1-4; Dec. 95 1-2. Corn, Cash, July 63 5-8; Dec. 56 3-8; Dec. 56. Oats, July 42 1-2; Sept. 33 1-8; Dec. 34 1-2. July 47; 17.45. Sept. pk. 17.75. Oct. pk. 17.85.

Yesterday the circus exhibited in Mansfield and immediately after the night show was sent speeding on its way here. The first train bearing the mess outfit, stables and much of the draught stock arrived just after midnight; 85 cars made up the four long trains and they were unloaded with half the bother of the average householder in a May day moving. The grounds today will prove a mecca for thousands of sightseers who never seem to tire of the circus and its attendant activities. As far as possible the circus folks will try to make it a day of rest. Only necessary labor will be performed and the "big top" with its wealth of apparatus, seats, etc., will not be erected until tomorrow morning. Every horse in the house will have a thorough washing and grooming,
after which they can stand or loll
in fresh, bright straw up to their knees.

Very few of the men and women of "sawdust and spangles" visit
the grounds upon a Sunday, but prefer to spend the day quietly in the parks or some hotel.

The first thing on the circus program will be the parade of tomorrow morning scheduled to leave the grounds at 10 o'clock and pass over the usual down town streets. In a sense the parade will be in the nature of a huge moving-horae-fair, over 500 head of horses being in line, ranging from clean-limbed thoroughbreds to sturdy Normans, Clydesdales and Percherons. There will be five bands to enliven the line of march with martial melody and the strident calliope will bring up the rear
as in all well-regulated circus parades.

There will be two performances
given here at 2 and 8 o'clock p. m., doors being opened at 1 and 7 o'clock. The circus is claimed to be indeed, "bigger, better and busier" this year than ever before.
The big spectacle which opens the show, called "Cleopatra," is an adaptation of an episode in the history of Egypt's beautiful queen. It is the story of Marc Antony and Cleopatra and is given with a brave display of horses, chariots, costumes, fair women, hardy soldiers and glittering grandeur. In pantomime is shown the entrance of the great Roman captain into Alexandria, a conqueror, his yielding to the wiles of the temptress, and his final fate on his own sword
when Caesar avenging legions surround the city.

Of course there are clowns—fifty of them and they indulge in all kinds of fun. They kick
"Teddy's hat around in the ring—burlesque the suffragettes—ape the performers—in fact, do everything to make merry. The menagerie has been enlarged and offers as a special attraction a baby giraffe born last January.

In brief, the Barnum & Bailey circus this year is designated as a perfect circus with novelty as the keynote of it all.

Throughout the day tickets may be bought at H. F. Vortkamp's Drug Store, at no advance in prices.

LADY GOLFERS TO PLAY CONSOLATION

In the finals for the Van Note trophy cup on Thursday, Mrs. J. C.
Linneman won the runner-up cup,
the gift of Col. Linneman, and has announced that she will at once offer it as a consolation prize for non-winners of the tournament. In the first pairings for the cup, Mrs.
W. J. McLaughlin will play Miss Minerva Blum, with handicaps even; Miss Boone will meet Mrs. E. A. Swan, Mrs. Luffkin will meet Mrs. Boone with a 27 handicap, and Mrs. Gooding will play Mrs. J. L. Bailey with 20 handicap. All matches must be played before Thursday, July 25th, so the semi-finals can be played that date.

McLAUGHLIN PROKE
ALL GO F RECORDS

Playing with Alex Gerard, the young Scotch professional enroute to Buffalo open tournament, and James E. Sullivan, the local champion W. J. McLaughlin, now down to the third flight in the handicap championship of the Shawnee links, broke all records yesterday.

McLaughlin not only outplayed both Sullivan and Gerard, but in his three rounds (long course)
played a 39, 41 and 43, even bogie for the 27 holes. Gerard put up a splendid game throughout but the course being strange, he was not at his best. Sullivan, usually the most reliable golfer of the club, was off his game and never got going right.

ONE DEATH RESULTS
FROM AN EXPLOSIONThree People Victims of The Gasoline StoveACCIDENT OCCURS IN NORVAL HEIGHTS ADDITION SOUTH OF THE CITY.ONE OF THE VICTIMS
DIES IN THE HOSPITAL.OTHERS WERE LESS SERIOUSLY BURNED AND WILL RECOV-ER FROM INJURIES.

In a gasoline explosion at the home of R. S. McGinnis, a carpenter, 1420 Norval avenue, at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Thomas McGinnis, 12, a son, was so badly burned that his death followed at the city hospital at 8:30 o'clock
last night, and Verbal Hunsman,
an uncle of the lad, was seriously burned about the hands and face.
A younger lad was also painfully burned.

The distressing accident occurred when preparations were being made to fill the tank of a gasoline stove.
A can of the fluid was being removed from the back porch to the kitchen when Verbal Hunsman accidentally upset the bucket and an explosion followed. In an effort to avert a serious blaze, Hunsman snatching the blazing bucket and started toward the kitchen door.
He collided with his nephew,
Thomas McGinnis and the fiery fluid was spilled on the boy's clothing. The lad was burned literally to a crisp. Parents came to the youth's rescue by dashing a bucket of water on him, but he was so seriously burned that he died a few hours later at the city hospital.

Hunsman's face and hands were covered with the blazing liquid and he was painfully scorched. The Whitley ambulance removed the two to the city hospital, where Hunsman's injuries were found to be quite serious. A younger brother of the unfortunate lad was also painfully hurt when a portion of the gasoline spilled on his clothing and immediately ignited.

At the hospital, physicians made a heroic effort to save young Mc-Ginnis' life, but his body was burned to a crisp and he died without ever having regained consciousness. His body was a charred mass of flesh and bone and the remains were removed to the Williams & Davis morgue for burial preparation.

The McGinnis family has lived in Lima for several years, moving here from Auglaize county. R. S.
McGinnis, father of the stricken lad, is employed as a carpenter,
while Verbal Hunsman, a brother of Mrs. McGinnis, is a laborer.
Hunsman's condition last night was said to be quite serious. After his burns were attended at the city hospital he was taken to the McGinnis home. He is suffering from the shock and from the fact that his unintentional collision with his nephew was responsible for the lad's death. The other lad was only burned about the hands and arms.

Funeral services will be held in Waynesfield, Auglaize county, Monday morning, at the Methodist church of that place. The body will be shipped there for burial, this afternoon.

The unfortunate lad is survived by both parents and several brothers and sisters.

Paul M. Harper and Archie Steward, both of the firm of McLaughlin and Hulsken, left this morning for a canoe trip, going by water from Spencerville to Cairo, Ill.

RECORD MADE AT DRIVING PARK
BY POLICEMENMAINTAINED PERFECT ORDER
DURING THE MEET WITH-OUT AN ARREST

Merchants' policemen John Harshe who was in charge of the organized force of special officers who were on duty at the Lima Driving park during the race meet last week,
with the assistance of his men,
made an excellent record for the big event. Although several thousand people visited the park during the four days of the race meeting, perfect order was maintained at all times and not an arrest was made on the grounds during the week. The only persons escorted out of the grounds during the meeting were two youngsters who had scaled a fence and gained admission without tickets or passes.

The reports which were given circulation by some parties unknown to the effect that the grounds were thronged with crooks and that the officers of Chief Harshe's squad made arrests by the wholesale,
were wholly without foundation.

WEAPON.

(By United Press.)

Allentown, Pa., July 20.—Eric Schaeffer, actor, who early this morning shot and killed Miss Lorenda Gaynes and mortally wounded his rival, Wm. J. Free, is dead from a self-inflicted wound.

After the shooting the police pursued Schaeffer and thought they had him cornered on Lehigh Mountain, near this city, but he managed to escape. They notified the farmers of the countryside that he was wanted. Late this afternoon, John Muth, a farmer, whose place is three miles south of this city, saw a man answering the description of the mur-derer sitting under a tree by the roadside. He started toward him, but the man pointed a revolver at him and Muth fled.

A minute later, Muth heard a shot and, turning saw that Schaeffer had sent a bullet through his own head. He was dead when Muth reached him. Schaeffer and Free had been rivals for the affections of the young woman.

Barnum & Bailey's great circus will be in town when you read this for the first section of the 87 cars arrived over the Pennsylvania at three o'clock this morning, and unloading was to start at day break at the West street crossing. The tents will be pitched on the old show grounds on north West street, above Murphy, west side.

Yesterday the circus exhibited in Mansfield and immediately after the night show was sent speeding on its way here. The first train bearing the mess outfit, stables and much of the draught stock arrived just after midnight; 85 cars made up the four long trains and they were unloaded with half the bother of the average householder in a May day moving. The grounds today will prove a mecca for thousands of sightseers who never seem to tire of the circus and its attendant activities. As far as possible the circus folks will try to make it a day of rest. Only necessary labor will be performed and the "big top" with its wealth of apparatus, seats, etc., will not be erected until tomorrow morning. Every horse in the house will have a thorough washing and grooming, after which they can stand or loll in fresh, bright straw up to their knees.

Very few of the men and women of "sawdust and spangles" visit the grounds upon a Sunday, but prefer to spend the day quietly in the parks or some hotel.

The first thing on the circus program will be the parade of tomorrow morning scheduled to leave the grounds at 10 o'clock and pass over the usual down town streets. In a sense the parade will be in the nature of a huge moving-horae-fair, over 500 head of horses being in line, ranging from clean-limbed thoroughbreds to sturdy Normans, Clydesdales and Percherons. There will be five bands to enliven the line of march with martial melody and the strident calliope will bring up the rear as in all well-regulated circus parades.

ONE DEATH RESULTS FROM AN EXPLOSION

Three People Victims of The Gasoline Stove

ACCIDENT OCCURS IN NORVAL HEIGHTS ADDITION SOUTH OF THE CITY.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS DIES IN THE HOSPITAL.

OTHERS WERE LESS SERIOUSLY BURNED AND WILL RECOVER FROM INJURIES.

In a gasoline explosion at the home of R. S. McGinnis, a carpenter, 1420 Norval avenue, at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Thomas McGinnis, 12, a son, was so badly burned that his death followed at the city hospital at 8:30 o'clock last night, and Verbal Hunsman, an uncle of the lad, was seriously burned about the hands and face. A younger lad was also painfully burned.

The distressing accident occurred when preparations were being made to fill the tank of a gasoline stove. A can of the fluid was being removed from the back porch to the kitchen when Verbal Hunsman accidentally upset the bucket and an explosion followed. In an effort to avert a serious blaze, Hunsman snatching the blazing bucket and started toward the kitchen door. He collided with his nephew, Thomas McGinnis and the fiery fluid was spilled on the boy's clothing. The lad was burned literally to a crisp. Parents came to the youth's rescue by dashing a bucket of water on him, but he was so seriously burned that he died a few hours later at the city hospital.

Hunsman's face and hands were covered with the blazing liquid and he was painfully scorched. The Whitley ambulance removed the two to the city hospital, where Hunsman's injuries were found to be quite serious. A younger brother of the unfortunate lad was also painfully hurt when a portion of the gasoline spilled on his clothing and immediately ignited.

At the hospital, physicians made a heroic effort to save young McGinnis' life, but his body was burned to a crisp and he died without ever having regained consciousness. His body was a charred mass of flesh and bone and the remains were removed to the Williams & Davis morgue for burial preparation.

The McGinnis family has lived in Lima for several years, moving here from Auglaize county. R. S. McGinnis, father of the stricken lad, is employed as a carpenter, while Verbal Hunsman, a brother of Mrs. McGinnis, is a laborer. Hunsman's condition last night was said to be quite serious. After his burns were attended at the city hospital he was taken to the McGinnis home. He is suffering from the shock and from the fact that his unintentional collision with his nephew was responsible for the latter's death. The other lad was only burned about the hands and arms.

Funeral services will be held in Waynesfield, Auglaize county, Monday morning, at the Methodist church of that place. The body will be shipped there for burial, this afternoon.

The unfortunate lad is survived by both parents and several brothers and sisters.

Paul M. Harper and Archie Steward, both of the firm of McLaughlin and Hulsken, left this morning for a canoe trip, going by water from Spencerville to Cairo, Ill.

SPLENDID

RECORD MADE AT DRIVING PARK BY POLICEMEN

MAINTAINED PERFECT ORDER DURING THE MEET WITH-OUT AN ARREST

Merchants' policemen John Harshe who was in charge of the organized force of special officers who were on duty at the Lima Driving park during the race meet last week, with the assistance of his men, made an excellent record for the big event. Although several thousand people visited the park during the four days of the race meeting, perfect order was maintained at all times and not an arrest was made on the grounds during the week. The only persons escorted out of the grounds during the meeting were two youngsters who had scaled a fence and gained admission without tickets or passes.

The reports which were given circulation by some parties unknown to the effect that the grounds were thronged with crooks and that the officers of Chief Harshe's squad made arrests by the wholesale, were wholly without foundation.

SLAYER

AND IS FOUND VICTIM OF HIS OWN MURDEROUS WEAPON.

(By United Press.)

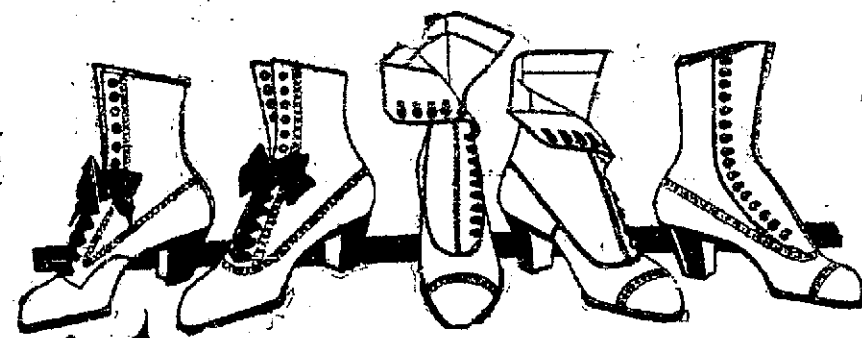

Allentown, Pa., July 20.—Eric Schaeffer, actor, who early this morning shot and killed Miss Lorraine Gaynes and mortally wounded his rival, Wm. J. Free, is dead from a self-inflicted wound.

After the shooting the police pursued Schaeffer and thought they had him cornered on Lehigh Mountain, near this city, but he managed to escape. They notified the farmers of the countryside that he was wanted. Late this afternoon, John Muth, a farmer, whose place is three miles south of this city, saw a man answering the description of the murderer sitting under a tree by the roadside. He started toward him, but the man pointed a revolver at him and Muth fled.

A minute later, Muth heard a shot and, turning saw that Schaeffer had sent a bullet through his own head. He was dead when Muth reached him. Schaeffer and Free had been rivals for the affections of the young woman.
